Democrats Adopt New Legislative Strategy

Truman Leaders To 'Talk Softly' In Effort to Save 60% of Program

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Democratic leaders set out yesterday to salvage as much as they can get of the backlogged Truman program under a new policy of "talk softly when you don't carry a big stick."

In the dead calm following Friday night's Senate coalition storm, Administration Democrats started speaking to Southerners again and there gradually emerged a new legislative strategy.

Instead of bucking the coalition head-on, as they did in the Senate cloture-rule fight, Administration forces will work alike with Southern moderates and GOP liberals to try to save some 60 per cent of the Truman program, much of it watered down.

The Senate rent-control bill, giving State governments power to decontrol if they choose, and permitting two 5 per cent increases through April 1, 1950, will be the first test of the new strategy.

A "Pretty Good Bill"

The Senate yesterday made the bill its unfinished business, before it recessed until Monday. Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) and Majority Whip Francis J. Myers (Pa.) said they thought it was "a pretty good bill." What they may have meant was that as compared with the House "local option" measure it was the best the Administration could get.

Despite the 63-to-23 licking the leadership took on the cloture rule, there were factors working on the Administration's side against complete coalition rule on many of the key Truman measures, and this may be reflected in programming of future bills.

For example, the Taft-Hartley repeal bill, sure to split Democrats down the middle again, and bring

Train Robber Sues Railroad for Selling Him Liquor

George L. Ashton, 20, confessed train robber, yesterday asked District Court for $50,000 damages from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for serving him whisky on its train March 9, the night of the robbery near Martinsburg, W. Va.

The suit, filed through his mother, Mrs. Ruth Ungar, of Poland, Ohio, charges that he was served whisky although under age, and that a railroad employe, knowing he was drunk, argued with him which led to the train robbery.

Ashton will appear Tuesday in District Court for a hearing on his removal to Wheeling, W. Va., where he has been indicted for the train robbery. His partner, Luman Ramsdell, 22, felled by a policeman's bullet when they were arrested, is still in Gallinger Hospital.

Ashton's lawyer, John M. Webster, said he would agree to a guilty plea if his client is tried here. The United States attorney's office, however, said it will insist on his extradition.

World Famous McLean Gems To Be Sold Under Court Order

Sale of the jewelry owned by the late Evalyn Walsh McLean, valued at $519,107 and including the famous Star of the East and Hope diamonds, was authorized yesterday.

Judge James W. Morris granted the request of trustees of the McLean estate, who petitioned for sale of the jewel collection to pay about $300,000 in outstanding debts and claims against Mrs. McLean's estate.

Trustees listed current assets of the estate at $150,000. Residue from the sale, at public auction or by private sale at not less than appraised value, will be invested, the petition said.

Court permission was necessary for sale of the jewels since Mrs. McLean's will stipulated they be held in trust until her youngest grandchild reaches the age of 25. The will provided they might be sold to provide properly for that child, Mamie Spears Reynolds, now 6, daughter of former Senator Reynolds of North Carolina.

The petition said Mrs. McLean's jewelry was valued at $591,107 when she died at the age of 60 on April 26, 1947. The Hope diamond, which came into Mrs. McLean's possession in 1912, was appraised at $176,920. The Star of the East was appraised at $185,000.

Friends often reminded Mrs. McLean that the pale blue Hope Diamond had brought bad luck to a succession of owners down through the years. Some of those who owned it at one time or another were Catherine the Great of Russia and Marie Antoinette of France.

But Mrs. McLean scoffed at suggestions that her own personal tragedies stemmed from the fabulous gem and always replied that she already had experienced the worst tragedies any stone could bring her.

Among other jewelry were a platinum dinner ring set with diamonds, appraised at $47,175; a ruby necklace containing a large diamond, $30,550; a platinum bracelet set with diamonds and rubies, $19,-

Truman Says U. S. Is Under 3-Party Rule

Still Hopes to Save Program, Hints at Appeal to Country

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., March 18.—President Truman declared today that the country has been under a three-party system since the recent political campaign, but he saw this as no impregnable obstacle to enactment of his "Fair Deal" program.

Asked if the rebuffs suffered by his Administration on Capitol Hill in the past week indicated that a three-party system was in effect, Mr. Truman replied that it could be construed that way. Then he remarked that the country has had a three-party system since the presidential campaign.

Throughout the news conference here, however, he expressed repeated confidence that his program would eventually be accomplished. He said he saw no reason to change that program, the broad outlines of which he had laid down in his State of the Union message in January.

Looks Tan and Fit

Mr. Truman made it clear he wasn't mad at the recalcitrant Eighty-first Congress but at the same time dropped a strong hint that he would take his case to the country.

He was asked if he had decided when he would make the "train trip" he mentioned at the Jackson-Jefferson Day Dinner. He said the details hadn't been worked out yet. He would, he said, let reporters know when plans were ready.

At his morning news conference, the first he has held since he has

Another Test To Be Sought On Sales Tax

Rep. Smith May Offer Revised Measure, With Some Votes Changing

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A new drive is under way to present a 2 per cent District sales tax bill for another House test this month.

Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) announced last night he will call a meeting of the House District Committee early next week to review the city's revenue problem.

McMillan said he expects another District sales tax bill to be introduced in the House before the committee meets. There were indications the bill will be introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), author of the sales tax bill which the House voted Monday to kill by a 176 to 166 roll call.

Rumors Some Would Change

Since the vote, rumors have circulated through the House that some members who voted against the measure are prepared now either to reverse their position or to stay out of the fight on a second test of the sales tax.

The House District Committee minority who led the fight against the measure on the floor have scheduled a meeting for early next week to draft a substitute revenue program.

McMillan said his plan is to put the entire issue up to the District Committee for another majority decision on what revenue program it wants to sponsor.

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), a leader of the anti-sales tax bloc, has announced he would seek District Committee action on his plan to raise additional revenue by increasing the rates of

Home-Rule Bill Will Include District Agency Reorganizing

Reorganization of District agencies will be sought in the new Senate home-rule bill for Washington, Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) said yesterday.

Kefauver, chairman of the Senate District Home Rule Subcommittee, said the plan for a combined home rule and reorganization bill had been cleared by his group for presentation to the full Senate District Committee Tuesday.

He said he will introduce the bill in the Senate following Tuesday's meeting and now plans to schedule a new round of hearings on the revised measure starting Monday, March 28.

Kefauver said the decision to include a District government reorganization plan in the home rule bill was designed to make easier the job of a home rule government that would be set up by the bill.

The measure calls for a nine-member elected city council, and a manager to be appointed by the council.

He said the reorganization pattern proposed in the bill generally follows that suggested in the bill sponsored last year by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

The Auchincloss bill called for 12 city departments under the District manager, with the schools under an elected board of education. The elected school board feature had earlier been approved by the Kefauver group.

Kefauver said the revised bill calls for letting the city council take over the ordinance powers of the present District Commissioners, plus the power to enact local legislation

It's Alternative To One by One Defeat, Nation Told in Speech

Russian claims that the North Atlantic Treaty forms an alliance for aggression were branded as "fantastic" by Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson in a radio address last night.

In firm, outspoken language, Acheson declared that the proposed pact to bind together the North Atlantic powers in a historic alliance is their answer to prevent them being picked off "one by one" by any aggressor.

"Anyone with the most elementary knowledge of the processes of democratic government knows that democracies do not and cannot plan aggressive wars," he declared.

No Plans for War

"This country is not planning to make war against anyone. It is not seeking war. It abhors war. It does not hold war to be inevitable. Its policies are devised with the specific aim of bridging by peaceful means the tremendous differences which beset international society at the present time."

Secretary Acheson went before the microphone less than 12 hours after the text of the momentous alliance was released to the world, to explain the terms of the pact—which are certain to provide world-wide debate in the two weeks before the treaty signing here.

"Allegations that aggressive designs lie behind this country's signature of the Atlantic pact can rest only on a malicious misrepresentation or a fantastic misunderstanding of the nature and aims of American society," he said.

One Intent—For Peace

The treaty has but one intent, he declared, and that is not to wage war, but "to wage peace vigorously and relentlessly," with the combined moral and physical power of the pact powers.

"If the free nations do not stand together," he said, "they will fall one by one. The strategy of the aggressor is to keep his intended victims divided, or better still, set them quarreling among themselves."

He stressed that the pact is in full accord with both the letter and the spirit of the United Nations Charter, and is wholly subordinate to that agreement.

In discussing at length the key section of the pact—the declaration that an attack on any member will be regarded as an attack on all, with armed force to be used if necessary to resist aggression—he declared:

"This does not mean that the United States would be automatically at war if one of the nations covered by the pact is subjected to armed atack. Under our Constitution, the Congress alone has the power to declare war."

Our responsibility, he said, would be the obligation "to take promptly

Russians' Goal Is Bondage for All of Europe, Briton Declares

London, March 18 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Bevin accused the Communists tonight of "creating a situation of fear in order that the will of the Kremlin could be carried out and the whole of Europe brought into bondage."

The Atlantic pact is the answer to this situation, he said in a broadcast.

In view of Communist moves, he asked, "what were the peace and freedom-loving nations to do?

"To stand by idly and be destroyed, or to build up some collective security which would weld their people together in strong resistance to these methods?"

"Well," he said, "we took the latter course."

Regrets U. N. Failings

Bevin declared:

"I can assure you that it is our firm conviction the development of the organization visualized in this pact will mean the preservation of peace.

"It brings together, on both sides of the Atlantic, into one system of collective security, people who possess great skill, great ability and inventive genius."

He said Britain had hoped the United Nations would prove the answer to the quest for enduring peace.

"But frankly," he added, "just as the League of Nations did not fulfill its purpose, neither has the United Nations.

"We have been met in the United Nations with the veto," said the Foreign Secretary, "even when the overwhelming majority of the Security Council has agreed to do a certain thing, it has been vetoed by the Soviet government."

Attack on ERP Recalled

Bevin used much blunter language than he did earlier today when he told the House of Commons the agreement on the Atlantic pact was an "historic occasion."

He declared the Russians and their satellites had thwarted peace efforts at every turn.

When the European Recovery Program was first put forth, he said, "practically the whole of Europe outside Russia was anxious to collaborate and make this advance toward recovery.

"But again we were met with bitterest attack and accused of being warmongers," he said.

"Just imagine bringing succor to the sick, helping the aged, settling refugees and trying to establish decent conditions once again—and for all our trouble being denounced as warmongers and criminals."

Bevin said the nations of western Europe were weak and "a constant temptation to potential aggressors" while disunited.

But now, in the Atlantic Pact, he said, they have "expressed on Education, Health Measures

Senate Group Approves 2 Bills For $335 Millions in School Aid

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate Education Committee yesterday unanimously reported two measures to grant the States 300 million dollars in Federal aid to education and 35 million dollars annually for a school health program.

The education measure, similar to that which passed the Senate in the last Congress but died in the House, provides that at least $55 a year in combined Federal and State money be spent on each school child.

The health bill stipulates that at least $2.40 would be spent on each child between the ages of 5 and 17 for medical examination, dental health, etc.

The 300-million-dollar federal aid to education measure leaves it up to the individual States to decide whether any of the allotted funds would be spent in aiding parochial as well as private schools. Those states now supplying textbooks or providing bus services for parochial schools would be free to continue. On the other hand, those states which now ban such expenditures could continue to do so.

Funds for health services would have to be available to children of all schools, whether private, parochial or public.

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) said he would ask the Senate to act first on the health measure, which will be introduced in his name with all of the members of the full committee as co-sponsors.

Early Senate action on both measures is expected. Little strong Senate opposition is anticipated, although both bills, especially the aid to education measure, are expected to run into more difficulty in the House.

Under both measures each State would receive grants varying in amount, depending on the state's average annual income and the number of its school children. Poorer states would receive more than the richer states.

Under the Federal aid bill each state would make up the difference to provide a minimum outlay of $55 a year for each pupil.

Under the health bill a State would contribute funds to make up the total. Committee members estimated that with minimum state contributions, the total available for the health program would amount to 60 million dollars a year.

The education measure stipulates that the Federal Government may in no way control the personnel, curriculum or materials used in any school.

While both measures had unanimous committee support, Thomas and Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) both declared that some members had reserved the right to offer floor amendments.

Army and Navy Journal

Col. O'Laughlin Wills Paper To Surprised Gridiron Club

To the surprise of most of its members, the Gridiron Club yesterday found itself with the legacy of a valuable newspaper, the 86-year-old Army and Navy Journal.

Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, who died here Monday, bequeathed his stock in the Journal to the club in a will dated last December 9, which was filed for probate yesterday. He was the sole owner.

The Gridiron Club is now in its sixty-fifth year. Founded to "promote good fellowship," the club is made up of 50 active members (all Washington newspapermen), 13 limited members, and 39 associate members. It gives two dinners a year, and for half a century its guest list has been headed by the President of the United States.

Colonel O'Laughlin, who died in Walter Reed Hospital at the age of 76, was born in Washington and had a distinguished career. He served as a newspaper correspondent here and abroad, was Assistant Secretary of State in the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt, and covered T. R.'s hunting trip into the African jungle in 1910. He was an intelligence officer in World War I, and bought the Army and Navy Journal in 1925. He became a member of the Gridiron Club in 1910.

How much the Journal is worth appeared to be a moot question yesterday. Some friends of Colonel O'Laughlin estimated that it had a value of $500,000. Those connected with the paper said, however, that no careful appraisal had ever been made of the property.

Covers Attack On Occupation Forces of Any Of Signatories

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

The North Atlantic powers yesterday disclosed their bold plans—and hopes—to build a defense alliance so strong that it would bring them the security they have been seeking since World War II.

For the United States, the proposed North Atlantic Treaty would mark an unprecedented peacetime alliance with western Europe.

The 20-year pact, together with the Treaty of Rio—which binds the 21 American republics into a common defense union—extends the United States' vital area of security through the Americas, western Europe, part of North Africa and most of the Atlantic Ocean.

Defense Area Defined

Its crucial sections declare that an armed attack on any member shall be considered an attack on all, and they shall individually determine what action—"including the use of armed force"—is necessary to "restore and maintain their security."

The defense area for such armed force would be any of the members' soil in Europe, North America, and the Algerian departments of France in North Africa, any of their occupation forces in Europe, or their ships, aircraft or islands in the Atlantic Ocean north of the Tropic of Cancer.

In fact, even though not in words, the treaty is intended to present to Russia and its satellite nations a combined moral and physical force powerful enough to prevent Soviet aggression.

Aggressiveness Denied

Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson, in a Nation-wide radio broadcast last night, branded as a lie the allegations by Russia that the pact is in realty a document of aggression for the United States.

"This country is not planning to make war against anyone," he declared. "It is not seeking war. It abhors war. It does not hold war to be inevitable."

Any other interpretation of this intent, he said, "could only be willful or the product of a system that imprisons the human mind and makes it impervious to facts."

Plain Language Used

The treaty text, a succinct 1040-word document in plain, simple language, was released at 11 a. m. yesterday by the nations which drafted it: The United States, Canada, Britain, France, Norway, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Italy, Denmark, Iceland and Portugal have also been invited to join the pact, which will be signed here on or about April 4.

While the essence of the treaty has been generally known and previously reported, the extension of the pact to the occupation forces of its members was a new disclosure.

Any attack on these forces in Europe would be viewed with the same seriousness and invoke the same methods of self-defense as an attack on the home soil of a participatng nation.

Secretary Acheson said in response to a question at his press conference yesterday that it would be considered an armed attack if an attack were made on an American plane flying the Berlin airlift.

He said, in answering other questions, that the gravity of an attack is the deciding factor in determining whether it imperils the peace. He noted that the United States did not go to war when the Japanese sank the United States gunboat Panay in 1937 but did declare war when Pearl Harbor was attacked.

The proposed treaty, as previous reassurances stated, reserves to the

Nourse Forecasts Prosperous 1949

To Aid Families

Cardinal Pays $65 Checks to Plot Strikers

New York, March 18 (AP).—Gift checks for $65 have been mailed by Francis Cardinal Spellman to each of the families of 275 workers who struck recently at two Catholic cemeteries.

Cardinal Spellman for a week led young priests and seminarians in digging graves at Calvary Cemetery, in Queens, where more than 1000 bodies accumulated during the two-month strike. The workers also struck at Gate of Heaven Cemetery, Hawthorne, N. Y.

Msgr. George E. Ehardt, managing director of the New York Archdiocesan cemeteries, said the checks were "gifts to the families" and were accompanied by letters in which the cardinal said that undoubtedly the period of no work "has caused you and your family many hardships."

The $65 is slightly more than one week's pay of $64.35 provided in the agreement which ended the strike March 11. The men had asked for a five-day week at their old pay of $59.40 for six days.

Choirs from First Congregational Church, Ninth Street Christian Church and Washington Missionary College will present a choral festival at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., at 8 p. m. Sunday.

Chicago, March 18 (AP).—Unless businessmen or consumers get panicky, the Nation this year should be only slightly less prosperous—and possibly better off—than in 1948, the Government's top economist said today.

As a result of "this disinflation of 1949, said Chairman Edwin G. Nourse of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, "we may take off some fat, but we shall not die and need not really suffer."

He said "it is not the voice of Pollyanna but of business statistics that says that underlying conditions are sound and basically favorable."

Sees Higher Production

In an address prepared for the Executives Club of Chicago on "The Gentle Art of Disinflation," Nourse summarized the economic outlook as follows:

"Nineteen hundred forty-nine should show a sustained volume of consumer spending and hence employment only very moderately below last year, production even higher, and prices adjusted to a better structure and a level somewhat but not seriously below the peaks of 1948."

Profits should be "as well as or better maintained over the long pull" when industry is working at 90 to 95 per cent of capacity, Nourse said, as under the "recent strained conditions" when mills and mines were forced to 100 per cent of capacity.

Last year, he suggested, was not a year of "reasonably full employment," fixed as a national goal by the Employment Act of 1946, but "a year of slight overemployment, in part a cause and in part a result of the inflation.

Downturn Called Rational

Nourse said he wished to draw a contrast between "corrective and orderly disinflation" and a "deflationary bust."

The price downturn is not a picture of "unforeseen or uncontrollable disaster," he explained, but may be a "rational and guided action" in which the price policies of business, wage policies of labor and fiscal policies of Government can "prolong our period of economic health."

"We are not lacking in liquid funds or credit reserve. We are not overbuild or top-heavy with inventory.

"Our population is in a new phase of growth in numbers and wants. Expanding families are clamoring for more and better homes. Expanding communities are demanding more public service facilities. Automobiles, rolling stock and power, and much plant equipment are over age.

Danger Cited

"I see nothing in the past history of American business to justify the thought that business genius will fail to exploit these markets."

But the orderly adjustment can be wrecked, he warned, if only a few concerns or industries try to adjust prices to the new conditions while other try to cling to high prices and compensate for the declining market by cutting production.

"The real danger in the present situation is that the current sense of uncertainty might be converted into a feeling of panic that would result in progressive reduction of business spending and consumer spending," Nourse said.

Payments to Jobless Reach Three-Year High

Government payments to unemployed workers hit 115 million dollars in February, the highest total in three years, the Bureau of Employment Security reported yesterday.

The amount was more than eight million dollars above January payments.

Unemployment benefits, fixed by the various State Legislatures, but paid by the Federal Government, averaged about $20 a week. This compared to $18.50 in 1946—the big postwar year for unemployment compensation.

New Mental Hospital Plan Passes Senate

Annapolis, Md., March 18 (AP).—The Senate stepped firmup behind administration plans to reorganize Maryland mental hospitals today.

Senators adopted unanimously a Finance Committee report favoring one-man rule of the mental institutions and an entirely new system of management.

The committee's only important amendment would increase from 9 to 11 the number of members on a "mental hygiene board of review" to make room for a psychiatric social worker and one more public representative.

The amended measure must still be passed finally by the Senate before it reaches the House. Adoption of the report came virtually without comment.

Senators did have remarks to make about what's good for the younger generation in turning down a proposal by Senator Ellison (D., Baltimore 4th) to set up a Maryland youth commission.

Opponents called it "regimentation" and a path "to the police state." The commission would have helped find jobs and recreation for high school graduates.

Acheson's Home To Be Included In Gardens Tour

Baltimore, March 18 (AP).—The Montgomery County home of Secretary of State Dean Acheson, will be open to house and garden enthusiasts this year, during the twelfth annual "pilgrimage" sponsored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland.

Harewood, Acheson's estate in the Sandy Spring area, will be open to visitors on May 2. Some of the buildings date back to 1794.

The series of "house and garden" pilgrimages to historic homes and estates will begin April 29, and extend through May 9. Final arrangements were made here today at a meeting of some 45 club officials.

Navy to Put Bone Banks In Hospitals

The Navy will set up bone banks in some of its hospitals, it was disclosed here yesterday by Rear Admiral C. A. Swanson, Navy surgeon general.

"There is sufficient evidence that bone banks are now justifiable as a therapeutic provision for Naval hospitals," he declared.

Admiral Swanson added that the Navy is currently studying which naval hospitals should operate such banks, latest scientific aid to bone repair surgery.

His remarks followed a detailed report by Lieut. George W. Hyatt, a young Navy doctor who for the past year has studied operation of the model bone bank at Lahey Clinic in Boston. The report was given in a special hospital staff conference yesterday afternoon at the United States Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

Within four years, Dr. Hyatt said, the bone bank "has grown from an experiment to a standard orthopedic institution." Frozen human bone has been preserved for as long as 308 days in an ordinary ice cream cabinet and then used successfully in bone grafting operations, he said.

The use of preserved bones, he reported, shortens by 30 per cent the average operation time required in autogenous bone grafts (in which bone is removed from one part of the patient's skeletal structure to repair another part).

Dr. Hyatt recommended that the Navy set up a National Bone Bank Registry to correlate national statistics and keep abreast of developments in such surgery.

Lawyers, lobbyists and experts in management-labor relations stood aside momentarily yesterday, while a college psychologist took the spotlight at the House hearings on the Administration's bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act.

Arthur Kornhauser, Wayne University psychologist, attacked the recent series of polls sponsored by Look magazine, General Electric, Radio Commentator Fulton Lewis, jr., Revere Copper and Brass, and others.

Some management spokesmen have interpreted the results of these polls as proving that workers generally approve most of the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, even though they are opposed to the act itself. Labor officials, on the other hand, have charged that the questions in the polls were "loaded" to favor the Taft-Hartley Act.

Kornhauser testified there are "inherent defects and misleading implications" in polls seeking the attitude of the man-in-the-street on such complicated and complex subjects as labor law revision.

An issue as broad and deep as the Taft-Hartley Act simply cannot be fairly covered by 10 or 18 questions seeking "yes" or "no" answers, he said.

And even if the question could be written fairly, the man-in-the-street lacks the background to deal with the technical angles involved, Kornhauser added.

Gerald D. Morgan, a Washington attorney, testified that he and a group of lawyers wrote the Taft-Hartley Act, but that all policy decisions were made by the members of Congress. It has been charged by some labor spokesmen that the law was written by the National Association of Manufacturers. Morgan defended the law as a good one. He said he was paid $7500 by the Republican National Comittee for his work in writing the act.

Another witness, Theodore W. Kheel, former labor relations director for New York City, denounced the Taft-Hartley Act as being harmful to both management and labor. He said the "emergency" strike provision—requiring an 80-day, cooling-off period—had hindered settlement of the tugboat and longshore disputes in New York.

The two weeks of hearings before the Kelley Subcommittee of the House Labor Committee will be completed Monday with testimony by the CIO.

Manbeck Hints Action Against Chief of ITU

A former Washington union official yesterday threatened to file charges of unbecoming conduct against Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union and his fellow international officers.

The threat was announced by Jesse B. Manbeck, past president of Columbia Typographical Union, and candidate for the office of ITU president.

Manbeck's action follows the proceedings undertaken by Randolph and the ITU executive council against former ITU president C. M. Baker, who now heads the San Francisco Typographical Union. Baker is accused of okaying a "memorandum agreement" with San Francisco newspaper publishers without prior approval of the executive council.

The proceedings against Baker could lead to his expulsion. Such action, according to Manbeck, might splinter the union, and thereby weaken the ITU and jeopardize the pension and burial funds of the international.

School Chief Favors Sex Education

By The Associated Press

Dr. Earl J. McGrath, new United States Commisioner of Education, said yesterday he favors sex education in the schools, "at least in the secondary schools and colleges."

McGrath

He said that the material on sex in the usual biology course is "not sharply enough in focus."

McGrath spoke at a news conference immediately after he was sworn in as commissioner. He handed out a statement saying that the Nation faces a crisis in education within five years unless the schools get Federal aid.

He said there is no basis for contentions that such aid would lead to Federal domination of the schools and result in the Federal control "of the thinking of our citizens."

McGrath said he also favors:

1. More effective dramatization in the schools of principles on which the American Government operates, through teaching democracy in a positive way rather than by attack on other forms of government.

2. Extension of the school system downward to include the kindergarten age. Child character and personality, he said, is formed largely before the age of 7.

3. Expansion of higher education facilities so that all persons who would benefit by it will get it.

Union Chiefs Called Before Fact Board

Cleveland, March 18 (AP).—Leaders of the four brotherhoods striking against the Wabash Railroad instructed their grand officers today to appear before a fact-finding board in St. Louis Monday.

The order apparently meant that the strike, now in its fourth day, will continue at least until that time. President Truman appointed the board yesterday and Monday is the first day it will meet.

Announcement of the next step in the controversy was made by the office of Alvanley Johnston, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, after a meeting of representatives of the four rail unions.

Railway Express Sues

New York, March 18 (AP).—The Railway Express Agency today filed a five-million-dollar damage suit in Federal Court against an AFL clerks union which has been involved in a dispute with the company.

A union slowdown had led to a company layoff of 9000 employes in the metropolitan area. The union claimed the layoff was a "lockout."

The express agency said in its suit that the slowdown had caused a complete tie-up of normal agency business here.

Earlier, an official of the union, the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, said 20 million dollars worth of merchandise had piled up at agency depots here. He also predicted the tie-up would "spread a great deal further."

Terms sought by the union are a 25-cent increase in hourly pay now ranging from $1.32 to $1.34 and a reduction in the work week

Coal Mine Suspension Causes First Drop in Steel Output

Pittsburgh, March 18 (AP).—The coal-mine shutdown struck its first blow at the steel industry today.

The Sharon Steel Corp. said it expects to shut down a blast furnace and four open-hearth furnaces next week at its Farrell, Pa., plant. About 200 to 300 workers would be laid off.

A company official said lack of coke, as a result of the mine shutdown, was responsible.

Hard-coal operators warned of vanishing anthracite supplies and renewed their claim that the mine shutdown in the anthracite region is illegal.

UMW leaders denied shortages were impending. Ralph Taggart, chairman of the Anthracite Operators Association and president of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Co., Philadelphia, warned in a statement that hard coal stocks were not large enough to last out the mine closings.

UMW President John L. Lewis last Monday ordered 463,000 miners east of the Mississippi to stop work for two weeks. He called the work stoppage a memorial to miner dead and injured and a protest against appointment of Dr. James Boyd of the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

"The time has come," Taggart's statement said, "for the United Mine Workers to face the larger issues of the urgent public need for the production of anthracite."

He urged the miners not to "rely on technical issues for the continuation of the stoppage."

UMW International Vice President Thomas Kennedy and UMW District 1 President M. J. Kosik agreed—"there is plenty of coal." Kennedy added:

"The policy of the United Mine Workers of America will be carried out because it is right and justified by facts."

Taggart had urged Lewis in a series of telegrams to call off the walkout in the hard coal fields in the public interest and because it was a violation of the anthracite contract. Lewis replied the miners' contract said they need work only when "willing and able."

Taggart's warning about short coal supplies was directed principally at consumers of anthracite along the Eastern seaboard from New England to Virginia. Householders and industries alike in that area used a great part of the 57 million tons of anthracite mined last year by some 75,000 UMW members.

"Dealers' supplies in many localities outside the producing region are running low and cannot last for the period named by Lewis," Taggart warned, adding that if the hard coal diggers remain idle until March 28, "we can expect serious dislocation of supplies . . ."

Some operators' spokesmen said that generally speaking, soft coal supplies were adequate to keep all fires burning during the mine shutdown.

In Harrisburg, Pa., Supt. R. C. Thran of the Harrisburg Division of the Reading Railroad told the city's railroad smoke control committee:

Students Defend Virginia U. Morals

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Charlottesville, Va., March 18.—University of Virginia students admit they're not lily-pure.

But to a man, they think their morals aren't as bad as a recent report of Dean of Students J. H. Newman would indicate.

They admit that Virginia students drink. But they disagree that liquor presents "a particularly serious problem" as charged by the dean in his report covering the 1947-48 school fiscal year.

Certainly an occasional woman is entertained in the "lawns" and "ranges"—men's single-room dormitories—in violation of university rules, students say.

But the dean's report of widespread tippling and freedom with women is "grossly exaggerated" and "in very bad taste in a public document," the Cavaliers say.

They think the Virginia morals problem "is duplicated at any university" in the country.

To meet Virginia's disciplinary problem, University President Colgate W. Darden, jr., in June of 1948 launched a plan he thinks is "almost unique among large universities."

He gave students the exclusive right to discipline themselves through their own student council. The right is subject to his own right of review, but Darden says he has "never overridden them yet."

Since this self-policing began in June, 1948, Student Council President Don Hood says "we've only had to handle 27 cases out of about 5000 students."

What kind of problems did the council handle?

There was the student who had his girl in his "lawn" room while—he said—he picked up a blanket for a football game.

The 14-man council heard his case in private, warned him that if it happened again he'd be forced to leave the "lawn"—rooms highly coveted by undergraduates.

In another case, one student mounted the bandstand in a university dance, "pretty well oiled," drained a pocket flask in full view of the dancers.

He was put on what the council calls "strict probation" for one year—no dances or social events, no intramural activities, no opportunity to hold office.

University fraternities discipline themselves. This week, the Interfraternity Council fined one house $200 for operating without a chaperon after the legal 1 a. m. deadline for mixed parties.

Dean Newman, whose controversial report started all the fireworks, thinks now his report is "a statement of past history," involving "a small percentage of students."

He said conditions were "definitely improving" since his May, 1948, report, and felt the council efforts were helping, but "still have not solved all the problems."

Student leaders, the president and the student dean all emphasized a fundamental university need for more recreation facilities.

To meet the need, President Darden has:

1. Turned over a former faculty home to engineering students for their recreational use, and

2. Worked up plans for a student union center, with social hall, meeting rooms and dining facilities. Darden thinks construction can be started "late this summer."

It has been charged that the easily accessible men's single-room dorms have been used to entertain unchaperoned women

Crusader Asks O'Dwyer Indictment in Wire Case

New York, March 18 (U.P.).—Clendenin J. Ryan, millionaire "Good Government" crusader, revealed today he had conferred recently with Samuel Seabury, whose investigation of Tammany Hall two decades ago led to the resignation of the late James J. Walker as mayor.

Ryan appeared today at the courthouse where a grand jury is investigating city charges that telephone wires of administration officials were tapped. Ryan did not appear before the jury today but disclosed he would be back next week.

He handed a statement to reporters which said:

"I have just suggested to the district attorney (Frank S. Hogan) that he could get himself out of this mess by recommending that Mayor William O'Dwyer be indicted for fraud perpetrated last Friday night and Saturday morning."

He referred to O'Dwyer's announcement that he extracted a "confession" of wire-tapping from former Detective Kenneth Ryan.

O'Dwyer was to testify before the grand jury today but his appearance was postponed to the middle of next week.

New York Daily News Reporter Edward O'Neill related today how he walked into Brooklyn's Borough Hall and "with ridiculous ease" maneuvered himself into position to tap the telephone lines of high political officials.

Nurse With Sour Look Called Patients' Menace

London, March 18 (AP).—Delegates at a mental health conference here were told today a nurse with an unpleasant face is a menace to her patients.

"A nurse's sour look may be as harmful as a septic (infected) finger," said the speaker, Dr. J. C. Spence.

Laughlin Agrees to Give Names

State's Attorney A. Gywnn Bowie of Prince Georges County yesterday asked District Lawyer James J. Laughlin for names and addresses of persons who have "offered to assist" in a county grand jury probe of alleged gambling there.

Laughlin said he will comply with the request.

In a letter to Laughlin, Bowie noted that "correspondence" the Washington attorney purports to have received seeking to aid in the county gambling investigation would not "prove to be particularly helpful."

"I would greatly prefer having the writers themselves personally appear her," Bowie wrote Laughlin. "I therefore ask that you furnish me the names and addresses of all persons who have communicated with you . . . and I will have all those summoned who can be reached by process of our court."

Early this month, the State's attorney invited Laughlin and his client, Mrs. Anna T. Keleher, to appear before the grand jury April 8 and tell what they knew of gambling in Prince Georges County. Laughlin accepted the invitation.

During her District Court divorce suit in January, Mrs. Keleher testified her husband, once-convicted gambler John B. Keleher, conducted extensive gambling operations at a Mount Rainier address just over the District line.

Bookies At It Again in Miami As 'Costello Mob' Takes Over

Miami, Fla., March 18 (U.P.).—Bookies were taking bets in Miami and Miami Beach today, happy to be back in business after an unseasonal layoff forced by a major crackdown and a quarrel "at the top" over who would run the racket.

Police pressure appeared to be easing off. A shutdown of the horse race wire service was ended with a "Nation-wide crime syndicate" directed from New York newly in the saddle.

Director Daniel P. Sullivan of the Crime Commission of Greater Miami disclosed to an audience of churchmen last night what the bookies had been talking about for weeks. Sullivan said Frank Costello, New York City, leader of the so-called "New Jersey mob" which guides the "National Crime Syndicate," had proved his right to control the bookie industry through control of its source of race results.

An unidentified gambler told the Miami Daily News that Costello shut off the wire to prove that he could put the local syndicate out of business any time he wanted to. The gambler said he would be killed if his name were used.

Sullivan said the "power and influence of the national crime syndicate is so great that where this group has rooted itself, law abiding citizens and officials are silenced either through wholesale corruption or through threats and intimidation."

4 Men Draw Stiff Penalties

Four men convicted on gaming charges in the past two weeks were given heavy fines and stiff sentences yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville.

All of the men were convicted after jury trials. The sentences were imposed by Judges Stedman Prescott and Patrick Schnauffer.

Lee R. Hunter, 38, of 608 Sligo ave., Silver Spring, was fined $750 and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction on each of two charges. He was convicted of paying off on a pinball machine and accepting a bet on a horse.

The judges suspended one $750 fine and stipulated that the two terms will run concurrently.

Wyndol O. Colie, 54, of 806 Silver Spring ave., and William Morrow, 34, of 801 Pershing dr., both of Silver Spring, were each fined $750 and sentenced to six months for accepting race bets.

Joseph F. Farrell, 30, of 1325 13th st. nw., who was convicted of paying a cash award of 60 cents on a pinball machine, was fined $250.

State's Attorney Walter Dawson announced that a charge of accepting a race bet against Fred D. Pence, 50, of 9702 Warren st., Silver Spring, will be dropped.

The five men were among 14 arrested last November 6 in a series of raids by county police. The arrests have resulted in eight convictions, three acquittals and three cases in which charges were dropped.

Acheson Explains Treaty to Nation

the action which we deemed necessary to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area."

After weighing the seriousness of the attack and the action required to restore security, he said, "we are bound to do what in our honest judgment is necessary to reach that result.

"If we should be confronted again with a calculated armed attack as we have twice seen in the twentieth century, I should not suppose that we would decide any action other than the use of armed force effective either as an exercise of the right of collective self-defense or as necessary to restore the peace and security of the North Atlantic area.

"This is not a legalistic question. It is a question we have frequently faced, the question of faith and principle in carrying out treaties."

Will It Do Job?

He then posed the question which the millions of peoples of all the participating 8—and possibly 12 or more—nations will be asking, "Will the pact accomplish its purpose?"

"No one can say with certainty," he said solemnly. "We can only act on our convictions . . . The nations joining in the pact know that war does not pay. Others may not be as deeply convinced of this as we are. The North Atlantic Treaty should help convince them also that war does not pay."

In referring to the proposal in the pact for self-help and mutual aid to provide the capacity to resist armed attack—the rifles, grenades, planes, tanks, etc., to equip armies—he declared:

"Successful resistance to aggression in the modern world requires modern arms and trained military forces. As a result of the recent war, the European countries joining in the pact are generally deficient in both requirements."

Funds Needed for Arms

Legislation for the United States to provide much of these arms to the alliance members is being drafted at the State Department, and reportedly will seek about $1,500,000,000 in arms aid for pact members, plus weapons for other nations whose security the United States regards as vital to its own defense.

This legislation is to be submitted to Congress soon after the pact is sent to the Hill for ratification. While the pact requires approval by two thirds of the Senate, the arms bill, like any other legislation, requires action by both houses.

"The treaty does not bind the United States to any arms program," said Acheson, but the United States is the only democracy with "the resources and the productive capacity to help the free nations of Europe to recover their military strength."

In the compact world of today, he said, American security is impaired by any threat to international peace, and United States' military aid to such countries as Greece, Turkey and Iran has already shown our intent to help free peoples remain free.

The requirements of the European Recovery Program, he declared, will get "clear priority" over such aid.

Recognition of Fact

In explaining the basis for the treaty, Acheson elaborated on a point he has made in recent weeks at his news conferences: that the pact does not actually create something new, but formally recognizes something that exists.

"The North Atlantic community of nations," he said, "is a reality that has existed for at least 350 years.

"The very basis of western civilization, which we share with the other nations bordering the North Atlantic, and which all of us share with many other nations, is the ingrained spirit of restraint and tolerance.

"This is the opposite of the Communist belief that coercion by force is a proper method of hastening the inevitable . . ."

The "principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law have flourished in this Atlantic community," he said.

Lessons of History Used

"It is clear that the North Atlantic pact is not an improvisation. It is the statement of the facts and lessons of history. We have learned our history from two world wars in less than a century," that 'control of Europe by a single aggressive, unfriendly power would constitute an intolerable threat to the national security of the United States."

Quoting President Truman, he declared, "If we can make it sufficiently clear, in advance, that any armed attack affecting our national security would be met with overwhelming force, the armed attack might never occur."

The world's hope for devising an instrument to determine as far as humanly possible that peace and security would be assured, he said, was creation of the United Nations.

"But, as in any other institution which presupposes restraint," he said, "violence or obstruction can be used to defeat the basic undertaking . . .

"The system is not working as effectively as we hoped because one of its members has attempted to prevent it from working. By obstructive tactics and the misuse of the veto, the Soviet Union has seriously interfered with the work of the Security Council in maintaining international peace and security."

Faith in U. N.

But this does not mean futility for the U. N. objectives, he said.

"Although the actions of the Soviet Union have disturbed the work of the United Nations, it is strong enough to be an effective instrument for peace. It is the instrument by which we hope world peace will be achieved.

The U. N. Charter, he said, recognizes "the importance of regional arrangements consistent with the purposes and principles of the Charter. Such arrangements can greatly strengthen it."

The Atlantic pact, he said, fits "precisely" into the framework of the U. N., as did the Rio Treaty of 1947 uniting the 21 American Republicans for the same basic form of self-help and common defense.

"It is the firm intention of the parties to carry out the pact in accordance with the provisions of the United Nations Charter and in a manner which will advance its purposes and principles."

'Peace Is Positive'

Peace, however, declared Secretary Acheson, is not something you accomplish by wishing for it: "We know now that we cannot achieve peace by taking a negative attitude. Peace is positive, and it has to be waged with all our thought, energy and courage . . ."

The United States is "waging peace" through measures "for the revival and expansion of world trade on a sound and beneficial basis," and this must be carried further through such programs as continuance of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements, ratification of the International Trade Organization agreement and development of "Point 4"—President Truman's Inaugural call to help the backward areas of the world with American skills.

"To have this genuine peace," concluded the Secretary, "we must constantly work for it. But we must do even more. We must make it clear that armed attack will be met by collective defense, prompt and effective.

"That is the meaning of the North Atlantic pact."

Treaty Is Deceptive In Power, Wallace Says

New York, March 18 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace said tonight the American people would "overwhelmingly reject" the North Atlantic Pact if they were given the chance to consider it and all its consequences.

One of the pact's main consequences, Wallace said in a statement, is that it "effectively takes the power to declare war from Congress and puts it in the hands of a military staff located on the continent of Europe."

"The pact is like an iceberg," Wallace said. "The small mass above the waters conceals a far more dangerous mass underneath. The formal words published today hide from view a whole series of the most dangerous and war-breeding commitments and consequences."

Hungary Assails U. S. Ban Against Peace Delegates

Budapest, Hungary, March 18 (A.P.).—The Hungarian government charged today that "official American attitude towards Hungary has been aggressive lately."

The official communique assailed the United States refusal to permit five Hungarians to enter the country as delegates to a "world peace conference." (The United States State Department denied them visas in retaliation for Communist Hungary's treatment of American officials.)

The communique charged that "the American authorities do not dare" to admit the Hungarian delegates lest they "show the truth in the Mindszenty case."

AFTER the Treaty has been in force for 10 years, or at any time thereafter, the Parties shall, if any of them so requests, consult together for the purpose of reviewing the Treaty, having regard for the factors then affecting peace and security in the North Atlantic area, including the development of universal as well as regional arrangements under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE 13

After the Treaty has been in force for 20 years, any Party may cease to be a party one year after its notice of denunciation has been given to the Government of the United States of America, which will inform the governments of the other Parties of the deposit of each notice of denunciation.

ARTICLE 14

This Treaty, of which the English and French texts are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof will be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatories.

In witness whereof, the undersigned plenipotentiaries have signed this Treaty.

paper the underlying determination to preserve our way of life—freedom of the press, freedom of religion and the rights of liberty of the individual."

Collectively the nations of western Europe hailed the new alliance as their defense against both war and communism.

Communists raised their old cry of "warmonger" against the eight nations which plan to sign the accord in Washington about April 4. Official disclosure of the pact's terms is expected to arouse Russia to new heights in propaganda attacks against the alliance.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman told a Paris news conference the pact provides France with an effective shield against aggression.

In Brussels, Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak said: "This treaty is an important event in history. It will make war less possible."

Dutch Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker told reporters in The Hague that the pact is "of the greatest importance in the world."

The Russian army newspaper in Vienna said the treaty is designed to form a military bloc "for aggression against the Soviet Union" and other Communist regimes of eastern Europe.

Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, the Soviet commander in Germany, was reported to have left his Berlin headquarters for a military conference in Moscow. Berlin newspaper accounts said the meeting of Soviet military leaders in the Russian capital would be held in connection with the Atlantic treaty.

Voice of America broadcasts from New York gave full treatment to the pact. A special effort was made to reach Russia and the countries in the Soviet zone of influence.

A British Foreign Office spokesman pointed out that an alliance of the eight nations signing would bring together 250 million people "and a large portion of the world's industrial resources."

Referring to the treaty's terms, Schuman said:

"We are convinced that the pact contains not only a moral but a judicial engagement upon each signatory to aid one another as rapidly and as effectively as possible in the manner each deems best according to its means."

Jacques Duclos, Communist floor leader in the French National Assembly, demanded that the pact be discussed when the Assembly reconvenes Tuesday.

He made his demand in a letter to Assembly President Edouard Herriot. Duclos asked if it were true that France is expected to recruit 24 infantry divisions, as against only six for Britain, three for Belgium, two for the Netherlands and one for Luxembourg in the western European defense setup.

Schuman pointed out the United States is expected to send military equipment to western Europe in a parallel but separate agreement. He said there will a conference before the end of March on this new "lease-lend" program, which would "not necessarily affect all signatories."

Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said he felt the Canadian people will unanimously favor the Atlantic Pact. The purpose of the accord, he said "is to preserve the peace of the world by making it clear to any aggressor he'll finish up like the Kaiser, Mussolini and Hitler."

The British and French saw in the Atlantic treaty no conflict with their previous agreements with Russia.

The British-Soviet Society, in a statement issued in London, termed the pact "the most dangerous and alarming step taken in preparation for war." The society called on Britain to "respond to Marshal Stalin's offer of a peace pact."

Red Radio Blasts Pact

London, March 18 (U.P.).—The Moscow Radio, quoting a Tass News Agency dispatch from New York, said tonight that first interpretations of the Atlantic Pact by the American press "do not conceal the anti-Soviet character of the pact."

The Moscow Radio said The Washington Post "criticizes the decision to include Portugal, declaring that the State Department will have a difficult task depicting Portugal under the present dictatorship as a defender of human rights."

The Tass dispatch was quoted that "commentator Landis of the Chicago Sun-Times wrote that if the American people really debated the implications of the pact, 'the roof would blow off the Pentagon building'."

Treaty Terms Are Revealed

United States Congress alone the power to declare war, which the Constitution authorizes.

The determination as to whether armed force will be authorized, said Secretary Acheson, rests with the "honest judgment" of each nation in carrying out its contractual pledge to take all necessary action to maintain the peace.

If this judgment is applied in event there is an all-out attack, said Acheson, he felt there could be only one answer to fulfill the obligation to restore peace.

Clearly recognized in the treaty is the "primary responsibility" of the United Nations Security Council for "the maintenance of international peace and security."

Steps taken by pact members to resist armed attack "shall immediately be reported to the Security Council. Such measures shall be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security."

It is foolish to think as some people have charged, said Secretary Acheson, that any minor border scuffle would automatically touch off declarations of war by the pact members.

While there is no provision in the pact for the use of armed force to meet aggression against members' possessions in the Pacific or the East Indies, for example, or anywhere outside the specified area for defense, Article 4 of the treaty provides:

"The parties will consult together whenever, in the opinion of any of them, the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the parties is threatened."

While this would require only consultation under the pact, it might well concern a Communist uprising anywhere if a member thought such action would affect its own security.

Acheson said at his news conference that he believed a purely internal revolution in a member country would not be regarded as an attack on that country. But it could be considered an attack if the aggressive moves were assisted from outside the country, he said.

The treaty is subject to review after 10 years, but must remain in force for 20 years after it is ratified by its member nations. After 20 years, any party can withdraw if it has previously given one year's notice.

Throughout the pact there are repeated references and close links to the United Nations, starting with the opening sentence of the preamble.

"The parties to this treaty reaffirm their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and all governments."

A council, with subsidiary agencies, would be established to carry out the treaty and would probably be in almost continual session, Acheson said. The United States representative on the council would be appointed by the President.

The council would "establish immediately a defense committee which shall recommend measures for the implementation of Articles 3 and 5."

Article 5 is the key section dealing with action in event of armed attack. Article 3 proposes that the members, "by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid, will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack."

The defense committee, it is believed, will be in the nature of a joint chiefs of staff.

To provide the means of strengthening defensive forces, legislation is now being drafted at the State Department to extend about $1,500,000,000 in military aid to pact members, to attempt to bring their existing forces up to effective strength by June 30, 1950. Other military aid for nonpact members will be included in the same legislation.

To contribute to the aid of improved international relations, the pact provides that members "will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage economic collaboration between any or all of them."

This sets out many of the basic principles of the European Recovery Plan, and serves to relate the pact to that effort in promoting world recovery.

New European members who are "in a position to further the principles of this treaty and to contribute to the security of the North Atlantic area," may be invited into the treaty by the parties to it.

Secretary Acheson yesterday declined to say if Spain was barred from the pact, indicating no agreement had been reached on that point.

Asked if he felt Portugal, which has been invited, can be considered as a nation to further the treaty's principles of "democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law," he said no nation could be invited unless it can further the treaty principles and contribute to security.

There is strong likelihood that Italy, Portugal, Iceland and Denmark will be participating when the treaty is signed. Iceland, Danish-owned Greenland, and the Azores, owned by Portugal, would give the treaty powers three highly strategic mid-Atlantic bases to counter aggression in the pact area. These countries have received assurances that the bases will not be required in peacetime, it is said.

The nations which started the pact negotiations last July—Belgium, Canada, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Britain and the United States (Norway entered the negotiations two weeks before they ended)—must be included in the majority of signatories required to ratify the pact before it becomes effective.

The United States will be the custodian for the treaty documents, for which English and French texts are equally authentic.

Defends Melish

U. S. 'Seems War Bent,' Dr. Wise Says

New York, March 18 (A.P.).—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, 75-year-old Zionist leader, said tonight the leadership of ths country "semes bent on war."

Dr. Wise, who heads the American Jewish Congress, said "the largest of Christian churches is unequivocably for war" and "is using its great influence to war upon the atheism—I do not say godlessness — of the Soviet regime."

His statements were made in defense of the Rev. William Howard Melish, Episcopal minister whose father was recently ordered ousted as rector of the Holy Trinity Church in Brooklyn.

Young Melish's chairmanship of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, a group listed as subversive by Attorney General Tom Clark, caused the ouster move against the father.

Italian Deputies Approve Pact

Rome, March 18 (U.P.). — The Chamber of Deputies voted, 342 to 170, to put Italy into the Atlantic pact today after Premier Alcide de Gasperi's adherents forced the Communists to end a filibuster that kept the house in continuous session for 51 hours and 6 minutes.

The vote was one of confidence in the government's foreign policy. A similiar resolution will come up in the Senate Monday. The actual ratification of the Atlantic pact must await signing and further debate.

The chamber turned down a number of Communist amendments to the resolution.

The moment the vote was announced, Communists and leftwing Socialists surged onto the floor shouting, "Down with the Atlantic pact." Shaking fists at De Gasperi, they yelled, "Traitor!"

Singing the republican Mameli hymn, Christian Democrats swung into the fray and deputies fought with fists for 15 minutes before parliamentary guards restored order. One deputy hurled a desk drawer; another leaped from a bench, barroom style, on the backs of brawling colleagues.

Outside Parliament, police were alerted for extra duty. The Communists have promised nationwide demonstrations over the weekend.

Riot squads tonight broke up a crowd of 3000 gathered in Roman public squares near Parliament. Jeeps and police trucks sped through side streets and across squares, scattering everyone in their way. This did not approach yesterday's disorders in which one youth was killed at Terni and scores were injured throughout Italy.

Public service workers at Naples struck at midnight and a general strike began to paralyze the province. Communists held rallies at Milan, Turin, Genoa and Florence and ordered flash strikes and slowdowns elsewhere. Demonstrations occurred outside some factories.

The Parliament building was guarded by police armed with automatic rifles, pistols and clubs. Two policemen were assigned to every 100 yards.

De Gasperi's victory was not gained by Christian Democrats alone, but by rightwing Socialists, Republicans, Liberals and Independents also. Only one rightwing Socialist, Pietro Calemandrei, spoke in opposition.

Purpose Is Peaceful, Minister Tells Danes

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 18 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen declared tonight the purpose of the Atlantic Treaty is to preserve peace.

He told the Danish people in a broadcast the pact "does not conceal purposes of aggression against any country in the world."

Cancels Trip to U. S.

Rome, March 18 (U.P.).—Pietro Nenni, leftwing Socialist leader, said today he had canceled plans to go to the United States this summer for a series of speeches with Henry Wallace against the Marshall Plan.

"At this point, it seems very difficult to arrive at an understanding with the leaders of American Socialism who are drawing closer to the Social Democrats (anti-Communist Socialists)," Nenni said.

Pact Is Assured Backing on Hill

By The Associated Press

Pledges of vigorous support for the proposed North Atlantic Treaty as a "stern warning" to warmakers came from Capitol Hill yesterday.

Some opposition was expressed, however, and a number of Senators reserved judgment. Some said they want to see how much it would cost the United States to rearm western Europe before they give their unqualified indorsement.

In general, Senators expressed gratification that the pact would not automatically commit the United States to go to war—unless Congress agrees.

Stern Warning, Says Connally

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee termed the treaty "an instrument of great moral power," and declared:

"It mobilizes the forces of peace against the forces of exploitation and war. It is a stern warning against aggression and armed attack."

He pointed to its lack of any automatic commitment to go to war, and said it is different from old-style military alliances.

Senator McMahon (D., Conn), chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, said:

"I regard it as a statesmanlike and judicious move to strengthen our defense against those who have refused for over three years to join with us in making a durable peace."

Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), member of Foreign Relations Committee: "I am in favor of it. In the long run it will contribute to world unity and world peace."

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), also member of the Foreign Relations Committee: "I feel the principle of the North Atlantic Pact is sound. But I still want to see a general outline of what we are expected to contribute."

No Permanent Solution

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.): "I am for it but I don't think it is a permanent solution to our problem because alliances haven't worked over long periods of time in the past very well.

"I hope the operation of the pact will lead to a limited federation of the countries involved."

Senator Ecton (R., Mont.): "I think we have to have something in the treaty like Article 5 (the pledge of mutual aid). Otherwise there won't be any teeth in it."

Senators Williams (R., Del.) and Millikin (R., Colo.) declined comment.

Other comments:

Senator Wiley (R., Wis.), member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"The pact, as I understand it, creates a binding obligation on America if any of the members is attacked to go to the rescue. This is a moral and legal obligation, but it can only be fulfilled if the Congress declares war."

Senator Douglas (D., Ill.): "It is a step toward peace. Once Russia knows we intend to back up these European nations, there is much less danger that she will take aggressive action."

A leading economy advocate, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) said he is "favorably inclined . . . but with the understanding that it is not a commitment to arm Europe."

In the same vein Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) said: "I still want to see a general outline of what we are expected to contribute . . . in money, equipment and other resources."

Senator Malone (R., Nev.) said: "I don't think this treaty is necessary. I would never vote for a commitment for this country to go to war when some European country decided its safety was threatened, when perhaps in our judgment our own safety is not threatened."

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.): "I favor the general objective, but I want to reserve final judgment . . ."

Two-Way Protection

Senator Cain (R., Wash.): "I am in favor of a pact under which this country can feel assured it is providing reasonable protection for its allies and reasonable protection for itself."

Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.): "I have always felt that if Russia or any nation started to move in Europe, their ultimate objective would be the United States."

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) told his colleagues that this country must make it clear to the Soviets "that we will not permit of aggression against the people who join the North Atlantic Pact."

He declared in a Senate speech that this country must assume "a definite moral obligation to defend freedom when it is attacked or pressed by Russian communism."

Military Pact Binds 7 Red Nations in Europe

Prague, Czechoslovakia, March 18 (U.P.).—The Communist governments of eastern Europe are bound together in a network of 21 bilateral military pacts, a survey showed today.

Although there is no over-all military alliance, each of the two-party agreements provides for immediate military assistance in the event of an attack by Germany "or any other state directly or indirectly allied with Germany."

Countries in the agreements are Yugoslavia, Russia, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania, and Bulgaria.

Reasonable Return

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee's compromise rent-control bill is probably as workable a plan as can be devised for giving landlords a fair return without removing the lid. A number of progressive-minded Senators struggled with the House version calling for "reasonable return on reasonable value" and finally concluded that it was administratively unworkable. It would take a battery of experts to determine "reasonable returns" in each individual circumstance, and Congress now seems wholly unlikely to provide the housing expediter with such a staff.

As in most compromises, the Senate plan for two separate 5 per cent rent increases spaced six months apart will perpetrate some inequities. The blanket raise will confer windfalls on some landlords who have benefited from full occupancy and have experienced no hardship. It may tend to boost living costs slightly when the general trend is toward stabilization. But it will facilitate adjustments for small landlords, many of whom have not gone through the red tape of obtaining hardship increases. The fundamental tenant protections are continued and strengthened, and while the technical duration of the bill is 12 months, actually most safeguards would be extended for 15 months. If this is not the most the Administration hoped for, neither is it a major defeat of its program.

The Senate bill avoids one important defect of the measure passed by the House. Whereas the Senate bill permits State Legislatures to take over or end controls, the House would confer this power on local governing bodies. In theory, of course, it is the individual's responsibility to protect his own interests. But the practical effect of the House provision would be to subject city councils and county supervisors to all sorts of organized pressure from real estate boards, chambers of commerce and entrenched property interests which wield local political and economic influence. A measure of what could be expected is the volume of mail inspired by the real estate lobby that has swamped Congress.

The aim of rent control ought to be to facilitate the construction of more housing so that control can be progressively liquidated. Scarcity is particularly acute in low-rent units, and members of Congress who are anxious to end controls could speed the day by pushing low-cost housing. For Congress to yield to the pressure of "local option," however, would merely create more hardships. Local rent boards are already in a position to advise the housing expediter of local conditions. If there is to be any national rent control at all, it ought to be according to uniform standards that would prevent gross disparities between areas.

Subdued Mr. Truman

President Truman appears to have taken a philosophical view of the setbacks he has suffered in Congress since he has been vacationing in Key West. There was no evidence of anger or even irritation in his comments at his press conference yesterday. On the contrary, he took note of the fact that Congress is an independent branch of the Government, that as President he occupies the role of adviser to Congress and that the final responsibility for legislative policy rests upon the Senate and House themselves. His milder attitude suggests that his vacation has given him perspective that was not evident in his speech at the Jefferson-Jackson dinner.

To be sure, the President left the door open to a stumping tour in behalf of his legislative program, merely saying that as yet he had made no plans for such a venture. But his matter-of-fact recognition of the political situation in the Senate suggests that this may be only a bow to consistency. Instead of ranting, the President calmly observed that he is trying to secure enactment of his program in a three-party Congress. That, of course, should have been as evident in January and February as it is today. And since the President controls only one of the three factions, he will have to exercise the most skillful kind of leadership to attain his ends. Dictation has no chance of success. Attempts at heavy-handed executive domination could only entrench the rebellious coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

No doubt the President's threat to "go to the country" and his advocacy of cloture by a simple majority vote contributed substantially to the revolt in the Senate. We think the Senate has taken a wrong-headed view—that it permitted politics to dominate an issue which should have been resolved in the national interest. But this does not alter the fact that the President has to work with the Congress that the people have sent to Washington, and he should have realized that he could get nowhere by threatening a Congress over which his party has only nominal control. When Mr. Truman returns to Washington we surmise that his most important task will be to reformulate his policy of dealing with Congress, and perhaps his legislative program, so as to take account of congressional as well as executive thinking.

Atlantic Pact

Publication of the text of the North Atlantic Treaty confirms our feeling that the pact is more a defensive alliance of the old-fashioned type than a regional agreement conforming to the letter and spirit of the United Nations Charter. Without a doubt some military agreement was necessary. Of that the facts of the world situation afford ample proof. The enforcement provisions of the Charter had become merely pious protestations as a result of Soviet sabotage. A new sense of security, in consequence, had had to be imparted to nations struggling back to their economic feet. The question lay in the means. A wiser and less complicated course than a comprehensive alliance of the nature that is now before the American people—assuming the need for comprehensiveness—would have been the plan suggested by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs. Mr. Armstrong had proposed that the Soviet-created gap in the Charter be filled by a new pledge of consultation and action in case the Security Council was veto-tied in enforcement.

This could have been worked out simultaneously with the development of the original Atlantic community. The Atlantic community, as we understand it, was initially to be limited to the five Brussels powers and North America. That is to say, it was to be strictly regional, providing security as the spur not only to recovery but also to unity. Who was responsible for enlarging the scope of the Atlantic community in the manner that is now announced? It is said that the British took the first move by suggesting that the pact be thrown open to the Scandinavian nations. The British wanted protection at the Skagerrack against Soviet submarine activity in the North Sea. There could be no argument against other entries when this opening was made; hence the admission of Portugal and Italy.

We have no doubt that other candidacies will be entertained as time goes on. Indeed, provision is made for accessions to the treaty by unanimous agreement. Or these other candidates might be brought into a Mediterranean pact in working relation to the North Atlantic Pact. In this way there will be built up a comprehensive military alliance on the very borders of Soviet Russia. This is the reason that the general reaction stresses the military aim. And this accounts for some of the misgivings expressed while the pattern of the Atlantic Pact was under discussion. "Our fellowship with the peoples of western Europe, and particularly of Scandinavia," said Mr. Dulles recently, "ought not to seem to bring United States military might directly to Russia's border."

A good motto for diplomacy is to "look to the end." In this context the question is, What will the Soviet reaction be? Will the Muscovites be intimidated or provoked into retaliation? Nobody can tell, though the present disturbances in Yugoslavia, Finland, and Iran are hardly indicative of Soviet acquiescence. Mr. Dulles says, "It would involve a high tribute to Soviet leaders to assume . . . they would exercise more self-control than would our people under comparable circumstances, as, for example, if the Soviet Union had military arrangements with a country at our border."

To be sure, there can be no going back to the original plan limiting the pact to the Brussels powers and North America. But the military accent of the present arrangement could be softened, and a new tack embarked upon simultaneously with it, if the United States were to take the lead in the promotion of a real partnership with western Europe. A plea is now before Congress to call an international convention for a federal union of the free nations. The appeal is sponsored by many enlightened Americans, including former Justice Owen J. Roberts, former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, and former Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton. We applaud the move. Favorable action upon it would restore statesmanship in the dominant role in the making of our world policy. It would harness a pro to an anti, and show the world that the maintenance of peace is as much the American goal as preparedness for war. This is the way to "wage peace" that Secretary Acheson insists is American policy.

"A Ward Of Congress"

Senator McGrath's proposal to increase the Federal contribution to the District by 18 million dollars is a logical consequence of the rejection by the House of the sales tax. This had been counted upon to provide most of the revenue needed to balance the local budget and discharge the moral obligation of Congress to raise the pay of District employes. Although the McGrath bill will probably never be seriously considered as a solution of the District's financial problems, it serves a highly useful purpose by emphasizing the irresponsible conduct of legislators who block constructive proposals for fiscal relief without offering acceptable alternatives.

Few members of Congress have the knowledge, even if they have the will, to deal intelligently with local affairs. Furthermore, when they attempt to write a tax bill for the District, they are handicapped, as Senator McGrath says, by "too many inhibitions based on the situation in our States or cities which may or may not have application here." Put less diplomatically, tax legislation suited to the District's needs is stymied by the opposition of Congressmen who are more concerned about the effect of their votes on the people in their home districts than about the consequences to the District. The financial plight of the local government is, therefore, the strongest possible argument for passage of home-rule legislation that would enable District residents to decide for themselves how to raise the revenue required to cover the cost of essential municipal services.

The Open Door

It has finally been decided to grant visas to 7 Russians and 15 others behind the Iron Curtain who desire to take part in a "Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace" in New York City. Apparently the decision had to be taken up to the very top of the State and Justice Departments, which have joint responsibility in questionable cases. And these cases certainly are questionable. The performance of some of these same representatives at a similar conference in Poland last August suggests that they have little interest in furthering the New York conference's avowed purpose of promoting "world peace with reestablishment of American-Soviet understanding and cooperation." The unbridled hate-mongering they let loose against the United States last year made the Wroclaw meeting the very caricature of a "peace conference."

We have little doubt the same performance will take place in New York, and we are continually surprised at the naivete—if it is that—of the American sponsors in pursuing this rudely unrequited courtship of cultural exchange. It will be interesting to see what line the Yugoslav delegation takes—five are coming—but for the rest a prediction is fairly easy. The Cominform group is not, to be exact, interested in scientific truth, non-Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist culture, or peaceful accommodation.

Little if anything will be accomplished, therefore, by admitting these people. But much would be lost by barring them. An iron curtain is the last thing we want around the United States—and the last thing we need. Those who would erect an intellectual wall have a strangely faint faith in the strength of American institutions and ideals. We find it absurd to suppose that the ranting of these self-winding marionettes will undermine the security of the United States in the least. If anything, their visit to this country may be an eye-opener for them. It is certainly no threat to us.

The Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange, set up under the Smith-Mundt Act, had something to say on this point in its recent semiannual report to Congress. It proposed that, with precautionary measures to guard against the entry of trained subversives, the door to exchange of information through reciprocal visits, should be kept open. "To cut off contacts with the totalitarian nations of the world because of fears as to what might happen to democratic institutions through such contacts would imply a weakness which has no justification in fact. No army ever burned its bridges except in retreat. The democratic way of life is not now in retreat."

Proxy Parenthood

Recent debates in Britain's House of Lords over test-tube babies emphasize how artificial insemination is increasingly posing legal and moral questions. The debates developed over a court ruling that a child conceived by this procedure was illegitimate. The lords were especially concerned over the possibility of individual action on a wholesale basis with resultant future intermarriage of persons having the same father. Some demanded a law against the practice, others maintained this would merely drive it underground as well as "shock many persons."

Some time ago a ruling in this country from a New York State Supreme Justice held that a test-tube child was legitimate if conceived with the consent of the foster father—the husband of the child's mother. The justice maintained that the "propriety" of the practice was in the field of sociology, morals and religion. The Archbishop of Canterbury speaking in the House of Lords denounced artificial insemination as "contrary to Christian standards." The Catholic Church has forbidden it as "adultery," other religious bodies in this country have, so far as is known, taken no stand on it.

Medical authorities report that artificial insemination is growing—it is estimated that at least 20,000 children in this country were conceived by test-tube procedure. Since about 1 in every 10 marriages is childless, and since many couples are desperately eager for children, the pressure for this answer to sterility is increasing. At the same time, science is holding out more hope to childless couples as research develops and extends even into the psychosomatic field. The increase of fertility clinics, some connected with hospitals, and the specialization of doctors in this work have cut down within the last quarter century the proposition of involuntary childless couples.

It is thus possible that science will be able to offer an alternative to the widespread legal and biological confusion that would accompany proxy parenthood on a mass scale.

Fierlinger's Freedom

Mr. Stewart Alsop, in his letter of March 11, suggests that I ask Mr. Fierlinger (Vice Premier of Czechoslovakia) a few questions. I am perfectly willing, but the questions must be less irresponsible and more logical than those Mr. Alsop thought up only to abandon them immediately by declaring that he knew the answers beforehand and knew even that they would be untrue.

Using Mr. Alsop's method, I could suggest that you ask him whether he appropriated for himself silver spoons of Prague's Hotel Ambassador during his stay and that you take his certainly forthcoming resounding no for a yes.

The whole purpose of Mr. Alsop's question and answer game is of course to cover up the fact that he was caught redhanded in the act of slanderous fabrication when he wrote that Mr. Fierlinger was in jail facing a treason trial. If Mr. Alsop would be more interested in bona fide reporting than in fabricating sensations, he could have easily checked upon his phony "entirely reliable intelligence report" by phoning the U. S. Embassy or any one of the score American correspondents in Prague. His subsequent attempt to smear Mr. Fierlinger's record of trustworthiness, coming from so notoriously untrustworthy and fabrication-minded a columnist as Mr. Alsop, is too cheap to be answered.

DR. F. C. WEISKOPF,
Minister Plenipotentiary,

Washington.

Since the column to which Dr. Weiskopf objected appeared, more details have become available on the status of Mr. Fierlinger. He was very recently held and questioned over a period of several days on charges of deviationism and disloyalty to the Czech dictatorship.

He has since written a document intended to disprove the charges against him, and to prove his allegiance to the regime which he helped to bring into existence by his agile subservience, as a so-called "Socialist," to the Communists. He has been notified that he must appear very shortly to defend this record, and to submit to further questioning by a committee of top Communists.

Dr. Weiskopf should know the difficulty of proving what transpires behind the curtain of secrecy in a police state. But the above information comes from sources a great deal more reliable than Mr. Fierlinger or Dr. Weiskopf. STEWART ALSOP.

Paternalism

It behooves someone to attempt to define and analyze "paternalism" As I see it, the word is a term applied to the belief of those who think that the Government should direct and protect its people. Its intent, however, is to castigate those people advocating such doctrines.

The trend of mankind has always been toward leisure time and an easier life. Let us recognize this trend as existing. It cannot be disgraceful to want for an easier life. As a matter of fact the same people who will most frequently use the word disparagingly will be the very ones who are engaged in business making and selling those products which foster the easier life. It is strange they should fear the thing they foster. What they are in fact asking is that we entrust our economy to their hands so we don't have to worry about it—in other words, "Papa knows best"—and they want to be "papa." That is paternalism!

At least we could democratically choose our governmental pater. What is more, we could control him. If we didn't like him we could throw him out of the house and get a new one. To claim that the people would live off the Government is utter nonsense, for it can be no better, wealthier nor more powerful than the people make it. Its own life depends upon the wealth, happiness and security of its people.

Vaccination Danger

I read with interest the letter in your issue of March 15, "Value of Vivisection." I can only answer the part of the letter referring to smallpox and diphtheria. Prompt isolation and sanitation are the only measures that have reduced those diseases.

James Gordon Cumming, M.D., in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, March 4, 1922) writes: "The eradication of diphtheria will not come through the serum treatment of patients, by the immunization of the well, or through the accurate clinical and laboratory diagnosis of the case and carrier followed by quarantine rather it will be attained through the mass sanitary protection of the populace subconsciously practiced by the people at all times."

The British Ministry of Health has recently repealed the Compulsory Vaccination Acts, as they were spreading hundreds of cases of encephalitis. Vaccination was not compulsory in the British Army during this last war, as many vaccinated soldiers died of smallpox in Egypt, China and India.

The allopathic school of medicine has been infecting people with filth from diseased animals for over a century, and is now wondering where diphtheria, tuberculosis and cancer are coming from!

Cleveland's Secret

On March 11, I noted a letter signed "Historicus" that alluded to an article in The Washington Post of March 7, revealing the "secret" of Mr. Cleveland's operation while President.

As a matter of fact, the Saturday Evening Post published in 1915 a series of articles, three, as I remember it, by Dr. Jefferson McKean of Philadelphia, dealing with the whole matter very fully. So far as I know this was the first revelation of a very remarkable incident, not the least interesting element of which was the successful keeping of the secret so long. The author stated (or perhaps it was the editor) that the revelation was by permission of Mrs. Cleveland at the earlier date.

No Flags Available

In the past month I have been unable to buy an American flag. The source from whom I usually purchase them were unable to supply me. Then, to my amazement, four other dealers failed to have them.

Is there no demand any more for the American flag?

Room For DPs

The February 22 letter from F. S. Wilson on the "Danger of DPs" voices again all of the fears which have been refuted time and again.

The letter states that the United States already "has more than its optimum population." This seems rather incredible in face of the fact that Americans are better fed and clothed today than at any previous period in our history—and this while a substantial part of our production is being shipped abroad to help less fortunate people.

Mr. Wilson went on to say "our country has never been able to weld itself into a homogeneous Nation because of the constant influx of 'isms' which have come with every generation of foreigners." Hitler came to this same conclusion, with disastrous results.

The greatness of America stems from the fact that our population is a homogeneous whole welded from people of all races and nationalities.

If, as Mr. Wilson says of the DPs, "the United States owes them nothing," perhaps we do owe something to ourselves—our self-respect.

U. S. Films Abroad

The other night I felt embarrassed at being an American citizen. I saw the motion picture "For the Love of Mary" in a theater in Bogota, Colombia.

The motivations, situations, and solutions of the film are all so utterly unreal as to convert the probable original intention of its makers to show the high public servants of our country as warm human beings into a successful job of displaying them as ridiculous fools.

When such perversions of the facts and of the art of film-production as "For the Love of Mary" find their way into areas of the world where they can do irreparable damage to the reputation of our country, play into the hands of our enemies, and intensify the very misunderstanding which the United States Government and certain American individuals are desperately trying to combat, immediate and drastic action becomes mandatory.

For a long time we have had a film censorship office operating in the United States. This office, headed by Mr. Eric Johnston, concerns itself with upholding minimum standards of morals and ethics in American films. The fact that this office is in operation eliminates the argument against censorship in principle. There is, therefore, no valid objection that can be brought against the establishment of an additional office of censorship to control exports of films. Its criteria would have to be: verisimilitude insofar as actual persons and situations in the United States are concerned; the ordinary garden variety of tact—both toward the United States, and toward the world abroad, and appropriateness of American films as reflectors of the American way of life.

Whidden Family

The story of the Whidden family is typical of the economic situation of thousands of our best citizens. Situations which should not exist in any country which hopes to completely defeat all forms of totalitarianism.

I trust the Washington newspapers will open up the hearts of their readers by soliciting funds for this family. An appreciation of God and Lent ought to be our inspiration.

Prosperity Aid —Eat More

By Malvina Lindsay

Farmers' Helpers

THE PROPOSED "eat more" program for Americans as a means of preventing a farm depression brings at first thought some weird visions. One sees the already overstuffed American woman—who on an average carries 133 pounds for her 5 feet 3 inches—gorging herself with more chicken patties and cocktail canapes. One sees children downing even more ice cream cones, lollipops and pretzels; men of widening girth ordering more pieces of glazed pie at drug store lunch counters.

Then unless one is a humanity insulated me-firster he likely has a disturbing mind's eye glimpse of some of the cadaverous, perpetually hungry hordes in other parts of the world.

Yet the increased food consumption program that the National Planning Association's Agriculture Committee is urging is not so fatuous and selfish, nor so simple of execution as a mere loading up of everyone's stomach. It is aimed at better eating by the Nation's underfed, and more intelligent eating by the Nation's overstuffed. It also suggests that some American surpluses could be judiciously used in danger spots of the world to "buy time while folks are working for peace."

THE DAY of farm surpluses which everyone has been dreading looms nearer as European production increases. Because of the dollar shortage abroad the main hope for continued prosperity of American farmers—who to a large degree determine everyone's prosperity—lies in more and different food consumption in this country. Otherwise farmers may cut production, and planned scarcity may put the country back on a prewar diet.

In fact, inflated living costs have already been driving many families in that direction. For as incomes fall in buying value, families tend to drop many of the needed protective foods. The American diet of both lower and middle income groups remains especially weak in calcium products, in green vegetables, citrus fruits and tomatoes. Some nutritionists believe a higher calorie intake if chosen judiciously, would give increased vigor to most people.

More knowledge of food values could bring increased consumption of foods as money for it could be spent to go further. Yet housewives remain generally ignorant of nutrition, a Department of Agriculture survey shows, being chiefly interested in new recipes.

One of the suggestions of the National Planning Association's Agriculture Committee is a national effort on a big scale to educate consumers in nutrition. The committee also urges increased efficiency in marketing to cut costs of distribution, and shifts in farm production toward protective foods and away from those in oversupply in this country.

THERE remains the big problem of how to get more food on the tables of underfed families who cannot afford to purchase what they need—such as the 29.8 per cent whose incomes range from $500 to $1999 a year, as recently reported to the Housing Subcommittee of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The National Planning Association's committee suggests Federal aid to supplement diets of low-paid workers who are inadequately fed, citing specifically the Federal school lunch program which, it says, is now conducted on an experimental basis. It also refers to the food stamp plan of 1939-43.

If the farm surplus problem increases we are likely to hear again of the Agriculture Department's long-range ever-normal diet program, which apparently has been on ice the last two years. This was in effect a plan to let the consumer in on farmers' subsidies. It would put a floor under consumption by helping families and individuals, possibly by a system of food tickets, to stretch their incomes to meet their dietary needs. At the same time it would guarantee farmers a market and encourage them to increase rather than curtail production.

Axis Sally

Is then the "American Way of Life" so spineless? We are fearful Americans will forswear it at the urge of a misguided woman speaking over a German radio.

What a spectacle for the world and the ages! A great Nation quakes in the wind of a woman's voice! Atomic warfare? Pouff. Germ warfare? Pouff again. Axis Sally? Now there's something terrifying. Why not engage her to teach "our girls" how to charm Russian doughboys over the air and terrify Stalin. DON QUIXOTE.

Bock Beer

Referring to your news story of March 14, which was supposed to enlighten some people about the word "bock" in bock beer, I was surprised that your information was so limited.

The word goat stands for the German word "Ziege," which might be any variety, the ordinary milk goat or an Angora, etc. However, the word "bock" specifies the male of any of these breeds; therefore any imposing looking male goat (bock) is used without error to advertise the beer with the kick of a bock behind it. A Communication

Northwest Feeling On The Columbia Valley

By Rep. Hugh Mitchell

Congressman from Washington

Mr. Tom Humphrey's lengthy article "'TVA-Type' Proposal for Northwest Marshals Formidable Array of Foes," published in your issue of March 13, merits a reply. Mr. Humphrey writes with the heavy hand of bias against a Columbia Valley Authority. As associate editor of the editorial page of the Oregon Journal, Portland, he comes to his task with the preconceived editorial opposition characterizing that paper. By his own assertion that the newspapers of the Northwest do not favor a CVA, it can be inferred that he fancies himself one of the "formidable array of foes."

Mr. Humphrey tries to convey the impression that except for myself and a little band of CVA advocates, the weight of Northwest opinions is heavily on the other side. He passes over quickly, with disparaging remarks, groups or persons known to favor CVA and devotes the greater part of his extended article to quoting CVA opponents and presenting their arguments.

By using this technique in reverse, had he been so minded, Mr. Humphrey could just as easily have described CVA's "formidable array of friends." The point is that Mr. Humphrey is using your newspaper to editorialize against CVA rather than to write a balanced and responsible report of developments in the Pacific Northwest attending the proposed legislation. Avowed and bitter enemies of CVA are already giving Mr. Humphrey's article considerable publicity.

WIDESPREAD support for a CVA by Northwest farmer and labor organizations is dismissed by Mr. Humphrey in these slighting words "Grange Masters of Oregon and Washington, who will buy anything with a public power label on it, are whooping it up. Several labor leaders have climbed on the bandwagon."

To put the facts in better perspective, it should be noted that Grange and labor leaders have given long and careful study to CVA legislation. The League for CVA, which has been in existence since 1945, when I first sponsored CVA legislation in the United States Senate, includes among its officers and directors representatives of the Washington and Oregon State Granges, Washington and Idaho State Federations of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Oregon, Idaho and Montana Farmers' Unions. Upwards of a million persons are represented in these organizations.

MR. HUMPHREY writes that "approximately 100 agricultural, industrial and promotion groups" in the Pacific Northwest are opposed to CVA and later cites as the authority for this statement the Pacific Northwest Development Association of Portland, Oreg. That organization is dedicated primarily to fighting CVA and so the reliability of its assertion should be suspect from the start.

Some weeks ago the association released to the local press a story that 75 organizations were opposed to CVA, a few of which were listed in the news account. A Spokane resident, who was acquainted with the manager of one of the business groups mentioned in the news story, called him on the telephone and discovered this interesting fact: the listing of his organization as opposed to CVA had never been authorized. This manager, a responsible business executive, did not oppose CVA in principle, although he had some idea of his own about the composition of the CVA board.

From personal knowledge I can say that many businessmen of the Northwest are positively interested in CVA legislation, particularly those in smaller businesses that look to CVA for technological assistance. The more progressive chambers of commerce in the region do not go along with the staid and stuffy leadership of the older groups in a few cities.

Whatever the extent of the business opposition cited by Mr. Humphrey, certainly more careful inquiry and evidence are needed than an unverified and one-sided report of the Pacific Northwest Development Association.

MR. HUMPHREY writes that "Every major newspaper and more than 85 per cent of all newspapers in Oregon, Washington and Idaho are on record against CVA, strong as they are for development of the Columbia Basin." Even if this be true, editorial opinion is not a very good index to the views of the average citizen, as our recent experience in a national election so convincingly demonstrates.

That the more conservative dailies of the Pacific Northwest editorial-wise are sadly behind public thinking is generally well known. The Seattle Times is one of the largest in this class. A typical Seattle Times anti-CVA editorial under the horrific title "Grasping Tentacles of a Valley Authority" turns out to be an abridgement and rehash, with only minor changes in wording, of a statement in a brochure distributed by P. L. Smith, high-paid lobbyist for the National Association of Electric Companies. There are sufficient reasons to believe that the views of the private power lobby, no matter how well received by some editorial writers, are quite unacceptable to the majority of citizens in the Pacific Northwest.

Actually the newspapers of the Northwest are not so adamantly opposed to CVA as Mr. Humphrey tries to make out. The Seattle Times in its better moments, the Portland Oregonian, and other papers, daily or weekly, large or small, have called attention to the need for a more efficient and more comprehensive program of Columbia River development. The Wenatchee World, under the direction of Rufus Woods, has long been a pioneer in this field. Doubts or reservations on particular points of proposed CVA legislation, expressed by some newspapers, are not the same as the blind and die-hard opposition which characterizes papers Like the Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Mr. Humphrey also stretches the point when he places municipal power agencies, including Tacoma and Seattle City Light, into the category of "strongly opposed." These municipal agencies which have a long and outstanding record of performance in the public power field, naturally want to know how they will fare under CVA and they have raised pertinent questions. Full protection of municipal power interests will be provided in CVA legislation.

OF THE seven Governors in States involved in the Columbia Basin, Mr. Humphrey identifies five on record in opposition to valley authorities, but he omits to mention the relevant fact that four of these five are Republicans. The intemperate haste with which the Republican Governors of the Northwest States greeted President Truman's CVA proposal suggests the narrow partisan character of their opposition.

Governor Langlie of Washington, for example, had pledged in his opening message to the newly-assembled State Legislature "to examine, critically, any proposed Federal legislation which would subject our power and irrigation resources to further national control," but a few hours after the President's announcement calling upon executive agencies to draft new CVA legislation, Governor Langlie expressed his unqualified (and uncritical) opposition.

The Republican Governors of Oregon and Idaho also made immediate protest. Subsequently, when aides of the President went to the Northwest to confer with the League for CVA on positive legislative recommendations, Langlie complained with ill-grace that he had not been consulted. Other opponents of CVA took up the hue and cry. It is obvious that Langlie & Co. are attempting to make a partisan issue of a proposal that has adherents and advocates in both parties.

Adding up his "formidable array of foes," comprised mainly of Republican State and congressional leaders, the more conservative newspapers and business groups and private power companies, Mr. Humphrey concludes that "most of the people of the Pacific Northwest" reject the CVA method of regional development. This is a curious kind of arithmetic. More suggestive is the vote of 71 to 26 by which the newly-elected House of Representatives in the State of Washington passed a memorial endorsing CVA. I daresay this comes closer to portraying public sentiment in the Northwest than Mr. Humphrey's "formidable array of foes."

Survey Shows Magnitude Of Arms Race

By R. H. Shackford

London, March 18 (U.P.)—If another war should start, it would find both East and West in the midst of the biggest armaments race in peacetime history.

Its magnitude was disclosed today by a United Press survey of East-versus-West military strength as the Atlantic Pact was completed.

The pact will bind some 4,600,000 armed men to the Western allies into a single force facing some 4,900,000 Russian and satellite troops.

The line-up puts 15 countries with a total population of 371,832,000 on the side of the West. Russia has seven countries with a total population of 255,354,000.

Russia Stronger by Land

The Western line-up includes not only members of the Atlantic pact but those other nations—Greece and Turkey, for example—closely linked with the West.

Lined up with Russia are the powerful Communist parties in Europe and elsewhere, all of which have declared they would fight on the side of the Soviet.

The massive war machine of Russia and her satellites is concentrated in a solid bloc in central Europe between the Baltic and Black Seas. The Western allies are spread out over vast areas of the globe, separated by oceans.

Russia has more land power, but the West excels in air and sea power. Faced with this condition, Russia has placed her faith in the German strategy—a powerful underseas fleet to cut sea lines of communications.

In this armaments race, the West is spending more than 20 billion dollars annually. Russia is spending more than 10.

Communists Urge Parley Of All Germans

Berlin, March 18 (AP).—Communists attempted today to capitalize on German nationalistic sentiment by proposing an all-German conference on problems of the divided nation.

The proposal, advanced at a meeting of the eastern German "People's Council," was accompanied by obvious nationalistic hints. The Communists called for open defiance of the western occupation powers, if necessary.

Western German political leaders indicated they will reject the feeler.

The new Communist propaganda line runs like this: If all Germany can be unified in the Communist-controlled state being prepared for eastern Germany, the Soviet Union will withdraw Russian occupation forces. Ultimately, the Communists say, this will make Germany "free."

Proposed for Brunswick

William Pieck, cochairman of the Communist Social Unity Party (SED), proposed that western German leaders and Communists from eastern Germany meet April 8 in the British zone city of Brunswick.

The "People's Council" indorsed Pieck's idea and voted invitations to western German officials, including the German leaders at Bonn who are drafting a constitution for the west German state.

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, president of the Bonn Constituent Assembly and a Christian Democrat, said he regarded the proposed conference "as without purpose and as being aimed to confuse the situation."

The 400-member council was summoned to Berlin by the Communists to adopt a constitution for eastern Germany as a counter to the charter being prepared at Bonn. Action on the eastern constitution is expected Saturday.

Rise in Smuggling Noted

The U. S. Military Government said increased attempts at smuggling, particularly of industrial equipment, showed how the Western Allies' counter-blockade is pinching the Russian occupation zone.

At Bonn the Western German constitution makers were believed to have paved the way for a reconciliation of German wishes with American, British and French recommendations for the future western German government.

A seven-man German parliamentary commission met with the advisors of the three Allied military governors and submitted the Bonn council's counterproposals. Theophil Kaufmann, a Christian Democratic leader, said later he believed there will be "no further fundamental difficulties."

High ranking Americans gave a cold reception to a French suggestion that the United States and France swap parts of their occupation zones.

Such a trade would put the French in charge of all Baden and the Americans in charge of all Wurttemberg. American sources said the swap would benefit only the French.

German residents of western Berlin were interested in the prospect of an impending currency change. Newspapers reported the western sectors of the city would be placed on west marks only at the close of business Saturday.

Have We Won the Battle Of Steel Production?

Does the January price break in steel scrap—from $43 to $40.50 per ton—mean our present steel plants are now meeting demand? For an expert answer The Washington Post put that question to Herbert G. Moulton, distinguished industrial consultant.

Mr. Moulton's appraisal of steel developments appears tomorrow in a special Section II story. In this timely analysis he explains some of steel's particular problems and estimates the future trend in the production situation. It's good reading Sunday in

Calling Washington

Florida As A Yardstick

WINTER PARK, FLA.—When you take a local plane from Miami to almost any other point in Florida, you are likely to see a lot of this State. It is the modern equivalent of the slow train through Arkansas — the milk run with a stop and a friendly exchange of mail and passengers wherever there seems to be a convenient airstrip.

Childs

In coming here from Key West, I changed planes once at Miami and then we stopped at West Palm Beach, Fort Myers, St. Petersburg, Tampa and Lakeland before putting down at Orlando, which is the airport for all this rich mid-Florida region. We went up and down with such frequency that I may even have left out a stop or two.

It gives you a chance to see the extraordinary development of this State. North from Miami you fly over mile after mile of hotels, beach clubs, tourist courts, private homes, all shining and white in the sun.

Then on the west coast the pattern is repeated. Spreading out from the Tampa Bay area are more miles and miles of beach resorts, pleasure-domes magnificent and humble.

Most of these hotels and houses are occupied for less than half the year. That is a measure of the wealth of this country. This vast investment is dedicated to winter vacations or to the winter homes of those who retire to live out quiet lives under the sun.

NOR IS it dedicated entirely to the decadent rich, as the Moscow radio would put it. The motel, the drive-in, the hamburger stand, have made a Florida vacation available to income groups pretty far down the line.

Nothing quite like it ever has been seen before. On the shore of the Black Sea in Russia the Czar and a few of the members of his court had winter pleasure palaces before 1917. Those palaces, or what is left of them, are now available to a very few of the top elite in the Soviet hierarchy when they are in need of a rest cure.

The existence of this fabulous winter playground doesn't prove, as sometimes has been said, that all's right with our world on a new acme of perfection. It doesn't help families doubled up in small apartments in the overcrowded cities of the North to know that a small percentage of the population can take a refresher in the South. It doesn't even solve the problem of Florida's own poverty and substandard-living on leached-out soil.

But what it does prove—as though any proof were needed—is that this country is capable of doing anything it sets out to do. We have the means but we are incredibly behindhand in finding new ways to employ the Nation's resources to the full. While that was possible in an all-out shooting war, there are many who have begun to shake their heads gloomily and mutter about inventories piling up and lists of the unemployed growing.

It sounds almost as though they wanted to bring about the very thing they profess to dread. They seem to have no faith in the system to which they give lip service.

TO PERMIT anything like a depression in this country would be the kind of folly that in the history of the dead civilizations of the past has borne the label sulcidal. Millions of families need decent houses; millions of children need decent schools and decently paid teachers.

Even the political means are at hand in the kind of low-cost housing bill that both major political parties profess to be for. A measure to lift the lowest level of education has similar support. Yet Congress is stalled on a dead center of inaction and embittered futility.

The prophets of gloom find little to support their depression in Florida. It seems to be generally agreed that the winter season has been good, although almost everyone adds that money was not spent as freely as during the past four or five winters.

Those years of the postwar boom could not continue. They were part of an unnatural, unhealthy period when black-market spenders helped to boost inflation. We are still suffering from the evils coming out of that time.

Getting down off that dangerous peak of inflation without a fall is certainly not easy. But with a little common sense and good management by business and Government, it should be possible to come to rest on a plateau of high income and high consumption that will mean the fullest use of the Nation's power and resources.

48 Nations Reach Agreement On World Wheat Pact Terms

By John W. Ball

Post Reporter

A world wheat agreement, excluding Russia, was virtually assured yesterday when 43 wheat-buying nations agreed to a contract with the remaining five wheat exporters, headed by the United States, Canada and Australia.

Russia dramatically pulled out of the 2-month-old negotiations when her demand for a 75-million-bushel export share in any agreement was refused. She was offered an allocation of 50 million bushels. Her original demand had been for 100 million—or one fifth of the total.

The importing nations, in consenting to the change, trimmed the quantity of the agreement from 500 million to 450 million bushels. They also insisted that the United States, Canada and Australia permit France and Uruguay, both minor exporters, to share in the exports. France has offered 3,700,000 bushels for export; Uruguay half that amount.

Differs From Last Year

The new agreement differs from the one that the United States, Canada and Australia signed last year with 33 importing nations—a contract refused by the Congress—as follows:

1. This year the quantity the importers agree to buy is only 450 million; last year it was 500 million. (Each of the three sellers will be cut slightly more than 10 per cent. This would give the United States sales totaling about 166 million bushels instead of 180 as guaranteed in the 1948 agreement; Canada about 206 instead of 230 million; and Australia about 76 instead of 85 million.)

2. The maximum price will be $1.80 instead of $2 last year.

3. The minimum price will be the same as in 1948—$1.50 the first year, $1.40 the second, $1.30 the third and $1.20 the fourth year.

4. The contract will run for four years instead of five.

The new agreement is expected to be received more favorably in Congress than the previous pact. It already has been blessed by President Truman.

Importers Cut Purchases

Several importing nations cut the amounts they had previously agreed to buy, when Russia pulled out. They explained they already have barter contracts for Russian wheat in exchange for goods they have for export.

Observers pointed out that this indicates that Russia is already cutting into the world wheat market. Russia's total wheat exports last year were estimated by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization at about 36 million bushels, and the year before at only eight million.

In order to complete the negotiations that have been underway steadily since January 26, the delegates will meet today and Sunday, in preparation for a plenary session at least by Monday. Formal signing of the agreement is planned for Wednesday.

The agreement would set up a World Wheat Council—the forerunner of what many delegates hope would be a series of similar multilateral commodity agreements.

Trade Fair Bar For Ex-Nazis

Frankfurt, Germany, March 18 (U.P.).—An Anglo-American screening board has blackballed 101 former Nazi German businessmen who wanted to go to New York to take part in a German trade fair, Allied investigators said today.

No. 1 victim of Gen. Lucius D. Clay's "keep-the-Nazis-home" policy was architect Peter Pixis, chief planner of the exposition.

Pixis was bounced personally by Clay over the protests of W. John Logan, New York businessman, who heads the three-power joint Export-Import Agency (JEIA) supervising arrangements.

Pixis, Allied records show, was a member of the Nazi Party and of its architects association from 1933 until the end of the war.

The fair will be April 9-24 at Rockefeller Center.

Truman Gets Radar Bill

The Senate yestercay completed congressional approval of a bill to provide a radar network as a defense against possible attack by enemy aircraft.

The measure now goes to President Truman.

Only Thursday an Air Force general told the Senate Armed Services Committee that the warning system was of "great urgency and importance."

"We know of no effective defense of any sort against attack from the air without such a system," Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville testified.

The Senate approved the bill without debate.

The radar fence will be linked with a similar network in Canada.

Initial expenditures are limited to 85 billion dollars, although the ultimate cost is expected to be 161 billion dollars.

Action Demanded Against Sun Fo

Nanking, China, March 18 (U.P.).—The Control Yuan—a "watchdog" division of the government with powers of audit and impeachment—today demanded legal prosecution of outgoing Premier Sun Fo for alleged misappropriation of public funds.

The Control Yuan also demanded that Acting President Li Tsung-jen take severe disciplinary measures against the retiring premier, son of the founder of the Chinese republic.

The demands were contained in a censure resolution released today. The resolution charged Sun had written a check on the Central Bank of China for 110 million gold yuan dollars (about $2,500,000 U. S.) for "secret expenses."

The resolution said the money was deposited in the China Industrial Bank to the account of Sun's son, Sun Chih-ping. It said the money was drawn out and passed to a number of privately owned money houses.

The resolution asked that Li take steps to get Sun Fo to return the money.

Reports said a 10-man committee headed by Sun Fo had completed the Nationalist answer to Communist leader Mao Tze-tung's eight-point peace demands.

China's legislators worked to tighten up the loose government structure with reorganization of the legislative Yuan (parliament) and provincial governments and reduction of the armed forces to only 2,500,000 men. Earlier the legislators trimmed the cabinet from 18 portfolios to 10.

London Hears

Government Of Burma Grows Shaky

London, March 18 (U.P.).—Rebel forces, with virtually all of Burma in their hands, today control the road to Mandalay, and the old Moulmein pagoda of Kipling's poem is ringed with barbed wire and machinegun emplacements.

The fall of Rangoon, capital of Burma, is believed only a matter of time.

Reports reaching London say government authority has dwindled so much in the face of Karen advances that its troops control only a 10-mile radius of Rangoon.

London believes that without immediate and substantial outside assistance, the government of Burma faces complete collapse.

Five rival factions are at war. They are the Red Flag Communists, an outlaw party opposing the Anglo-Burmese treaty of friendship; the White Flag Communists, the official Communist Party; the White and Yellow Band parties, militant nationalists (the White and Yellow band split and both factions now oppose the government independently); the Kachin and Chin Hill tribes, whose treatment as minorities caused their allegiance to the government to waver; the non-Burmese element, particularly the Karens, who have been described officially as "Britain's most loyal allies in Asia."

Acheson Talks on China Before Senate Group

Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson discussed the China situation with Senate Foreign Relations Committee members yesterday.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said afterward that "I couldn't say he had any program."

Acheson was called before the committee on a bill for $1,500,000,000 in additional U. S. military, civilian and currency stabilization aid for the Chinese Nationalist government.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), is backed by 50 Senators who asked early consideration by the committee.

Connally said that the meeting with Acheson was "sort of exploring the outer edges." His committee will hear Maj. Gen. David Barr, just returned from duty as head of the U. S. military mission to China, on Tuesday.

Israel Peace With Lebanon Expected Soon

Rhodes, March 18 (A.P.).—United Nations Mediator Ralph J. Bunche said tonight he expects an armistice between Israel and Lebanon to be signed "in a couple of days." Negotiations have been going on since March 1.

Chief Israeli Delegate Reuven Shiloah said the only problem was disposition of Iraqui troops now stationed north of Jerusalem. There are from 5000 to 15,000 of these under command of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion.

Earlier today at Tel Aviv an Israeli army spokesman said the main snag holding up an agreement with Trans-Jordan was the presence of British troops at Aqaba.

In London the British Foreign Office disclosed that Britain has added six million dollars to her eight million dollar annual subsidy to Trans-Jordan's Arab Legion. The reasons for the increase were not given officially.

Yemen Halts Jews Going Into Aden

Aden, March 18 (U.P.).—King Imam of Yemen, in response to a British appeal, today forbade Yemenite Jews to leave for the Crown Colony of Aden and warned that any caught in an attempt to flee will be sternly punished.

With hundreds of Yemen Jews converging on this overcrowded port city in the hopes of getting to Israel, Sir Reginald Champion, Governor of Aden, asked Yemen's Imam Syf Al-Islam Ahmad to halt all immigration.

British officials feared a recurrence of the bloody 1947 Arab-Jewish riots. Police had to rescue two American Jews, Charles Malmuth and Gerald Malmed, both of New York, last week from Arabs stoning them. They were not hurt.

A British spokesman described the situation as "explosive." It is estimated that nearly 5000 Yemenite Jews have been evacuated in the last three months by planes of the American-Jewish Joint Distribution Committee. Aden's Jews, anxious lest they become victims of Arab violence, also are asking to be flown to Israel.

Might Consider Regional Pact, Israeli Declares

Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett of Israel yesterday indicated his country might consider joining a Mediterranean pact under stipulated conditions.

The treaty, he told a press conference, would have to be drafted "within the framework of the United Nations and not directed against any member of the United Nations."

"It would be a question for us to consider if we run the risk of any attack," Sharett said at the Israel Embassy, 2210 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Such a pact was recently proposed by the foreign ministers of Greece and Turkey. However, Great Britain and the United States indicated they were not presently interested.

Judge Warns Red Case Jury To Stay Calm

New York, March 18 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina told jurors in the trial of 11 high United States Communists today that they should report to him if any stranger attempted to discuss the case with them.

Court met only briefly for Medina to give instructions to the 12 jurors and 4 alternates whose selection was completed yesterday.

The judge urged the 11 women and 5 men to be patient and open-minded throughout the expected lengthy trial.

"Justice," he said, "does not flourish amid emotional excitement and stress but amid calm and serenity of mind."

Medina reminded the jurors he had warned them before against reading about the case in newspapers or other publications, listening to broadcasts about it, or discussing it with anyone.

"If someone approaches you," he told them, "you must say quietly, 'I must not discuss the case at all.' Do not permit anyone to discuss this case with you in any manner, shape or form, and if someone presses you to talk, particularly a stranger, remember you may always report to me anything you feel I ought to know."

Medina reserved decision until Monday on two new motions by the defense seeking to throw out the indictment or delay the trial.

One motion asked dismissal of the indictment on the ground there had been a concerted effort by various Government agencies, as well as various private organizations and individuals, o prejudice a fair trial.

Export Bank Grants Israel New $5,000,000 Credit

The Government-owned Export-Import Bank yesterday made its third loan to Israel since January 19. This was a five-million-dollar credit for use in a low-cost housing program on the outskirts of Haifa and Tel Aviv.

It brought to 46 million dollars the total released to the new Jewish state in the last two months. The Bank has set aside 54 million dollars additional for industrial, construction, transportation and communication projects in Israel.

The new five-million-dollar credit is to be used to buy structural steel, timber, construction equipment and household fixtures in this country for completion of the Israeli housing project.

The Bank said Israeli authorities have agreed to supplement this credit with at least 15 million dollars in local funds.

Research Is Aim

Science Unit Bill Passed By Senate

The Senate yesterday approved a bill to establish a national science foundation which would develop scientific research for national defense and in medicine, engineering and other sciences.

As sent to the House, it calls for a foundation of 24 members from the fields of basic science, medicine, engineering, education or public affairs. Members and a director would be named by the President.

The Senate Labor Committee approved the bill after witnesses testified that the Nation is faced by a serious shortage of scientists, as well as training facilities.

Committee members said the bill removes objections which President Truman made when he vetoed a similar measure in August, 1947.

At that time, Mr. Truman called for a foundation established "in accordance with sound principles of administration and with the recognized democratic controls that should characterize all our public institutions."

He said the 1947 bill failed to do this because it provided for selection of a director by the foundation's members instead of by the President himself.

The foundaton would have power to grant scholarships and graduate fellowships and encourage the exchange of scientific information with foreign scientists.

U. S. Aide's Discharge Confirmed

The discharge "on loyalty grounds" of Miss Dorothy Bailey, $8000-a-year Government employment consultant, was confirmed by the Federal Loyalty Review Board last night.

The board, headed by Attorney Seth Richardson, abruptly turned down a request by Paul Porter, attorney for Miss Bailey, for a public hearing into charges against her, on reinstatement in her job.

Miss Bailey, a former member of the executive board of the CIO United Public Workers Union, was summarily fired a month ago after having been suspended last November. According to both Miss Bailey and her lawyer, the board has refused to give any specific reason for her "immediate dismissal."

Porter declared that he would take the case into Federal District Court next week. Although the board has taken several similar actions against other Government employes, no court test of its authority has yet been made.

Meanwhile, the House Un-American Activities Committee announced tentative hearings for April 18. The subject of its investigation was not revealed by Chairman John Wood (D., Ga.). The announcement came after a two-hour closed session of the committee.

"About five or six witnesses will be called," Wood said. He also announced that the committee will soon publish a new pamphlet entitled "Spotlight on Spies." The committee recently has been showing keen interest in the Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, a foreign-language group.

Observers Injured In Indonesian Ambush

Batavia, Java (Saturday) March 19 (U.P.).—Two United Nations military observers, an American and a Briton, were wounded when Indonesians ambushed a Dutch land convoy, a U.N. spokesman announced early today.

The American was identified as Maj. J. A. Simmons of Montclair, N. J. He was said to have been slightly wounded. The British observer, Lieut. Col. H. D. Chaplin, was reported wounded six times.

Other reports said a Dutch officer in the convoy, Lieut. J. Voorst Tot Voorst, was gravely wounded. All three men were reported rushed to a hospital in Medan.

FCC Defers Hearing on News Handling

By The Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday postponed indefinitely a West Coast hearing on the handling of news by radio stations controlled by G. A. Richards of Los Angeles.

The FCC acted after Richards offered to surrender his voting control in KMPC at Los Angeles, WJR at Detroit, and WGAR at Cleveland.

Burton K. Wheeler, Richards' attorney, wrote the commission that the proposed hearings on alleged "news slanting" would "imperil Mr. Richards' life" in view of an acute heart ailment.

Wheeler wrote that within the next 30 days Richards will formally ask FCC to transfer the voting control of his stock in the three corporations, "thereby relieving him of any further duties or responsibilities toward them."

The FCC, in putting off the hearing scheduled to start at Los Angeles March 23, stipulated that the application for transfer of control must be filed here before April 18.

Richards denied knowledge of any slanting in newscasts over his stations, but said he desired to admit some "errors."

The case grew out of a complaint against newscasts on KMPC by the American Jewish Congress and the Radio News Club of Hollywood. The news club contended that KMPC employes had been directed to present newscasts to reflect Richards' point of view.

Although no charges were made against WJR and WGAR, the FCC included them in the investigation.

Briton Warns Argentina on Meat Costs

London, March 18 (A.P.).—Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross said tonight Britain would not allow herself to be "held to ransom" by Argentina in the meat crisis.

British and Argentine negotiators currently are meeting in Buenos Aires to write a new meat agreement. The present pact ends March 31.

A Board of Trade spokesman denied that Britain was paying the equivalent of about 11 cents a pound for Argentine meat compared to more than 27 cents paid by other countries.

Britain bought 9,022,917 hundredweight of Argentine beef in 1948 at a total of 36,463,991 pounds ($145,855,964).

The President told reporters he felt his "Fair Deal" legislative program eventually would be adopted by Congress despite early reverses.

Mr. Truman, asked if he thought his legislative program was in the hands of a three-party Congress, said there had been three parties in the country ever since the campaign. He described these as Democrat, Republican and Dixiecrat. He said he did not consider the Dixiecrats good Democrats. Asked about the Progressive Party, under whose banner Henry A. Wallace campaigned for the Presidency, Mr. Truman said that party had died with Senator Robert A. LaFollette.

Silent on Wallgren

Questions about his loss of the civil rights filibuster fight, rejection of his nomination of former Gov. Mon C. Wallgren as chairman of the National Security Resources Board by a Senate committee and Senate-House disagreement on his rent control bill brought no rise from him. He made the point that this was a new Congress, that it had some difficulty getting started because of the inauguration ceremony, but that he felt that most of its members were fundamentally all right.

The President said he had read the draft of the North Atlantic security pact and the speech with which Secretary of State Acheson would announce it. He indicated that both had his approval.

Later in the day Mr. Truman personally handed diplomas to 20 graduates of the fleet sonar school here and told them in a brief address that their studies of underwater sound "may be a contributing factor toward the peace of the world."

Tax Rate Hike To $2 Seen in Prince Georges

A tax increase from $1.97 to around $2 per $100 assessed valuation in fiscal 1949 was indicated yesterday for residents of Prince Georges County.

At the conclusion of a closed, day-long budget session, Harry W. McNamee, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, announced the county heads are "trying to keep the tax rate around $2."

McNamee also announced that a public hearing would be held on the proposed county budget at 10 a. m. March 31 at the County Courthouse in Upper Marlboro. Details of the budget, he said, would not be revealed before then.

Chairman McNamee told reporters further budget discussion will be held Tuesday at the Commissioners' regular meeting. He explained that the amount of the budget would not be known until the State's contribution to the county was learned.

Asked when that would be, he replied, "That's the $64 question."

Whatever the State's share is, Prince Georges County will have a greater revenue from its own sources in fiscal 1949 than heretofore. The county's assessed valuation has jumped to $193,571,060, according to Linden Briscoe, clerk to the commissioners. Last year it was $155,895,570.

Based on the $1.97 tax rate, the county operated on $3,070,278, with $631,966 added to this from surplus funds and anticipated receipts.

Democrats Alter Policy

out the coalition in full cry, may be held up for awhile until the Democrats have had a chance to show something like unity on several less controversial measures.

ECA Bill Booked

Following rent control, the ECA bill, facing an April 3 deadline, has been tentatively booked. Here most Southern Democrats see eye to eye with the Administration and Republicans won't make any party line fight.

The two-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act may follow. Here Democrats are pretty much united against a sure Republican drive to limit Mr. Truman's tariff-making power.

Before grappling with another party schism on the labor bill, the leadership may try to sandwich in the long range housing bill, which has previously passed the Senate by good bipartisan margins, and the new 300 million dollar Federal aid to education bill, in which the South is deeply interested.

Aside from rent control, on which anything could happen, the Administration therefore has a chance to make a moderate showing on some Truman measures and at least partially heal cloture-fight wounds.

Threat Always Present

But a coalition threat on side issues is always present, with marginal Democratic desertion enough to bring it into play.

For example, the first deficiency bill to be reported out of the Senate Appropriations Committee today, could fire up the rebellion again. A subcommittee provision again ties engineering strings to continuance in Office of Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus. Funds in this bill for a TVA steam plant could also touch off a fight.

A solid indication that leading Southerners and Administration leaders are at least trying to get together came when a meeting of the Senate Democratic policy committee was scheduled for Tuesday. This group, including Dixie members as well as Northern and Western Democrats, hasn't met at all during the cloture fight. During this period, Administration Democrats from the North and West, meeting periodically with Lucas, have directed strategy. The policy committee call indicates at least an attempt to work together as a party.

Expects "Substantial" Support

Senator Lucas meanwhile told newsmen:

"I have every reason to believe that a great majority of our Southern members will be with us on a substantial part of the President's program."

There was an echoing statement from Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), who has worked closely with the Administration in the past. Sparkman denied the rent-control bill was a "coalition" product and said:

"I predict we will be working in harness together on most of the program."

Senate Banking Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), said there certainly won't be any Southern "filibuster" on the rent-control bill, "and I don't expect any on the Republican side." He said he thought the bill could be passed in two days.

In a Senate speech, however, Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) accused the coalition of "playing politics" with rent control. Morse warned that talk of a permanent GOP-Southern coalition "can do great damage to the Republican Party" and urged Republicans not to join in agreements on legislation with Southerners.

Incorrect Tax Levy Held Reason for $45,000 Loss

An incorrect tax levy by the Prince Georges County Commissioners has cost the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission about $45,000, it was charged yesterday.

Irwin I. Main, chairman of the MNCPPC, said the commissioners had collected only 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation in the "metropolitan district"—the area close to the District of Columbia—where they should have had an 8 cents per $100 return.

At the same time, Main revealed, property owners in the outlying "regional district" also were charged 5 cents per $100 where their levy should have been 3 cents.

To the commission chairman's assertions, Harry W. McNamee, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, had only a terse, "I'm not saying whether it's true or not."

A law passed in a special session of the Maryland General Assembly in 1947 directed the commissioners to collect, in addition to 3 cents per $100 for administrative purposes, another 5 cents from metropolitan district residents in 1948.

Linden Briscoe, clerk to the commissioners, explained that the MNCPPC failed to make written request for an additional 5 cents per $100 levy. In April, 1948, however, he said, the county heads decided themselves to peg the rate at 5 cents straight for residents of metropolitan and regional districts alike.

In July of last year, Briscoe added, Main appeared before the commissioners to ask for the original 3-cent levy plus the new authorized 5-cent levy set up by the General Assembly.

Main admitted yesterday that no written request had been made for the levy. He said that he had talked with the commissioners "several times" to straighten the matter out. He added that the matter will be solved shortly.

Exactly how much the commission has been underpaid cannot be determined until the assessable basis of the metropolitan and regional districts is surveyed, Main said.

Gridiron Club Willed Paper

accept the bequest is a question still to be answered.

If it accepts, the income from the paper will have to be used exclusively for "educational and charitable purpose," according to terms of the will.

If it does not accept, the paper would be sold and the proceeds divided as follows: Thirty per cent to Mrs. Dorothy M. Cone Brown, assistant secretary-treasurer of the Journal; 20 per cent to Leroy Whitman, editor of the Journal and a former member of the staff of The Washington Post, and the remainder, in equal shares, to Villanova College in Pennsylvania and Norwich University in Vermont "for the advancement of education in journalism."

Colonel O'Laughlin held an honorary degree from Villanova. He was much interested in Norwich University, which prepares young men for a military career.

Richard L. Wilson, Washington correspondent of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and the Minneapolis Star-Journal and Tribune, now president of the Gridiron Club, was one of a small group who knew about Colonel O'Laughlin's intentions.

"It was an extremely generous thing for Cal to do," Wilson said. "He was very proud of the Journal and also of his membership in the Gridiron Club. He wanted to merge the two upon his death."

The Army and Navy Journal was conceived by patriotic societies in New York and Philadelphia during the Civil War. These societies thought that such a publication was needed to help the morale of the Union troops. The paper was launched in 1863, not long after the battle of Gettysburg, its first proprietor and editor being Col. W. C. Church, an experienced newspaperman.

Wilson said he would call a meeting of the Gridiron Club for next week to consider the bequest of Colonel O'Laughlin. Under the terms of the will, stock in the Journal is left to the members of the executive committee and their successors in office.

Committee Members

Members of the executive committee, besides President Wilson, are Thomas L. Stokes, vice president, United Features Syndicate; Paul R. Leach, secretary, the Knight Newspapers; Walker S. Buel, treasurer, the Cleveland Plain Dealer; Lewis G. Wood, historian, the New York Times; James L. Wright, the Buffalo Evening News; Lyle C. Wilson, Washington manager for the United Press, and James T. Berryman, of the Washington Star.

Wilson said that the matter would come before a full gathering of the Gridiron Club at its next regular meeting in the Statler, which is scheduled for the second Saturday in April.

Colonel O'Laughlin, in his will, gave the club 270 days in which to make a decision. Presumably, he had taken into account the possibility that his death might come in the summer months, a period when the club does not meet.

He and the late Mrs. O'Laughlin had no children, and had long considered the idea of leaving the paper to the Gridiron Club. Mrs. O'Laughlin died on Christmas Eve, 1947. Her will provided that if she survived her husband, the stock in the paper which she would have inherited would, upon her death, go to the club under similar terms.

Colonel O'Laughlin's will was filed in District Court yesterday by Attorney Joseph P. Tumulty, jr. He and Joseph H. Himes were named as executors of the will, and O'Laughlin expressly directed that "no bond or other security" should be required of them.

In bequeathing stock in the Journal to members of the executive committee of the Gridiron Club and their successors, Colonel O'Laughlin stated that they, as trustees, should apply the income from the paper to "such educational or charitable purposes as the trustees may from time to select."

He mentioned specifically help to needy journalists "and/or their dependents, preference being given to needy members, active, associate or limited, of the . . . Gridiron Club . . . and/or their dependents, and needy widows or minor children of any deceased member of said club."

Col. O'Laughlin directed that if the Gridiron Club takes over the Journal, steps be taken by the trustees to enter into a contract with Mr. Brown and Editor Whitman for their continued employment at the compensation they were receiving on October 1, 1947. He also directed that, upon their retirement, they will receive a life pension of $100 a week.

He made these additional bequests from that part of his fortune not connected with the Journal stock: Mrs. Brown, $20,000; Mr. Whitman, $10,000; Hamilton Clipper, $2500; May Clipper, $2500.

The remainder, including such of these legacies as might lapse, would go in equal shares to the Army Relief Society, the Navy Relief Society and the Air Force Aid Society, all of this city.

Commission For Playhouse At Hyattsville

Remodeling of Hyattsville's old Arcade Theater into a playhouse has been approved by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

A building permit was issued Thursday by Perce L. Wolfe, Prince Georges County building inspector for the MNCPPC. The theater, now condemned, is leased by the National Repertory Co., Inc., which proposes to operate it on a nonsegregated basis.

According to Robert V. Viner, who drew up the remodeling plans, the changes will conform not only to the MNCPPC's building code but also to Hyattsville.

Plans call for a 400-seat theater—present capacity is about 550—with a fly-type asbestos curtain and two additional fire exits. The stage is to be extended 8 feet forward and two dressing rooms built, one on each side of the stage.

The building is to be repainted and redecorated and the lighting system completely overhauled, Viner said. Estimated cost was put at about $10,000.

A spokesman for the National Repertory Theater announced "We're all set to go ahead" on the project. He added, however, that work will not begin until sanctioned by the Hyattsville City Council.

The spokesman said the playhouse would be ready to open by April 15 if permission is given by the council. Price of tickets would range from $1.20 to $3.60, he said, with legitimate productions to be presented by guest stars around a nucleus of local actors.

Hyattsville city council is expected to determine at its meeting Monday night whether the proposed alterations will conform to its building code.

Lodge Asks Probe Of Army Engineers Lobbying Charge

A congressional investigation of reports that Army engineers are "lobbying" or bringing "pressure" on Congress was urged in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) said in a floor speech he has evidence that the Corps of Army Engineers and its civilian employes are engaged in a "pressure campaign" to prevent transfer of their activities to other agencies.

Lodge said the Army Engineers are seeking exemption from any powers granted President Truman to reorganize the Federal Government.

The Hoover Commission, making Government reorganization studies for Congress, has urged the vast civilian river and harbor works handled by the engineers be turned over to the Interior Department.

Australian Court Rules For Indonesian Family

Melbourne, March 18 (A.P.).—Mrs. Annie O'Keefe and her eight children, all Indonesians, will not have to leave Australia.

The high court of Australia ruled yesterday that the country's so-called white Australia law, which bars Asiatics, does not apply in her case.

Mrs. O'Keefe, widow of an Ambonese war hero, and her children were permitted in the country temporarily in 1942 as war refugees. She later married John O'Keefe, an Australian.

Recently Immigration Minister Arthur A. Caldwell ordered her and the children deported. The high court overruled this order, finding that Mrs. O'Keefe never became a migrant and therefore was not covered by provisions of the immigration act.

Banker Gets 3 Years For Embezzlement

2-Year Probation

Meyers Aide Sentence Suspended

Bleriot H. Lamarre, who pleaded guilty to lying to a Senate Committee about his relations with Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers' wartime contracting deals, received a suspended sentence of one to three years yesterday.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff, who handed down the sentence, placed him on two years probation.

Grinning broadly, Lamarre said, as he waited outside the probation office, that he planned to stay in Dayton, Ohio, where he now has a job in the order department of a branch of the Standard Oil Co.

Lamarre had testified a year ago that he had served as "dummy" president of Meyers' Aviation Electric Co. and had lied to the Senate War Investigating Committee about Meyers' dealings as a war contractor after Meyers told him to do so.

Meyers is serving a 20 months to 5 years sentence for inducing Lamarre to commit perjury.

Baltimore, March 18 (AP).—John Benjamin Holliday, jr., 49-year-old former vice president and treasurer of the Annapolis Banking and Trust Company, today was sentenced to three years in Federal prison for embezzlement and manipulation of bank accounts.

Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut commented that people in Annapolis seemed to have no great objectoin to Holliday's misappropriations, but that public interest requires he serve a prison sentence.

Holliday was charged formally with taking the proceeds of two railroad bonds at the time of their redemption and with manipulating accounts in two instances. The offenses were in 1946.

U. S. District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn told Jduge Chesnut that the shortages totaled about $11,000, counting some additional items on which Holliday was not indicted.

Several persons from Annapolis made pleas that Holliday be shown leniency and put on probation.

Judge Chestnut then noted that the Anne Arundel County Grand Jury had never acted in the case and commented on the attitude in Annapolis.

Holliday, who has been working for a utility firm since leaving the bank, was represented by O. Bowie Duckett.

2d Sales Tax Test Sought

the District personal income tax and extending the levy to persons here who do not pay now.

Two Methods Considered

Members voiced belief a new test of the District sales tax in the House could come in either of two ways:

1. Another sales tax bill could be presented to the House by its District Committee with enough changes to justify calling it a different bill than the one on which the House voted Monday.

2. A substitute revenue program could be presented and in the House a sales tax amendment could be offered in place of the substitute.

Three important factors were pointing toward another early test in the House on the sales tax:

1. The pay raise bill for District employes.

Further Cuts in Prospect

2. The prospect of further cuts in the already scanty District budget figures for the year starting July 1.

3. The bill of Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the Senate District Committee, to balance the budget and finance the pay boosts by a Federal contribution for one year up to $30,600,000.

Economy-minded House members have made clear they don't like the looks of the McGrath picture. There is, however, some support for an increase in the present 12-million-dollar annual Federal lump-sum payment to the District.

Representative Smith, who heads the House subcommittee in charge of District tax measures, told reporters he expects to have an announcement to make on the revenue question Monday. Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.), sponsor of the bill to give a $330 annual retroactive pay boost to District police, firemen and teachers, said he hopes for action on the measure at the District committee meeting next week.

Chairman McMillan said if the revenue issue is decided by the committee, the pay bill may be taken up.

Directed Verdict Frees Defendant Of Manslaughter

A directed verdict of acquittal yesterday freed Leroy Brown, 25, of 1230 Oates st. ne., of a charge of manslaughter in the death of James H. Butler, 34, of 730 Newton pl. nw.

Butler was killed last October 17 when he was stabbed in the neck with a knife during an argument over using a telephone in a gasoline service station at 21st st. and Benning rd. ne. Brown was arrested a month later in connection with Butler's death.

The directed verdict was granted at a District Court jury trial by Judge James W. Morris on the motion of defense attorneys Maurice Weeks and Curtis P. Mitchell, made as soon as the Government rested its case.

Bill Asks Two Judges for D. C. Juvenile Court

A bill to staff Washington's Juvenile Court with two judges was submitted to the Senate District Committee yesterday by the District Bar Association.

The court now has one judge. District Bar Association President Lowry N. Coe said the bill would provide a chief judge and an associate judge, each appointed for 10-year terms. He said the present term is six years.

Judge Nadine L. Gallagher is now serving on the Juvenile Court bench. She was assigned there from her regular duties at Municipal Court in January when Juvenile Court Judge Fay L. Bentley voluntarily entered St. Elizabeths Hospital for treatment of a "nervous involvement," aftermath of a traffic accident in 1946.

Ex-Handyman Is Charged

A former handyman in the home of W. Walton Butterworth, director of Far Eastern Affairs for the State Department, yesterday was held for grand jury action in the theft of an $8000 diamond bracelet and other jewelry from Butterworth's home.

He is Prince Albert Shannon, 29, of no fixed address, who was arrested Wednesday night on a warrant in Waldorf, Md. He is charged with housebreaking and grand larceny.

Two other men, William Harris, 34, of 510 Lamont st. nw., arrested Thursday, and James W. Gilbert, 42, of 10 Quincy pl. ne., arrested yesterday, also were held for grand jury action on charges of receiving the stolen jewelry from Shannon. Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott set bond at $5000 each for the three men.

Theft of the jewelry was discovered by Butterworth February 27, when he and his family returned to their home at 2305 Bancroft pl. nw., after a weekend in the country.

Police said they found Shannon's fingerprints on the case from which the loot had been taken. Shannon also had sold a watch, one of the items taken, they said.

Detective Sergt. Ben Clark of the general assignment squad, said he found the rest of the jewelry, except the bracelet, in a sewer near Gilbert's home.

World Relief Goal Set at $10,000,000

Ten million dollars in one hour is the goal of a Nationwide offering for world relief to be taken in 76,000 churches on Sunday, March 27.

Church-goers are being asked to listen to a broadcast on "One Great Hour" at 10 p. m. March 26 over CBS, ABC, and MBS networks and to go to their own churches the following day and give liberally for world relief.

Robert Sherwood is directing the writing of the "One Great Hour" script, which will feature widely-known artists and actors and will tell of the need for overseas aid. At the end of the broadcast, President Truman will urge support for the appeal.

Funds raised through the simultaneous offerings will be administered though the regular overseas relief and rehabilitation channels of each denomination.

The Washington Federation of Churches, the Ministerial Union and the Presbytery of Washington City have endorsed the program. In many of the churches there will be special prayers and sermons for world relief on March 27.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, has asked that Episcopal churches in the diocese read a special prayor for world relief Sunday and again on March 27. The prayer asks God to "save us from the sin of futile sorrow which only sees but does not act . . ."

"Move us and all Christian people of this land to give generously for the relief of our stricken brethren in our lands. Open our eyes, we beseech Thee, to the pitiful brokenness of Thine earth-wide family, our ears to the unspoken cries of the impoverished and enslaved, and our hearts to understand the needs of all Thy children," the prayer says.

New Plans for Historic Christ Church . . .

Milton L. Grigg, Architect

PROPOSED PARISH HALL—Architect's drawing of new $192,000 parish hall to be erected by Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria. Parish hall is on the left and the church on the right. The arcade and relic house will not be rected now

Christ Church to Open Drive Sunday for Parish Hall Fund

Historic Christ Church, Alexandria, Va., Sunday will launch a drive for $192,000 for a new memorial parish hall.

The parish hall, to be erected on the site of the first parish building at the southeast corner of the church property on Washington st., will be a memorial to all members of the parish since 1767.

George Washington was a vestryman of the parish when the church was built. Robert E. Lee was confirmed there. President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill worshiped together in the church in 1942.

This is the first time in 96 years that the church has endeavored to raise a building fund for its own use. Several chapels, now independent churches, have been aided by Christ Church.

Gardner L. Boothe, senior warden, is chaiman of the fund-raising drive. The Rev. B. B. Comer Lile, rector, and the Rev. O. V. T. Chamberlain, assistant rector, members of the vestry and representatives of parish organizations will assist in the drive.

Plans for the original vestry house were made in 1766, the year before the church was erected. In 1822 a two-story brick library and Sunday school was built on the site of the proposed new parish hall.

The present parish hall was erected in 1854, using some of the material from the 1822 building. This building will not be torn down, but will be used in addition to the new building.

The parish hall, designed by Milton Griggs of Charlottesville, will be erected at some distance from the church but the style will harmonize with that of the older building.

Eight classrooms, a women's lounge and church offices will be on the first floor. On the second floor an auditorium seating 1350 will be built, with a kitchen near it. For banquets, the auditorium can be converted into a dining room for 250.

In the basement there will be space for Boy Scout quarters, young people's activities, a small kitchen, three classrooms and storage space.

Because of large attendance at morning services, Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pls. se., this week will launch an 8:30 a. m. service. The church will celebrate its 39th anniversary with special services and a tea for members from 4 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Auxiliary Officer Plan Explained

How to add 50 policemen to a city's force at a minimum cost was described here yesterday by Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh.

The mayor told the National Committee for Traffic Safety that Pittsburgh trained 180 women to act as school crossing guards, thereby relieving 50 men for other duties. The women wear uniforms, are paid $70 a month, have civil service status, are trained for their job and have full police authority to make arrests.

Most of the women guards, the mayor told a reporter, are housewives who live near the schools and many have children at the schools where they work. They work only at school opening and closing hours and at the lunch hour during school months.

This program was one of many considered by the safety officials at a Statler Hotel gathering preparatory to the President's Highway Safety Conference here in June.

The committee released a statement on drunk driving, urging "greater use of scientific tests for intoxication as being the surest means of convicting the guilty and protecting the innocent in those cases subject to legal action."

Evangelism Drive To Start Sunday In 21 Churches

Twenty-one Disciples of Christ Churches in Greater Washington will launch a week-long visitation evangelism drive Sunday.

The campaign is part of a Nationwide "Crusade for a Christian World" being conducted by the denomination. Now in its second year, the crusade has as one of its objectives the enlistment of 900,000 new members before the end of 1950.

Four hundred workers from Greater Washington congregations will meet at 3 p. m. Sunday at Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne., for instruction. The Rev. Lyle V. Newman of Indianapolis, Ind., who is directing the local campaign, will be the speaker. He is national director of city evangelism of the Disciples of Christ.

Monday through Thursday Disciples ministers will meet at 10:30 a. m. at Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park rd., nw. to discuss progress of the drive.

Ruling Fails To End Debate On Tag Sales

Controversy over who shall control sale of Arlington's new county license tags remained unsettled yesterday, despite a legal opinion by Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker.

Rucker's opinion, issued after County Treasurer John Locke Green contended he should have full control of the tag sales, held that the County Board has authority to perscribe the manner in which the tags shall be sold. It added, however, that the treasurer is "on sound ground when he insists that employes of his office shall collect the money."

Since collection of the funds is a function of his office, Green insisted he should have full jurisdiction over tag sale. Under the system set up by the County Board, however, the tags are sold at four points in the county by personnel classified as employes of the treasurer's office and the funds are turned over to the treasurer daily.

Rucker ruled that the license fees shall be "charged, imposed and assessed in such a manner, on such basis and for such periods as the county board may determine." The treasurer, he added, holds no jurisdiction over the "mechanics of the handling of the tags."

Following release of the attorney's opinion, Green termed is "confusing," and charged that it still had not settled the matter of "final responsibility" in the tag sale. He said he would ask Rucker to further clarify the law.

County Manager A. T. Lundberg, who acted as agent for the county board in setting up the tag sale offices, said, he was studying the opinion for "possible future action."

Vepco Cites Losses, Hints Rate Rise May Be Needed

Richmond, Va., March 18 (AP).—Continuation of rising operational costs may necessitate a request for increased rates, the Virginia Electric & Power Co. told its stockholders today.

In its annual report Vepco said 1948 operational costs were more than 50 million dollars—12.1 per cent above the 1947 figure. This boost was attributed to increased use of current by new and old customers.

However, the year's net income of slightly more than $5,800,000 was 14 per cent under the 1947 net. Vepco said this was due to a 22.9 per cent rise in total operation and maintenance expenses, caused largely by "the increased costs of coal, purchased power, and payroll."

The report listed net construction expenditures in 1948 of 28 million dollars, more than double the 1947 total, and added the company plans to spend about 80 million dollars for new facilities in 1949, 1950 and 1951.

Man Who Hid Weeks Removed From Hotel

Spring Valley, N. Y., March 18 (AP).—A nonpaying guest was flushed from his hiding place in a summer hotel today where police said he flourished for weeks, living on a diet of liquor and canned goods and shaving with vegetable soup.

Police identified the man as Robert Palloy, 49, of New York City, a former employe of the Bader Hotel at nearby Clarkstown which has been closed since last fall.

Boy Legislators Convene Today at College Park

More than 200 Maryland boy legislators will meet on the University of Maryland campus at College Park, Md., today to prepare for the sixth annual model legislature which meets April 21-23.

The young lawmakers are high school boys elected by their Hi-Y clubs to take part in the program sponsored by the YMCA to give youths training in government.

Bible Scrolls Authenticity Is Supported

Jerusalem, March 18 (AP).—A two-man scientific expedition to the Dead Sea has returned here with what they said was evidence the Jerusalem scrolls are the oldest known manuscripts of the Old Testament.

The world first learned of the scrolls when Syrian scholars called them to the attention of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem a year ago.

Discovery of the ancient leather-bound papyrus in a half-closed cave in August, 1947, has been described as "the greatest manuscript discovery in modern times."

A first estimate of their age placed them in the first century before Christ. They contain a commentary on the Book or Habakkuk, the complete text of the Book of Isaiah, and a manual of discipline for a Judaic sect.

The authenticity and age of the Jewish scrolls has been in doubt since their discovery.

Archeologists, including Dr. Oliver Sellers, director of the American school, and Gerald Lankester Harding, director of antiquities of Trans-Jordan, enlisted the aid of the Arab Legion in locating the cave where the manuscripts had been unearthed.

Later, Harding and Father de Vaux of the Dominican Bible School, Jerusalem, teamed to excavate further in the cave. They found old pottery bits and papyrus with ancient writing on them.

Sellers said: "The first excavation practically removes any doubt as to the genuineness of the manuscripts. In the second place, the pottery is overwhelmingly late Hellenic, evidently of the second or first century, B. C. This indicates that the rolls were deposited there in pottery jars at or about the time of the Maccabean War."

$1300 Lack In D. C. Guard Cut to $500

A reported property shortage of about $1300 in a District National Guard unit has been reduced to $500 through efforts of a former commander and his successor, Guard officials said yesterday.

They expressed belief that the shortage, which came to light in the change of command in Battery C, 340th Automatic Weapons Battalion, would be cleared up in the near future.

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general, said a survey will probably be made by the Second Army to determine responsibility for the equipment.

He said the officer who formerly commanded the battery failed to close out his property account correctly when a new officer took command. The former commander is now on active duty in the Army and will be required to account for the shortage, he said.

Zone Violation Brings Fine

Mrs. Maude K. Welsh, of 226 Cedar ave., Takoma Park, Md., was convicted in Silver Spring Police Court yesterday on a charge of violating county and town zoning laws.

Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee fined her $20 and costs.

Mrs. Welsh was charged with violating the law by converting her one-family, three-story dwelling into a three-apartment residence.

It was brought out that the first and second floor aparments are occupied by Mrs. Welsh's two sons and their families, and the third-floor apartment by a friend of the sons. Mrs. Welsh lives in another house on the same lot.

Defense Counsel Joseph B. Simpson, jr., contended that this group actually comprises one family. All use the same living room and dining room, he said.

Simpson also complained that Mrs. Welsh was being discriminated against since she is only one of many home owners in that area who have converted their homes.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 18.—Ed Robinson stepped into the batting cage for his turn, and Catcher Jake Early, perspiring behind his mask and protector, continued in good voice. "Hey, look who's here, The Body," falsettoed Jake as he croached behind the massive Robinson.

A new Washington pitcher was warming up, and the irrepressible Jake tabbed him. "Okay, Hose Nose, I'm ready," shouted Early. He has a name for everybody on the Washington club, anything but their right one. Usually Jake seizes upon their most prominent physical feature . . . Verily, he's a voice caricaturist.

POVICH

Robinson finished his three allotted swings, and Eddie Yost moved into the batting cage. "Hi Ya, Hands," was Early's greeting to the Nats' kid third baseman. "You'd even grab a check if somebody hit it on the gound."

"Hands" Yost is what Early named him, and that's what they call him now in the Washington camp. It's the players' tribute to the young man who was death on ground balls the last two seasons, and even with a .249 batting average is rated perhaps the most valuable guy on the Washington club.

AT 22, EDDIE YOST is in his sixth year as the property of the Washington club. He's one of the select few big leaguers who never played a game in the minors. The Nats signed him when he was 17, with no idea whatsoever that they had come up with one of the better third basemen in the league. That was excusable enough. Even around Orange, N. J., sandlots, he wasn't very famous.

Yost should have wound up with the Red Sox, though, not the Nats. He played a year at shortstop for New York University, whose coach, Bill McCarthy, was in the Red Sox scouting system. McCarthy sent him up to Fenway Park for a tryout in 1944 after school ended. He stayed in Boston two weeks, wore a Red Sox uniform, got into an exhibition game against an Army team, and when nobody took an interest in him he went home to South Ozone Park, N. Y.

Joe Cambria happened on him playing ball on the New Jersey sandlots and offered him a Washington contract, plus a couple of thousands for signing. Yost signed, only to learn that a scout from the Phillies had stopped by his house that morning with a better offer. He joined the Nats in Chicago, and played six games before the 1944 season ended.

HE DIDN'T GET his chance with the Nats until a doubleheader late in the season. Neither the Washington fans, Clark Griffith nor Manager Ossie Bluege could suffer the spectacle of Johnny Sullivan's errors any longer that day, so Yost went into the lineup in the second game. He didn't distinguish himself particularly and when the Navy got him at the end of the season there was no great sense of loss.

But during 1945 and 1946 the Washington club began to bear tales of a fine little infielder playing short and third for Navy teams at Bainbridge, Md., and Sampson, N. Y. They went up to scout him, and discovered they already owned him . . . Naturally he was invited back to the Nats' training camp in 1947.

Clark Griffith wanted to send him out to the minors for seasoning, but he was ham-strung with Commissioner Chandler strictly observing the G. I. bill of rights and demanding that all players must be given back their jobs for at least a year after getting out of service. Yost even made a special plea by letter to Chandler asking that the rule be broken in his favor so he could leave the Nats and get some minor league experience, but it was no dice.

CHANDLER was doing the Nats a favor it developed. Cecil Travis broke down early in the year, and Yost was the only available third-baseman. They let him try it. He was wonderful. The more they bunted on him, the farther he threw 'em out. Hard-hit ground balls were his dish. He didn't hit much, but he played third base something wonderful.

Late last season, he started to hit . . . Got his first home run of his career in Chicago 10 days before the season ended, and a bit later he got his second. A changed batting stance gave him more power. They think he'll hit .280 and a lot of extra-base hits this season.

Up at the plate he doesn't scare easily. He crowds it, the sign of an eager hitter. One of Bob Feller's fast balls almost sheared Yost's head off in 1947. Umpire Cal Hubbard, under the guise of dusting off the plate, whispered in Yost's ear, "Don't guess against this guy, Sonny. It ain't worth it." Yost thank him, but continued to crowd the plate. He thinks he's going to be a better hitter this year. "Or a better guesser, I don't care which," he says.

It Looks Like Caps-Philly In Playoffs

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

It looks like Washington against Philadelphia and Baltimore versus New York in the first round of the Eastern BAA playoffs starting Wednesday.

The Caps, who close out their regular season against second-place New York at Uline's tonight, clinched first place two weeks ago, but the Bullets and Warriors are in a neck-and-neck race for third place with the odds favoring Baltimore.

League Standings:

WESTERN DIVISION	W.	L.	Pct.
Rochester	45	13	.776
Minneapolis	41	16	.724
Chicago	27	22	.627
St. Louis	27	31	.466
Fort Wayne	22	36	.379
Indianapolis	18	42	.300
EASTERN DIVISION
WASHINGTON	38	21	.644
New York	31	27	.534
Philadelphia	28	30	.483
Baltimore	28	31	.475
Boston	24	35	.407
Providence	12	48	.200

Under league rules, the divisional playoffs open with the first-place team playing the fourth-place team in a two out-of-three-game series. And the second-place club plays a similar series against the third-place team.

Bullets Trail Phill,

Baltimore, only a half-game behind third-place Philadelphia, closes out its season tonight against ineffective Fort Wayne on the Bullet court while Philadelphia must play St. Louis tonight and Minneapolis tomorrow.

A Baltimore victory coupled with a Warrior split in its final two games would result in a tie for third place. But the Bullets would be awarded the berth by a special league ruling designed to dissolve the tie.

The ruling awards the place to the team which has a better record against the other in the event of a tie. The Bullets have won four of their six games from Philadelphia this season.

It is unlikely that Fort Wayne, the Western Division's fifth-place club, will whip the Bullets on the Baltimore court inasmuch as the Bullets have already beaten them three times this season. Another factor in Baltimore's favor is that Fort Wayne will be somewhat weary after an all-night train ride from Chicago, where they played Thursday night.

Caps Prefer Warriors

Philadelphia has had its troubles with the Bombers all season long. And even if the Warriors should win in St. Louis tonight, they can hardly be expected to jump over to Minneapolis the next evening and lick the Lakers, who are in no mood for a defeat after dropping their last two games.

The disconsolate Caps, who are without the services of the injured Bob Feerick and Fred Scolari for the jackpot series, undoubtedly would prefer the opposition to come from Philadelphia rather than Baltimore. They've broken even in six games with the Bullets this season, but have whipped the Warriors four out of six.

Over in the Western Division, everything is set for the playoffs. Rochester, the West's champs, tackles St. Louis while Minneapolis and Chicago square off in the opening rounds.

IT'S THE BABE—Babe Zaharias, who will be here for the National Celebrities Tournament, June 4-5, takes time out before teeing off in the second round of the Titleholders tournament at Augusta, Ga., to point to her first-day score of 73 which shared the lead with Dot Kielty. As it turned out she's a little early with her smile for a couple of hours later after bucking a pesky wind The Babe came in with an 81 which put her into a tie for third place

Throws Too Fast!

Fastballer Weik Is Kuhel's Big Hope asControl Improves

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 18.—Dick Weik, who never did bulk very big in the Nats' pitching plans despite his 6 feet 4 inches and 185 pounds, now is assuming more important stature.

All of a sudden, there is a new enthusiasm for Weik, who, though only 21, has been the Nats' property for five years. Most of the esteem for Weik stems from the fact that he throws the fastest ball of any Washington pitcher and of late has showed signs of being able to control it.

In his two exhibition-game outings, Weik has only walked two batters in six innings, and in batting practice there has been a wonderful complaint against him. He throws too fast.

Now Kuhel's Prize Pupil

Manager Joe Kuhel held a dim view of Weik last season. "He's too big and disorganized," said Kuhel. "His stride and delivery are off timing, and he has too many things to learn."

But at this time, Weik is Kuhel's prize pupil. The Nats' manager has taken over, himself, the job of showing Weik how to pitch. "The improvement is wonderful," said Kuhel, in semi-compliment to himself. "He was rocking back too far when he started his delivery and was off balance. Look at him now. He pitches from straight up, and he's even faster with his better control."

Kuhel's concern over Weik is natural enough. He's the only rookie in the crop, aside from Dick Welteroth, who even gives any promises of being a help to the Nats. And if Weik can establish control, Kuhel believes the club has come up with a whale of a pitcher.

Jack Onslow High on Him

They started him three times last year and he won one, lost two. That was after he came up from Chattanooga with a 7-11 record, after being troubled by wildness.

Weik, however, was troubled by a blistered finger at Chattanooga, he says. He struck out 12 men in one game, nevertheless, the season's high mark in the Southern League. Jack Onslow who moved up from Memphis to manage the Chicago White Sox called Weik "The best pitcher in the Southern Association.

Originally the Nats picked him up as an Iowa schoolboy

Middlecoff, Harrison Tie

Jacksonville, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Cary Middlecoff, hottest golfer on the tour, and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, blasted six under par 66's for the first-round lead of the Jacksonville Open today.

Middlecoff, the 29-year-old Memphis dentist who has finished first or second in the last four PGA tournaments, had 33—33 for an even round, while Harrison, veteran Arkansas traveler now playing out of Albuquerque, was out in 32 and back in 34.

The only short putt Middlecoff missed came on the 160-yard sixth where he was over par. He had eight birdies and was over regulation figures only on the short tenth and the sixth.

Dale Andresson, Glenview, Ill., pro, and former National Amateur Champion Skee Riegel of Tulsa, were one stroke behind the leaders, at 67.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the leading money winner of 1949, came to the eighteenth needing a birdie to tie for the lead. He went past with a chip shot, however, and finished with a four under par 68.

Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del., and Frank Kiraly of Johnstown, Pa., also were bracketed at 68.

The weather turned loose a warm brisk wind during the morning play, a series of showers in the afternoon and then served the late players with a chill breeze. In spite of this, it took a two under par 70 to be among the top 20 after the first round of the 72-hole event over the 6282-yard Brentwood Municipal course.

Thirty-two players were under par and 61 were at 71 or better.

Jimmy Demaret, the colorful Ojai, Calif., pro who is just behind Mangrum in money winning this year, was one of those at 74. Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, also was over par in his first day returning to the American tour. He had 73.

Oma Dropped, But Wins Fight

New York, March 18 (AP).—Dropped for a nine-count in the first round, Lee Oma, cocky Detroit veteran, came back to punch out a decisive, unanimous ten-round victory over Cuba's Omelio Agramonte in Madison Square Garden tonight. It was Oma's sixth straight victory in his current comeback campaign. Oma weighed 195½ and Agramonte 184.

Peggy Kirk, Dot Kirby Tie For Lead at 151

Augusta, Ga., March 18 (AP).—Dot Kirby, Peggy Kirk, Dot Kielty and Louise Suggs, took charge of the women's titleholders today in the second round.

Misses Kirby and Kirk shot par 75 rounds to take coownership of the lead with 151s. Stunt Flier Dot Kielty, who shared the first day lead with Babe Zaharias, blew to a 79 for a 36-hole total of 152.

Again Miss Kielty had to be content with a tie. Louise Suggs shot the best round of the tournament, a 72, to make up for a lot of the damage she did yesterday with a lofty 80.

Babe Slips to Third

The Babe slipped from a tie for first with a 73 to and 81 today. Her 154 total ranked her in a tie for third when the gallery expected her to have the tournament about sewed up.

On the other side of the 154 is Patty Berg of Minneapolis, Minn., the titleholder defending champion. Patty, who limps on a chronically sore heel, matched her 77 of yesterday for 154.

Two others are within catching-up distance of the leaders—Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., with a 155, and veteran Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., with 156. From there on the field is strung out from Eileen Stulb's 160 to Isabel Ogilvie's 183. Both Miss Stulb and Miss Ogilvie are from Augusta.

Heavy morning downpours and all-day junior gales bothered the golfers on the long 6627-yard Augusta Country Club course.

Wind Bothers Babe

Babe Zaharias suffered most from the wind among the old-timers. Her 81 is one of the highest scores she has shot in major competition. Both Miss Kirk, from Findlay, Ohio, and Miss Kirby, from Atlanta, had rounds of 76—75. In the first round they both shot 36—40.

Miss Kirk's round today included four birdies and Miss Kirby's three.

Sarasota, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Beaten earlier this week by the Boston Red Sox, the New York Yankees got superb pitching today from Vic Raschi and Lefty Tommy Byrne to blank the Sox, Joe McCarthy's crew, 5-0.

Meanwhile, New York slugged 15 assorted bingles off the delivery of Mel Parnell and John McCall, both lefthanders. George Stirnweiss, Jack Phillips and Johnny Lindell got three apiece.

Stirnweiss, whose triple in the second inning was the longest of the day, now has hit safety in all seven Yankee exhibition games with 11 safeties in 33 trips to the plate.

Celtics Down Knicks, 70-56

Boston, March 18 (AP).—The Boston Celtics made their last home start a winning one tonight by turning back the New York Knickerbockers, 70-56, before 1965, the smallest crowd of the season.

The game was close until the third period when Boston's "K-O Kids," Kaftan and O'Connell, blew it wide open. The former Holy Cross youngsters collected 20 points between them in the third and fourth frames and New York never could get back into the game. Kaftan captured the night's high honors with 24 points, while Gene James was tops for the Knicks with 11. New York led 29-27 at intermission.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 18 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox mauled New York Giants, 22-13, today in a game that draged for more than threehours.

The game produced 35 base knocks, three of them home runs.

Floyd Baker, third baseman, and the veteran Luke Appling drilled homers for the winners. Baker's circuit blow came with the bases loaded in the second inning off Larry Jensen.

Bob Thomson was the only Giant to hit a round tripper.

It was the third straight victory for the Redbirds.

Shelton's Shot in Last Seconds Gives Aggies, 40-39, Victory

Kansas City, March 18 (AP).—Jack Shelton's lay-in shot in the last four seconds gave the Oklahoma A. and M. Aggies a 40 to 39 victory over the Wyoming Cowboys in first round play of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Western Basketball playoffs tonight.

Oregon State won the second game of the night, 56-38, over the Arkansas and will meet Oklahoma A. and M. in the finals tomorrow.

A paid crowd of 9801 persons, a record for this meet, had just about given up on the Aggies when Shelton sneaked in the winning fielder. He got the ball on a pass under the basket from Gale McArthur.

The dramatic finish climaxed a rally of 1 minute and 40 seconds in which Shelton scored three field goals as the Aggies came from a 5-point deficit, 39-34.

Wyoming, which had made the Oklahomans look very feeble at times, slowed its pace with 11 minutes left in the game. At that time the Rocky Mountain team led 37-31. Wyoming held the ball for three and one half minutes at one stretch.

The Aggie cause looked hopeless with about three minutes remaining when they still trailed by five points. Twice they lost the ball on bad passes.

Fourteen seconds remained when Shelton got his second field goal to whittle the Wyoming lead to a single point, 39-38. A double foul was called on Shelton and Loy Doty of Wyoming. Both players missed their free throws. Oklahoma A & M called time out with a center jump coming up and 11 seconds remaining.

Bob Harris got the tip over Wyoming's Ronn Livingston and Joe Bradley captured the ball. He whipped it to McArthur who relayed it to Shelton for the clincher.

Presidents' Bobby Jones Has Strong Claim On National Record for 1000-Yard Run

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

GEORGE WASHINGTON HIGH's Bobby Jones may soon be recognized as the national interscholastic 1000-yard run record-holder.

The Alexandria boy's 2:17.5 time in that event at the North Carolina Southern Invitational three weeks ago was 1.7 seconds faster than the national mark set by Hugh Short of Hillside (N. J.) High seevn years ago.

Paul Fitzgibbons, G. W. High track coach, has sent a note to Dan Ferris of the National A. A. U., informing him of Jones' performance at Chapel Hill. Five timers certify that they clocked Jones' record performance.

Short, the present record holder, was a star on Georgetown University's track team last year.

HIGH SCHOOLS in suburban Maryland and Virginia yesterday were given the go-ahead to compete in Wilson's annual Metropolitan scholastic track meet in May. The National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, governing the neighboring States, had withheld its permission until the "C" Club meet was abandoned by the District schools Thursday . . . Announcement the other day that the Interhigh Football League will henceforth compete in two sections insures a championship playoff game next fall . . . and more money in the treasury. When Central finished unbeaten last fall, thus canceling a playoff game, it cost the Interhigh treasury a possible $15,000 profit. That's how much the league made on the championship game in 1946 and '47. The Washington Post, by the way, was the first to report the league's division, on last December 15, to be exact . . . Kappa Sigma Tau sorority crowns its "King of High School Sports" tonight at a dance at the Washington Hotel. Jack George of St. John's won the title last year.

MOUNT VERNON HIGH'S baseball park will be the scene of a Southern Conference college game April 8 when George Washington plays Furman in the afternoon. It's part of Alexandria's bicentennial celebration, and will be broadcast over WFAX . . . GW High, which has found night football so successful, will play all its baseball games at night this year for the first time. The Presidents will play at Alexandria's Municipal Stadium.

Runnerup for the State basketball title, the GW High basketball team is being given a merry whirl around Alexandria's banquet circuit. On Monday night, it's guest of honor of the Alexandria Sportsmen's Club at the George Mason Hotel. On Tuesday afternoon, the boys are feted by the Rotary Club. Jones Yells 'Yer Out!' —Then Reminisces

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (NYHT)., March 18.—From an open door under the grandstand at Al Lang Field came a familiar voice, full-bodied and carrying, with a shade-grown Carolina accent. The voice seemed to be crying, "Yer out'," which was natural enough, for the door led to the umpires' dressing room and it is well known that when umpires get together socially their small-talk consists chiefly of "Yer out," and "Streerike," and "That'll cost you fifty."

Red Smith

Three of the American League's practicing burglars were inside, waiting to work an exhibition game. Art Passarella and Jim Honochick, the former Temple football player who is a rookie in the big league this year, sat near the door already dressed in the dark attire favored by highwaymen and members of affiliated crafts to cloak their nefarious deeds.

Standing up in the rear of the room was big Red Jones, chic and fetching as a beer truck in his long underwear. Those were his dulcet tones that had come singing through the doorway.

Mr. Jones, who is certainly the most good-natured umpire unhung, cackled with glee, "Oh, did you hear me calling a guy out?" I was telling a story that Pat Mullin's father—you know young Pat, the Detroit outfielder—told me last night.

"SEEMS MR. MULLIN used to umpire in a sandlot league around Brownsville, Pa., I think it was. He said one day he called two beautiful strikes on a guy and both times he said strike, why, the hitter threw his bat straight up in the air. The old man was burned up, naturally.

"The third pitch was this far outside. Mr. Mullin didn't give any decision, just stood there. Finally the batter turns around.

"Well," he says, "I guess that's a strike, too, Hugh?' Telling me the story, the old man was talking real soft and gentle, chuckling a little. But now he roars like a lion.

"You guess right," he hollers. "Get outta here."

Mr. Jones slapped a thigh, savoring the tale in the retelling. It was pleasant in the little room, cool and shady on one of the hottest days of the spring. The umpires agreed that the weather right along had been just about perfect for working.

"Not like last year out in the Southwest," Mr. Jones said. "Wow, that sun in Tucson. Luke Appling, with the White Sox, was burned as black as that necktie you're wearing, Art. Remember?"

PASSARELLA NODDED and the big redhead chuckled.

"You know that thin black border that outlines the home plate, sort of makes a foundation. Well, Appling was hitting and Fritz Ostermueller eased up one of those little butterflies he throws. It just came jigging up and then ducked away like this, just barely getting a little piece of the plate. I called a strike.

"'Red,' Appling says, 'that ball didn't get no part of the plate.'

"'Tell him, Kluttzy,' I said—Clyde Kluttz was catching—'tell him, was that ball a strike?'

"'Maybe it got a piece of the black stuff,' Kluttz says.

"Did that set Luke off. You know how he can holler in that little high voice of his. 'See, Red, see?' he yells. 'That black stuff ain't part of the plate. See?'

"'The hell it ain't,' I told him. 'That black stuff on you is part of Appling, ain't it? The ball just got the skin of the plate.'"

Mr. Jones was under way now, settling into his best conversational stride.

"Mullin's father told me another last night," he said. "He was umpiring some place where they had a wooden plate, just three boards nailed together and not fastened down or anything. A runner would slide home and here'd go the plate flying off here.

"Well, Mr. Mullin calls a third strike on one guy and the hitter drops his bat and picks up the plate and bashes him over the head with it. I thought I'd heard everything, but this is the first umpire I ever heard got crowned with the home plate. So help me."

BCC Girls Win

Annapolis, March 18.—The State girls basketball title in Class A was won by Bethesda-Chevy Chase High here today with a 41-28 victory over Annapolis.

Jerry Welker, the Baronettes' ace scorer, turned in 25 points as her team wound up the season with a record of 12 victories in 13 games, the odd game a tie with Rockville.

Whelchel Asks Out of Navy

Kingston, Jamaica, March 18 (U.P.).—Rear Admiral J. E. Whelchel, Commander of Amphibious Group 4 in the United States Atlantic Fleet, today formally applied for his release from the Navy to enter professional football as coach of the Washington Redskins in the National League.

Evashevski Talks Job

Corvalis, Oreg., March 18 (U.P.).—Forrest Evashevski, Michigan State College backfield coach, conferred with Oregon State College officials today concerning the fotball coaching job made vacant by the recent resignation of Lon Stiner.

Californians Favored in Garden Test

New York, March 18 (AP).—In college the seniors are supposed to be the smart cookies, with much more brain power than the lower classmen because they've been there longer.

But here's San Francisco University and Loyola of Chicago in the finals of the National Invitation basketball tournament at Madison Garden tomorrow night. Both teams are packed with sophomores and juniors. Nary a senior is on either outfit.

The kids got there by consistently outsmarting, outscrapping, outshooting and outhustling the opposition. And they played taller teams all the way.

Dons Upset Dope

San Francisco wasn't supposed to beat Bowling Green last night, but the Dons hadn't heard about that. The smallest team in the tourney went out and scrambled the dope and the Bee-Gees from Ohio, 49-39.

Loyola, a beaten NIT finalist 10 years ago, also wouldn't be stopped in the St. Patrick's night semi-finals. Trailing at halftime, 22-31, the Chicagoans came back to hang it on Bradley, 55-50.

A standing room crowd of 18,301 whooped and hollered for the kids in the two upsets.

Another sell-out is expected tomorrow, and the betting gentry probably will make the San Francisco kids the favorites. This, if for nothing more than the persistent drive the Dons have displayed all through the tourney.

The California team has a push-shot expert named Don Lofgran who goes 6 inches over 6 feet, but the team's spirit is illustrated by a little 135-pound wildcat—René Herrerias.

Loyola Team Tall

Only 5 feet 9 inches Rene is the smallest field general in the tournament. He engineers things while Lofgran and others take care of most of the points.

The Loyola Ramblers, on the other hand, offer big Jack Kerris as their main hope to grab the honors they missed back in 1939. Another 6-foot, 6-inch competitor, Kerris also is in line for the "most valuable" award. The five-man tournament committee which makes the award probably will have to wait until the final buzzer this time.

Both San Francisco and Loyola disdain the fast break, and have reached the finals with a methodical, deliberate attack.

A consolation game between Bradley and Bowling Green is set for 8 p. m. with the main explosion at 9:45 p. m.

GW High, Bell Rifle Teams Win

Led by Darrell White and Milton Neitzey, each with a score of 263 out of a possible 300 points, Bell Vocational yesterday won a 1216-955 victory over Eastern High in an interhigh rifle match at the National Rifle Association range. The win was Bell's third in four matches.

On the George Washington High range, the Presidents, for the second time this reason, nosed out Washington-Lee High, 1328-1321. GW had previously defeated W.-L., 1327-1323. Danny Melican led GW with 237 points while Dick Johnson of Washington-Lee was high scorer for the day with 288 points out of a possible 300.

Team Age Averages 25 Years

Ambitious Phillies Are Talking Pennant For 1950 or '51 With Accent on Youth

(This is another in the series of articles about prospects of major league teams for the coming baseball season).

By Joe Reichler

Clearwater, Fla., March 17 (AP).—A new era has dawned on the once futile, forlorn Philadelphia Phillies.

Once, they were the flophouse of the majors, where aged and creaking veterans came to seek shelter on their way back to the minors or to retirement. The current Phils, however, are made up of eager, ambitious and hustling youngsters bent on bringing that long-awaited pennant to the City of Brotherly Love.

Not that there is pennant talk in this busy spring training camp. From Owner Bob Carpenter and Manager Eddie Sawyer down, the Phillies know that this is not the year.

"We're still a year or perhaps two away," Carpenter mused today. "But by 1950 or 1951, we're going to be the ones to beat for the National League flag."

"We're going to surprise a lot of people," predicted Schoolboy Rowe, giant 37-year-old right-hander and graybeard of the team.

"This is a fighting team that is going to be tough to beat," said Pitcher Hank Borowy, a new addition from the Chicago Cubs.

Sawyer, starting his first full season as a major league manager, makes no rash promises. It is no secret he will be keenly disappointed with anything lower than a first-division finish.

The Phillies are building on a solid foundation. Of the 31 players in camp, 19 are youngsters who never have played for anyone except the Phillies.

"Of these 14 are under 25 years of age. Our average age is 26, youngest in the league. They are the kids we are counting on to get us back in the basketball sun," Sawyer said.

Richie Ashburn, sensational freshman outfielder of last year, is only 22. Del Ennis, his hard-hitting outfield mate is 23. Gran Hamner, who dethroned the veteran Eddie Miller from regular shortstop berth, is 21. Curt Simmon and Robin Roberts, two of the most promising young pitchers, are 19 and 22, respectively.

The way things shape up now, Eddie Waitkus, asquired from the Cubs in a trade last December, will be the regular first baseman. Hamner will be at short and Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones, a 23-year-old graduate from Toronto, will start at third base. Second is a wide open affair with Robey Blattner, Ralph Caballero and Miller battling for the job.

Bill Nicholson, another former Bruin, will team up with Ashburn and Ennis to comprise the regular outfield. Veterans Andy Seminick, Hal Wagner and Ken Silvestri should handle the catching adequately.

Talbert Gains Third Round In Nationals

New York, March 18 (AP).—Billy Talbert pushed one jump ahead of the field today in the men's singles division of the National Indoor tennis championships.

The defending titlist from New York brushed past Bill Madamba of New York, 6—1, 6—3, in the only second round match on the program.

In women's singles, the first round was completed without a break in the seeded ranks although Nancy Chaffee of Ventura, Calif., had a narrow escape against tournament-wise Barbara Scofield of San Francisco, 1—6, 7—5, 6—3.

Top-seeded Gertrude Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., crushed Betty Coumbe of Westfield, N. J., 6—0, 6—1. Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., seeded third, disposed of Mrs. Lillian Campbell of New York, 6—0, 6—0.

One of the feminine victors today was Althea Gibson of New York, first Negro woman ever to play in the tournament. She triumphed, 6—0, 6—1 over Ann Drye of New York.

While Talbert progessed to the third round, third-seeded Earl Cochell of San Francisco made his first appearance with a 6—4, 6—3 victory over Sidney Wood of New York.

Jean Borotra, the 55-year-old French veteran, eliminated Don Wheaton of Pelham, N. Y., 6—1, 6—2.

Public Links Golf Probe in Hands of 3-Man Committee

Eighteen Congressmen who attended the Public Lands Committee's executive session yesterday agreed unanimously to have Representative J. Hardin Peterson (D., Fla.) appoint a three-man subcommittee to investigate the District's public golf course situation.

Peterson, acting chairman, said he expects on Monday to announce the Congressmen who will serve on it.

Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D., S. C.) recently introduced a resolution calling for Congress to conduct such an investigation. Then, after the Interior Department disclosed its intention to renew the operating contract of Severeine G. Leoffler, sr., concessionaire since 1921, Rivers authored a bill to prohibit such action until Congress looks into the whole matter.

Peterson said the subcommittee will start studying the problem and may hold hearings next week.

Arduini Opposes Kortrich in One Turner's Feature

Two bantam and two featherweight eight-rounders make up Monday night's carnival of headliners at Turner's Arena.

Jerry Kortrich has signed to meet Johnny Arduini in a return bantam bout, to fill the fourth spot on the program. Kortrich gained the decision in the last bout by flooring Arduini in the fifth.

The other bantam encounter pits Art Llanos, Puerto Rico, against Roanoke's Lou Yonkers. Featherweight bouts introduce DeWitt Oliver, San Antonio, against Danny Petro. Petro is clamoring for a shot at Jimmy Cooper, popular District fighter.

The fourth eight brings back the participants of a draw waged some time ago—Bert Wicks and Red Gaddis—

Expense Account Audit to Give Better Idea of Travel Costs

A spot check will be made of the expense accounts of 1000 Federal employes to give Congress a better idea of actual travel costs today.

The survey was ordered yesterday by the House Expenditures Committee. General Accounting Office will make the check. At the hearing, it was brought out several times that the bill to raise the travel allowance from $6 to $10 a day wasn't adequate. Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.), protested that the bill was too generous.

Dr. George V. Manov of the Bureau of Standards, testified that it cost him $277 out of his own pocket to travel on Government business on the $6 per diem for three weeks. Cecil Custer, Civil Service's budget director, said the travel cost was greater than $10 a day for some commission employes; less than that to others.

Henry Merry of the Budget Bureau, said the Administration was supporting the Dawson-Karsten bill to lift the travel allowance. William Ellis of the General Accounting Office, testified some increase should be made. A second hearing is tentatively scheduled for next Tuesday.

BEP: Civil Service Commission hasn't set up the eligible list for the printer's assistant exam which was given some time ago. When the list is established, those war service and temporary folk who either didn't take the test or failed it are likely to be ordered fired over a gradual period by Civil Service. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing is on a 54-hour week, but the work week will be cut back to 40 unless Congress votes it more money.

SURPRISE: When the President returns to his White House desk Monday he'll have within reaching distance one of the best of the new-type television sets with a 24-inch screen. The set was installed in his office during his Key West vacation.

PAY BLAST: Three GOP Senators yesterday took a healthy swing at the executive pay raise bill. They were Langer of North Dakota; Ecton of Montana, and Hendrickson of New Jersey, all members of the Civil Service Committee which reported out the executive measure.

The trio demanded immediate cost-of-living pay raises for all Federal workers. Furthermore, they will try to force the Administration to promise rank-and-file pay raises if and when the top-bracket salary bill is approved.

The promise of Classification Act revision by the Administration has failed to satisfy the GOP bloc. The trio pointed out that classification revision isn't aimed toward providing a realistic salary scale, but merely to bring about standardization and uniformity in salaries.

The Senators said that overhauling of the Classification Act would be a long and involved subject which would delay general pay raises for another year if it's given priority. They aren't opposed to the proposed revision; they merely want Federal workers to have another pay raise before it's tackled.

All of which means the executive pay bill will be attacked when it reaches the floor of both the Senate and the House. Plans already are under way to offer amendments from the floor which would (1) grant cost-of-living pay raises to all employes, and (2) revise the Classification Act. That could well mean no pay bills during this session of Congress.

NOTES: Alexander M. Campbell has been confirmed by the Senate as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the criminal division . . . The Hoover plans for firing incompetents in Government will be debated Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. by the Society for Personnel Administration. Kenneth Bahn of Navy's Bureau of Ships will lead the discussion . . . AFGE Vice President John J. Smith is promoting a rally next Friday evening in Philadelphia to protest inaction by Congress on employe bills. Senator Myers (D., Pa.) will speak. More than 2000 employes are expected.

NFFE: The executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employes yesterday went on record for: (1) additional funds to carry out the employe health program; (2) a liberalized promotion policy; (3) the payment by the Government of the premium on employe surety bonds; (4) additional authority for personnel directors, and (5) the elimination of substandard and obsolete office buildings.

Play Site Land Purchase Voted By Park Board

NCPPC Approves 20 Parcels Costing $65,000 to Expand Cardozo Playground

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday approved acquisition of 20 properties costing $65,000 to add to Cardozo Playground.

With previously announced acquisitions, including a parcel of land formerly owned by the German Embassy on S st. nw. and Bancroft pl. that will be used for recreation purposes, a total of nearly $400,000 worth of acquisitions were approved by the commission during its regular two-day meeting.

Condemnation settlements involving the 20 properties which have been made by the Department of Justice, were submitted yesterday by Col. Vincent E. Stack, USMC, retired, chief land purchasing officer. They are in addition to 12 improved properties that were acquired Thursday for rounding out the Cardozo playground planned in the area of Rhode Island ave., R, 9th and 10th sts. nw.

Wave Tanks Approved

Approval of the location of two new wave tanks at the Beach Erosion Board's laboratory on the Dalecarlia reservoir reservation, with certain landscaping provisions also was given by the Commission. The tanks will be used for testing the effect of wave erosion on different types of shoreline.

The Commission also authorized representatives to appear before the Montgomery County Council, if a hearing is held, in support of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission's proposal to rezone a section just beyond Brookmont on MacArthur blvd. that was recently designated "commercial." The Maryland commission proposes that the section be returned to its original status, but only the council has the authority to act on it.

Auxiliary Airport Site

The NCPPC also authorized active support of two bills now pending in Congress. One of these, in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, would provide for the Civil Aeronautics Authority to select a site for a new auxiliary airport subject to the approval of the NCPPC.

The other bill, in the public works committees of both Houses, would provide for transfer of the Baltimore-Washington parkway, now under Public Roads administration, and Suitland parkway, now under Army administration, to the National Capital Park service.

Various aspects of the comprehensive plan for the District were discussed in detail at the commission's afternoon session. Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, chairman, expressed the hope that funds for publication would be made available. The $20,000 appropriation is included in the Independent Offices bill now in the House. The plan will be ready for publication by July 1, he said.

The commission also authorized its staff to submit to the Board of Education a study of two proposed sites for the proposed new Cardozo High School. The sites are to the south and to the west of the Banneker Recreation Center, General Grant said.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, new Chief of Army Engineers, has been serving as an ex-officio member of the commission, it was announced.

The commission's next meeting will be held April 28 and 29.

Young Man, Girl, Reported Missing, Are Back Home

Families of two persons missing since Monday have reported them back, the police missing persons bureau announced yesterday.

Police have canceled their search for Henry Lee Simms, 23, of 3302 Buchanan st., Mount Rainier, Md., and Geraldine Mahinsky, 18, of the 1500 block of Massachusetts ave. se.

According to the girl's aunt, Mrs. Alma Mahoney, she told her father she had been visiting her mother in Dunkirk, N. Y., the three days she was away from home.

Mrs. Longworth Quits Emergency Today

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of Nicholas Longworth, former speaker of the House, of 2009 Massachusetts ave. nw., will be released today from Emergency Hospital where she has been recovering from the second left arm injury in 16 months.

Mrs. Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt and inspiration for the Alice Blue Gown song, tripped last Wednesday while crossing Connecticut ave., between Q and R sts. nw. She suffered a broken left arm. Sixteen months ago she slipped and fell in a store, injuring her left wrist.

On Technicality

Assault Case Defendant Acquitted

A legal technicality won an acquittal for Billy W. Keith, 24, in Silver Spring Police Court yesterday on two charges of assaulting his 18-month-old son, Billy W. Keith, jr.

Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee granted a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal after ruling the prosecution had failed to show that a statement made to police by Keith was not extorted by promises, threats or inducements.

Keith was in the custody of two Washington policemen, Pvts. B. D. Brill and J. R. Nally of the Thirteenth Precinct, before being turned over to Detective Corpl. Frank Griggs of the Montgomery County police. Brill and Nally were not produced in court yesterday, a factor that ruined the prosecution's case.

Defense Asks Continuance

The trial began with a defense request for a continuance. However, State's Attorney Walter Dawson objected. He said later that Griggs had told him the case was "ready."

When Griggs took the stand, he related that he had gone to Children's Hospital after Washington police had notified him of the Keith child's injuries. When he arrived at the hospital, he said, he found Keith, his wife, the two Washington policemen and a nurse together in a room. He said he then obtained a statement from Keith.

"Were there any threats, inducements or promises to the defendant?" asked defense counsel.

D. C. Policemen Not Present

Defense counsel then pointed out to the court that before Griggs' arrival Keith had been in the custody of Brill and Nally and said they should be produced as witnesses to testify whether they had made threats, inducements or promises to the defendant.

Griggs said the two Washington policemen were unable to be present yesterday because they had to testify in District Court cases. He said he hadn't realized they were vital witnesses.

When Griggs said he was not sure he could produce the two Washington policemen, the defense introduced his motion for acquittal.

After the acquittal, it was learned that the County Welfare Board has affected a reconciliation between Keith and his wife and that he has returned to their home at 12114 Selfridge rd., Viers Mill Village, Md. The board has also returned custody of the child to the parents under the board's supervision.

2 Policemen Among Traffic Casualties

Pvt. Phalan J. Jordan, jr., 27, was thrown from his motorcycle at 11:35 p. m. Thursday when he swerved to avoid hitting an automobile at 4th and Bryant sts. nw.

His motorcycle skidded on the wet street and toppled over. Jordan, who lives at 308 Maryland-Virginia hwy., Silver Spring, Md., was taken to Garfield Hospital with leg injuries and possible internal injuries. His condition is not considered serious.

Detective Sergt. Hoyle D. Secrest, 49, of 1424 Holly st. nw., administrative assistant to the chief of detectives, suffered leg and arm injuries at 5:10 a. m. when his car was in collision with another automobile at 12th and Monroe sts. ne.

Secrest reported to the detective bureau that he would go to the police clinic for treatment. Police identified the other driver as Julius Singer, 32, at 4815 8th st. nw.

At 6:45 a. m. at Adams Mill rd. and Kenyon st. nw., a car driven by Thomas Scrivener, 37, of 225 Howard ave., Kensington, Md., was in a head-on collision with a car operated by Richard L. Bailey, 30, of 7204 Radnor rd, Bethesda, Md.

Eva D. Byrns, 43, of 1327 L st. nw., suffered fractured ribs when struck by an auto at 11:15 a. m. at Pennsylvania ave. and John Marshall pl. nw. Casualty Hospital reported her condition was not serious.

The car, police said, was driven by Seymore Daniels, 54, of 912 4th st. sw.

2 Rebuttal Witnesses Attack Alibi

The Government presented two rebuttal witnesses in District Court yesterday at the trial of Lawrence Goodall, 24, charged with the holdup slaying of Druggist Nathaniel Johnson last October 12.

Yesterday, Mrs. Mary Goodall, 412 Oakdale pl. nw., mother of the accused youth, testified that her son had returned home about 9:45 the night of the murder. She said he listened to the radio for a few minutes and then went upstairs to bed.

In rebuttal, Prosecutor John C. Conliff called to the stand Detective Sergt. R. J. Reid and Detective M. A. Dixon of the robbery squad.

Both testified that Mrs. Goodall had told them her son returned home between 10:30 and 10:45 p. m. the night of the slaying.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Goodall, sleepy-eyed and unemotional, told the court he and a companion, Edward Jackson, jr., 25, had been drinking and "messing around" the Northwest section of the city until about 9:30 p. m. the night of the slaying.

He asserted he then grew tired and left Jackson. He said he arrived at his home at 9:45 p. m., had a bite to eat, listened to the radio and went to bed.

"Did you on the night of October 12 plan a robbery with Jackson?" Defense Counsel Alfred Goldstein asked. (Jackson has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in connection with the case.)

"No sir."

"Were you in the Southwest section around 10 p. m.?"

"No sir."

"No sir, I did not."

2 Brothers Face Murder Hearing

Two Alexandria brothers will face a hearing in Fairfax Trial Justice Court March 25 on murder charges arising from the death of a 40-year-old welder after a tavern fight near Alexandria March 7.

The men, Ted Johnson, 23, 2707 Mount Vernon ave., and Harold C. Johnson, 21, Route 3, Alexandria, have been held in Fairfax jail in lieu of $7500 bond since March 10, when they surrendered voluntarily to Fairfax County police. They are charged with slaying Y. Courtney Whalen, 3039 Colvin st., Fairfax County, who died at Alexandria Hospital about 36 hours after the fight.

GOP-Backed School Aid Bill In Maryland Believed Doomed

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, March 18.—At least 36 delegates to the Maryland General Assembly—all Republicans—today were virtually pledged to vote millions of dollars in State aid to counties hard pressed for new school classrooms.

But backers of pending legislation sought by insolvent counties where serious school overcrowding exists say GOP backing is not enough.

Because of a "tight" budget of record proportions this year, Governor Lane is vigorously opposed to straining State finances for county school construction, it has been unofficially reported.

And the formidable Democratic majority in the Legislature is expected to carry out his recommendations on the subject next week.

GOP membership in the House is virtually bound by a decision yesterday of the Republican Steering Committee to back three bills already introduced, which would help out the counties. The bill would:

1. Quadruple the State incentive fund. This would increase from $10 to $40 the maximum State aid guaranteed to counties for school construction use.

2. Authorize a 30-million-dollar State bond issue for county school construction where counties have already reached the safe limit of their borrowing capacity.

3. Divert proceeds of the 2 per cent motor vehicle titling tax to general funds for school construction purposes.

Interested persons—school and P-TA officials and county officials—from all over the State are expected to converge on the Statehouse Monday at 3 p. m. to attend a public hearing on the three bills.

Routine sessions were held today by both the House and Senate as administration leaders took steps to quicken the legislative pace with the scheduled adjournment only two weeks away.

Introduced in the House were bills by the Prince Georges County delegation that would (1) legalize slot machines other than "one-armed bandits" and (2) freeze the number of alcoholic beverage licenses that could be issued.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a local bill introduced by Senator Roy Tasco Davis (R., Montgomery) making it illegal for persons to hunt with a gun on private property without the owner's permission.

Gallinger Draws Ahead to Buy Food, Supplies

Hospital to Run Out of Funds by May 15 Unless Congress Acts

Gallinger Hospital officials are now drawing against salary funds earmarked for the last quarter of the fiscal year in order to buy essential drugs, food and medical supplies.

The hospital has used up about $700,000 set aside in the current budget for medical and hospital supplies, fuel and provisions and now must expend personnel services cash, District budget officials said last night.

The District Commissioners have already requested Congress to grant a $271,000 deficit request for Gallinger, and if this is not granted by May 15 they will run out of funds entirely, budget officials said.

Aid Is Doubted

Commissioner Guy Mason said he doubted this would occur and explained that in such an emergency the District could issue requisitions endorsed with a notice that payments would depend on approval of the deficiency request now pending.

He said he hoped Congress would act on the matter by at least May 15 or else the hospital would probably run out of cash in all of its various funds.

Ernest R. Cole, budget analyst, said Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, has forwarded a request that he be permitted to purchase supplies on credit until Congress acts on the deficiency bill. Budget officials, however, authorized the transfer of cash for the present.

Cash the Only Shortage

Previously Gallinger officials were able to absorb shortages in the supply and materials funds each year by using cash available in various personnel accounts unused because of shortages of nurses, doctors and other employes. In recent months, however, these shortages have been ended.

District budget office spokesmen warned this week that unless cuts imposed by the House are restored, Gallinger will suffer sharply from insufficient funds for food, medicines and fuel and the proposed pediatrics-crippled children's building will have to remain vacant after completion due to lack of money for equipment.

Warning to Public

Hazard Seen In Discarded Tube Lights

A warning of a health hazard in the disposal of burned-out fluorescent lamps was sounded yesterday by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett in a memorandum to the Metropolitan Police Department.

The memorandum cited an order of the Fire Department in quoting an article in the February issue of Fire Engineering.

The article as quoted in the memorandum pointed to a two-pronged health hazard in the inhalation of dust from the coating on the inside surface of the glass tube and in the possibility of introducing this material, containing berylium, into the skin through open sores or lacerations.

Inhalation of berylium compounds in powdered form has caused illness and even death, the article was quoted as saying.

In addition, it said, introduction of the compound into the skin creates "long-standing tumor masses."

Listing rules for disposal of burned-out flourescent lamps, the article warned against placing them with rubbish or into an incinerator. It stated one should:

1. Smash all lamps before disposing of them and keep the broken glass wet or covered with water in the disposal receptacle.

2. Where there is only an occasional lamp to be destroyed, place it in the carton from which the new lamp has been removed, take it outdoors and smash it while wearing goggles and gloves.

3. Use a smashing device where larger quantities are to be destroyed. Such a device should be situated out of doors and designed to confine the dust and broken glass.

4. Always stand to windward when emptying the receptacle.

A man described as a Negro about 25, 5 feet 9, wearing an Army field jacket, knocked Campbell into the rear of the truck, then robbed him of $90 and a wrist watch.

Campbell, treated at Providence Hospital for a cut left eye, could not give a description of the thug's accomplice who acted as lookout except that he, too, was a Negro.

James W. Heafner, a bus driver, was set upon at 7:30 p. m. while walking on I st. near 4th st. nw. A man, said to be a Negro, about 30, 6 feet 2, and weighing about 215 pounds, knocked him to the pavemen then kicked him.

The thug, who wore a blue cloth zipper jacket, grabbed Heafner's wallet, but Heafner had transferred $7 from his wallet to a pants pocket earlier.

Twenty-eight former servicemen, all employes of the New York Naval Shipyard, yesterday asked District Court to order them restored to their former ranks and grades of employment at the shipyard.

Named defendants in the suit are Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, and several members of the Civil Service Commission.

2 Arlington Policemen Put On Probation

Two former Arlington policemen who were sentenced to 5-year prison terms fo housebreaking last month were freed yesterday, when Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy suspended the remainder of their sentences pending good behavior.

The men, Louis L. Litrap, 24, and Charles H. James, 28, have been in jail since February 22, when Judge McCarthy sentenced them after they pleaded guilty to the charge. At the time of sentencing, the jurist indicated he would entertain a motion to suspend the prison terms at a later date.

In informing the pair they would be on probation for the remainder of the sentence, Judge McCarthy told them: "You have just brought a lot of trouble to yourselves, your families and the Police Department—you're going to have a hard time getting over it."

According to police officials, the two men broke into a supermarket at 4717 Lee hwy. on November 16 while both men were on duty.

Both were suspended from duty the day of their arrest, and were automatically dismissed 10 days later when they failed to appeal their suspension, Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard said yesterday.

Sasscer Cool To Sale Now Of Greenbelt

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) yesterday urged a House Subcommitee to give careful study to any proposed sale of Greenbelt, Md.

Sasscer's Congressional District includes the Government-owned Greenbelt housing project.

"I have a very definite feeling it should not be sold at this time," said Sasscer. "When the time is ripe to sell it to a veterans cooperative and still protect the present tenants, the details could be worked out. My belief is that if a sale is to be made it is well to give preference to a veterans cooperative, and there should be provision that present residents will be protected in their occupancy."

Before Subcommittee

Sasscer testified to a House Banking and Currency Subcommittee in hearings on the bill of Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.) for sale of the Government's three "green" towns, Greenbelt, Md.; Greenhills, Ohio, and Greendale, Wis. His bill is designed to give cooperatives, or other mutual nonprofit organizations, composed of veterans and nonveterans, first chance to buy the towns by negotiated sale.

Monroney pointed out that under existing law, the Public Housing Administration must sell to the highest speculative bidder.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), and representatives of the American Legion, testified for the bill, explaining that a Legion group is prepared to buy the Greendale project.

Westbrook Heard

The subcommittee also heard Lawrence Westbrook, president of the Trans-American Development Corp., who explained that his firm had been hired as development engineers by the Greenbelt Mutual Home Ownership Corp., composed of some 1159 families of whom about half are veterans.

Officer Fined $110 For Faking Illness To Avoid Duty

Kelly, a police veteran of seven years, did not take the stand. He was represented by Attorney Charles E. Ford.

Meanwhile, the Police Department announced that Pvt. James C. Watson, a motorcycle officer attached to the traffic division, had been completely cleared on three charges of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Watson, 40, faced a trial board last month on charges of altering a speeding charge, failing to notify his superior officer of the alteration and arresting a cag driver for disorderly conduct without probable or justifiable cause.

Welfare Aid Inadequate, FSA Is Told

Private social welfare agencies "have got to be prepared to be the watchdogs of public agencies," Dr. Eveline Burns, faculty member of the New York School of Social Work, declared yesterday.

The Government's growing role in the field of family assistance has increased, rather than decreased, the responsibility of private agencies, which "must make everybody realize where public aid is inadequate or falling down on the job," Dr. Burns said.

Dr. Burns addressed a conference of more than 100 lay board members and professional social workers, representing Family Service Association agencies in seven mid-Atlantic States which met in the Hotel Statler. The FSA, a Community Chest agency in Washington, maintains trained social workers to counsel families with marital or other problems.

Dr. Burns cited other major social and economic trends as challenges to the private agency: (1) the growing proportion of aged persons in the population; (2) the increasing number of working mothers; (3) increasing amount of leisure time available; (4) the need for spreading preventive information in the field of psychology and psychiatry among the public.

Dr. Hildebrand, Fish Authority, Dies at 65

Dr. Samuel Hildebrand, 65, senior ichthyologist with the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, and internationally noted authority on fish, died Wednesday after a heart attack.

Dr. Hildebrand

Dr. Hildebrand, whose home was at 1528 Otis st. ne., was stricken while conducting a session of his Sunday school class, held at 2222 Otis st. ne., under auspices of the Brookland Methodist Church.

"The foremost ichthyologist in North America today," according to an associate at his headquarters in the National Museum, Dr. Hildebrand was the author of more than 64 books and publications on North and South American fishes.

Book Published Recently

His latest volume on Peruvian fishes, culmination of five years of research, was published four months ago. He made many previous research expeditions to Panama, Puerto Rico, Guatemala and Cuba, bringing back literally thousands of fish specimens.

Born in Stendal, Ind., he received his B.A. in 1908 from Indiana State Teachers College, and his M.A. in 1915 from Indiana University, while working as a country teacher in a one-room schoolhouse.

After a brief period in 1916 as director of the Biological Research Station of the Bureau of Fisheres in Beaufort, N. C., Dr. Hildebrand worked for the United States Public Health Service during World War I on malaria control methods in the South.

In 1925, with a newly obtained doctorate in Public Health from the University of Georgia, he returned as director of the Beaufort Research Station and supervised its threefold expansion.

Appointed to Bureau

He was appointed senior ichthyologist for the Bureau of Fisheries, now the Fish and Wildlife Service, in 1931, when he moved to Washington.

During World War II he worked in consultation with the Navy on sonar (underwater radar) techniques for distinguishing schools of fish from approaching submarines. He personally chose names for at least 40 submarines, which are called after fishes, and submitted lists of suggested names for many more.

Dr. Hildebrand was a consultant to the Food and Drug Administration on packaged seafoods from 1931 until his death.

Belonged to AAAS

He belonged to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Washington Academy of Sciences, the Biological Society of Washington, the National Malaria Society, Sigma Chi and the American Fishery Society and the American Society of Icthyologists and Herpetologists.

He was a member and past secretary treasurer of the Brookland Citizens Association, and had taught Sunday School classes since 1931 at the Brookland Methodist Church, of which he was a trustee. These classes were his first interest, his family said.

He leaves his widow, the former Claudia Chiallaux, whom he married in 1911, and a son, Samuel Hildebrand, jr., both of 1528 Otis st. ne. Two daughters, Mrs. R. L. Bradford, 7114 Radner rd., Bethesda, and Mrs. Frank O. Anderson, Annandale, Va.; a brother, the Rev. E. F. Hildebrand, of Saginaw, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. W. C. About Matching Decor, Furnishings

In the living room of my new house I have a rose beige broadloom rug. The walls are papered in a light gray and silvery leaf pattern. The room has a south and west exposure. What color scheme should I follow in choosing figured and plain materials for drapes and slipcovers? I plan to cover a davenport and an upholstered chair, also the cushions of another couch having cane and wood back and arms. The other furniture is mahogany. A. R. VAN A.

With light gray walls and rose beige rug, you could use a color scheme with shell pink and deep wine or light yellow and warm brown as the predominating colors. With the shell pink-deep wine scheme, use small amounts of vermilion and clear blue for accent. With the yellow-warm brown scheme, use vermilion clear green and white as accent.

We have a very old house and the fireplace ends are brick. The walls have not been furred over on the inside and consequently do a great deal of sweating in the spring and summer months. We tried to find a remedy for this several years ago in Annapolis and were told by an old chimney expert (supposedly) to have the walls waterproofed on the outside. We went to a great deal of expense to have this done and the following spring the walls got wet and after so much of this, of course, the wallpaper is ruined. Is there anything we could put on the inside wall to waterproof it so we could paper over it? M. J. B.

This seems to be primarily a condensation problem. In the spring and summer months, when you are troubled with the dampness, the temperature of the brick wall surface is lower than that of the surrounding air. This causes the moisture in the air to condense on the cooler surface and the surface becomes wet. You could attack this problem in two ways, 1, reduce the humidity in the house air, or 2, cover the bricks with a lining which will keep the inside air from contact with the cold bricks.

The interior humidity can be reduced by using a humidifier or keeping the doors and windows closed on high humidity, warm days—airing the house well on low humidity days. A more permanent solution would result by lining the bricks. Lath and plaster can be used or plaster board set on furring strips an inch or so thick to provide air space. Wallpaper can be readily applied over either surface.

Please tell me how to get rid of the small flies that continually fly about in the kitchen, basement and bathroom. The spray I use makes them disappear for a couple of days, then they are back again. M. S. S.

These small flies are probably fruit flies or vinegar gnats which breed in and feed on fermenting fruits or fruit products. To be permanently rid of them use a 5 per cent DDT spray and spray it on the surfaces where the insects are likely to crawl. If the spray is left on these surfaces it will kill insects coming in contact with it for several months. Insecticides sprayed into the air, or space sprays, kill insects with which they come in contact quickly, but have no permanent effect because they do not leave enough residue on the surfaces to kill insects which were in places protected from the spray.

I have just had my room papered. The color is light tan, pale flowered. On the wall over the studio couch are spots of grease from hands, etc. Please tell me how to clean the grease from the paper without leaving a spot. R. A. M.

Mix corn starch and carbon tetrachloride to a paste. Place a thick layer of this paste over the stains. (Be sure to not have the paste so moist that the liquid runs out of it down the wall.) Leave the paste on the wall until dry and brush away. If all the grease was not removed with the first application, repeat.

Good idea, Petunia! When you prepare pastry for a pie, it saves future bother to double or triple the recipe, and line all the pie pans you own. They'll keep for two weeks or more in the cold part of your refrigerator.

Bishop-Bracken

WITH MORE and better Valencia oranges from Florida reaching the market every day, it's a fine time to treat your family to an Orange Velvet Cream Pie. It will grace a spring table with honor without denting your pocketbook.

Orange Velvet Cream Pie

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup heavy cream, whipped, or
2/3 cup thoroughly chilled evaporated milk, whipped
1¼ cups orange juice
2/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 9-inch baked pie shell.

SOFTEN GELATIN in ¾ cup cold orange juice in saucepan. Blend sugar, flour, and salt. Add to softened gelatin; mix thoroughly. Place over medium heat; stir constantly until gelatin is dissolved and mixture thickened. Remove from heat; add orange rind and remaining ½ cup orange juice and lime juice. Chill until mixture is slightly thicker than the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Fold into whipped cream or whipped evaporated milk. Turn into pastry shell and chill until firm. This recipe makes one 9-inch pie.

Care Will Prevent Waffles Sticking

Have you had the exasperating experience of having your waffles stick to the iron, perhaps just when guests are waiting? Miss Margaret McPheeters, University of Maryland extension nutrition specialist, says this need not happen if you take proper care of the waffle iron.

Here are the reasons, she says, why waffles stick: (1) Allowing the iron to become overheated, which burns out the necessary coating of fat or oil; (2) starting to bake before the iron is hot enough; (3) using insufficient shortening. (Always use at least 3 tablespoons of fat to 1 cup of flour, she advises). (4) Lifting the cover before the waffle is done; and (5) cooling the iron with grids closed. (Instead, leave your iron open until it has thoroughly cooled.)

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Flat on his back, heels drumming the floor, crying at the top of his lungs, pulling, hitting and lunging if anyone attempts to touch him. Not a pretty picture, indeed. But not an uncommon one. Someone's darling is having a temper tantrum!

Why do children act this way? Some parents would claim that the temper was inherited from someone on the other side of the family. Others think it pure "cussedness." Actually, such behavior is usually the child's reaction to his inability to get his way.

The youngster may have tried very hard to untangle a toy from something in which it has become caught. He may have wanted to gaze longer into the store window full of fascinating things. In the first case, the job is too much for him. In the second, mother pulls him along because she's in a hurry. Failure brings anger, expressed in tantrum form.

First of all, we should try to help him meet the problem he faces in a different way. A hand in untangling the toy and a bit more patience at the store window will often do the trick. But when he does have a tantrum, it should be ignored. No, it's not easy. But in the long run it will pay. For when Junior finds that this method won't get him what he wants, he's sensible enough to give it up. And this is the place where we can step in and help him find more acceptable ways of solving his problems.

Give a Child Adequate Warning Before Cutting Into His Play

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Most parents are familiar with the suggestion that when a child is playing he should be given some warning before it is demanded that he come to the table, or go to bed, or what have you.

Timing is vitally important to being successful in changing a child's activities. Children do not spring nimbly from one sort of activity to another, especially when they are interested in it. They must be given time to make up their minds to act in the new and "dictated" way.

Every child has to visit the toilet periodically. He will if his mother does not suggest out of a clear sky, "Run upstairs now, so you won't wet your panties!" Presumably then she'll get hurt cries of, "no, no, no," even though the time is ripe for just such attentions.

Instead it works better to say, "It's almost time to go to the bathroom. Watch the clock and when the hand gets here, see?, then tell mother and I'll take care of you."

Maybe the pet doggie has to go, too, or acting then is a preparation for going somewhere else. Whatever the ruse it should give the child time to accommodate himself to the idea.

Getting the child to nap or to bed is another of those situations which demands tactful priming and diplomacy. The child is not going to leap up the stairs merely because the parent asserts that it is now bedtime.

It's easier to suggest intervening activities which will lead up to bed. "If you put your toys in the box, then I'll read you the kitty story and after that it will be time to kiss everyone goodnight."

It's possible the mother may have to agree to another story but eventually the time will arrive when the child gives up and goes to bed without a fuss.

TAKE a pretty Cherry Blossom princess, sprinkle with Southern accents and mix together on March 26 and what do you have? The North Carolina Spring dance at the Shoreham Hotel, of course, when Miss Courtenay Murphy will be the guest of honor.

The pretty North Carolina princess, the daughter of Administrative Assistant to the President and Mrs. Charles S. Murphy, will have a gay group of young people attending her, and coming from far and wide will be all-age Tar heels who will participate in the society's annual springtime frolic.

Setting for the event will be the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, and at 10 p. m. dancers will whirl to the strains of McWilliams' music.

The dance will be held in the Shoreham Hotel at 9:30 p. m. with Dave McWilliams Orchestra furnishing the music. President Harold B. Barnett extends an invitation to all New Yorkers and their friends from other States to attend. Enlisted servicemen in uniform will be admitted free.

The buffet will be at 7:30 p. m. in the Hotel 2400, with the presentation of the princess and her maids at 9 p. m. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m.

Successful Hoosiers Plan More Successes

The Hoosiers certainly seem to have the inside track when it comes to planning many and different types of entertainment. Remember the dance recently when Hoagy Carmichael was the guest star? Now the Hoosiers have three big events coming up in the next few weeks: a luncheon-fashion show, the Cherry Blossom Festival and the Hoosier Art Salon.

The fashion show will be an all-Hoosier affair even to the entertainment and fashion models. It will be held in the main ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel at 12:30 p. m. on March 26. In carrying out a complete Hoosier affair the fashion show will be by the Indiana Frank R. Jelleff store with special emphasis placed on clothes to be worn at the Hoosier Art Salon formal opening as well as the Hoosier speedway 500-mile race on May 30 in Indianapolis.

The music will be furnished by Paul Kain of Huntington, Ind. Two of the models will be Mrs. Edward Kruse, jr., wife of the Representative from Indiana, and Miss Cynthia Bergman, who was the cherry blossom princess last year.

Wives of the Senators and Representatives will be hostesses, along with other distinguished Hoosiers as Mrs. R. R. Sayers, Mrs. Douglas Whitlock, Mrs. Claude R. Wickard, Mrs. Arthur Bergman and Mrs. Louis Ludlow. The luncheon will be open to all Indiana women and their friends from other States.

The purpose of the luncheon is to promote interest in the Hoosier Salon being brought to the Capitol for the first exhibition of regional art by any State. The salon will be held at the Smithsonian Institution National Collection of Fine Arts, Constitution ave. and 10th st., from April 7 to 27. There will be over 200 paintings in oil as well as water color, 30 pieces of sculpture and 30 paintings of strictly Indiana scenes and flowers.

The large cake to be contributed by Mrs. Julia Blake for the luncheon will carry out the silver anniversary theme of the Art Salon. The cake will have small pictures taken from the Art Salon catalogue and framed with icing in silver.

Mack, jr., Representative and Mrs. C. W. Bishop. Among those who might attend are Senator Paul H. Douglas, Representative Adolph J. Sabath and Representative and Mrs. Robert B. Chiperfield.

Miss Albertina Amizich is general chairman for the dance, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Karl, who will act a host and hostess for the evening. For further information call Miss Amizich at Adams 2977.

Aid for Private Schools Held Dim

Representative Ralph W. Gwinn (R., N. Y.), a member of the House committee on education and labor, yesterday told a group of private school educators that they are going to be "greatly fooled" if they look to the Federal Government for financial aid.

He said that "great associations" with lobbyists in Washington are going to see to it that only tax-supported schools get "great appropriations." Private schools will not get aid, he said, because they refuse to "worship the State."

After declaring that the United States has "departed from the ways of the Constitution" on the road to socialism he said that private colleges are not going to be able "to live as private institutions training students for private business when there is less and less private business."

Gwinn was one of nine speakers heard by more than 400 representatives of 40 national, regional and State private school associations attending the first National Congress of Private Schools. The congress sponsored by the National Federation of Private School Associations will conclude its sessions at the Statler Hotel this afternoon.

Maj. Gen. Carl R. Gray, jr., Veterans Administrator, sharing the luncheon program with Gwinn, noted a shift in GI training from colleges and universities to trade and professional schools and to on-the-farm training.

Officers elected by the board of governors and announced at yesterday's meeting are Hiram N. Rasely of Burdett College, Boston, reelected president; E. H. Rietzke, president of Capitol Radio Engineering Institute, 3324 16th st. nw., vice president; T. B. Lyons, Pittsburgh, secretary, and H. O. Balls, Nashville, treasurer. Wayne Weishaar, secretary of the Aeronautical Training Society, 1025 Connecticut ave. nw., was named to the executive committee.

Self-Styled 'Bishop' Is Convicted

Simon David Brooks, 51, self-styled bishop, yesterday was found guilty of violating the healing arts law.

Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott deferred sentencing for five days to permit Brooks to file a motion for a new trial.

Brooks, who lives at 27 Logan Circle nw., which he said is also the location of his church, was charged with selling medicine to Policewoman Audrey C. Farr, who went to him March 3 with a complaint that she was suffering from insomnia.

Private Farr said she got three bottles of liquid medicine and a pill from Brooks. A Health Department chemist said one of the bottles contained a diluted solution of pine oil emulsion, which is considered a drug.

Brooks, who said he heads about 21 churches located here and in several States, denied he had ever given Private Farr any medicine or accepted any money from her for medicine.

Witness Says Liquor Seller Asked 'Tie-In'

Maurice Milstone, owner of the Acme Liquor Store, 927 Pennsylvania ave. nw., testified to the "tie-in" deal at a Federal Trade Commission hearing against Middle Atlantic Distributors, Inc.

The Government case, charging Middle Atlantic with suppressing competition among retail dealers by attempts to fix minimum resale liquor prices, was completed yesterday.

FTC Examiner William L. Pack adjourned the hearing until April 29 to allow the distributor time to file a motion to dismiss the case, as counsel announced they would do. If the motion is not filed by then, hearings will be resumed May 2.

Milstone said the only way he could get Canadian Club whisky was to buy Hiram Walker cocktails "which he had to sell at a loss as that was the only way we could get rid of it," he testified.

Mob at Opening Of Hotel Fouls Up Lamour Program

Houston, Tex., March 18 (AP).—Mayor Oscar Holcombe today said the crowd that scrambled a radio program at the St. Patrick's Day opening of the ultramodern Shamrock Hotel was the "worst mob scene I've ever seen.

"It was ridiculous," the mayor said.

Last night the crowd completely upset Dorothy Lamour's nation-wide (Sealtest) radio program. Nearly half of the 30-minute NBC show was off the air as over 100 guests were attempting to find their tables in the hotel's jam-packed Emerald Room.

Confederates Cover Ground In 'St. Louis'

"SOUTH OF ST. LOUIS." Warner release of U. S. Pictures (Milton Sperling) production. Screen play by Zachary Gold and James R. Webb. Photographed by Karl Freund. Music by Max Steiner. Song by Ray Heindorf and Ralph Blane. Directed by Ray Enright. At the Warner.

THE CAST

Kip Davis	Joel McCrea
Rowdy de Lisle	Alexis Smith
Charlie Burns	Zachary Scott
Deborah Miller	Dorothy Malone
Lee Prince	Douglas Kennedy
Jake Evarts	Alan Hale
Luke Cottrell	Victor Jory
Slim Hansen	Bob Steele
Branco	Art Smith
Capt. Jeffery	Monte Blue
Manuel	Nacho Galindo

For "South of St. Louis," at the Warner, read "West of Anything" in the usual movie sense and "Just North of the Mexican Border" in the strictly geographical one.

The period is the Civil War; the action has to do with blockade running. The players are headed by Joel McCrea, Alexis Smith, Zachary Scott, Dorothy Malone, Victor Jory and Douglas Kennedy. The color, praise heaven, is old reliable, nonrust, nonseaweed red-baiting Technicolor. (I slipped into the Warner after the Capitol's Cinecolor, which is reviewed in this morning's column.)

The yarn, which gets pretty complicated at times, concerns three pals whose ranch is destroyed by guerilla fighters and who've headed South to get a bankroll.

Joel attracts the eye of Alexis Smith, who's so thoroughly and unmistakably done up as the town tart that I think Belle Watling would cut her dead in the lowest saloon. Alexis, who talks through her teeth, is up to her molars in running ammunition from Mexico to the Confederate Army and cotton from the Confederate Army to Mexico. This entails a good deal of beating around, for which she employs Joel as messenger boy.

Newcomer Kennedy

Zachary Scott is the second man in the trio and he sticks by Joel. The money rolls in so fast that hard-hearted Zach decides he'd like to do away with Joel so he can get all the money AND Alexis. This brings in Victory Jory (a busy man this week), who tries to wipe out Joel.

Third man of the trio is Douglas Kennedy, a young actor who seems to be climbing the Warner ladder rapidly, which, so far as I'm concerned, is all to the good. Last week he was a grasping racketeer in the Warner's "Flaxy Martin," but this week he's man enough to join the Confederate Army and win the heroine. Kennedy's got a clean, new look about him and though I'm a damyankee I got to wishing the Confederacy might, at long last, win the Civil War. He plays, appropriately, a character named Lee, but he's only a lieutenant.

The story, as I say, is mildly complicated, which means the pace has to slow down for people like me to figure it out, or at least to excuse it. There are a couple of good fights and skulking gun battles, which seem to be the reason for pictures like this.

Miss Smith gets around to singing a Ray Heindorf-Ralph Blane song, "Too Much in Love," which may put her case exactly, though her insistent courtship of Joel certainly pays off in the end. Whether her hearty ways will make the noble McCrea happy I wounldn't be too sure.

One on the Aisle—

Highly Durable, This Scott Lad

By Richard L. Coe

SINCE BETTY HUTTON is in town, I might as well pass along an idea that came to me while watching "Canadian Pacific" at the Capitol.

For Betty was such a smash in "Perils of Pauline," why doesn't she make one called "Perils of Randy?"

Randy, of course, would be Randolph Scott, who, on the F st. screen, is pushing that railroad across Canada. In his time, good old Randy has overcome just the same awful odds that Pearl White faced in her day, and I think it would be a terribly nice idea to make a movie about Randy while he's still not dead or something.

Randy's big moment in this one is truly special. He's loading cases of dynamite on a wagon. Victor Jory lies in ambush ready to roder Randy popped to smithereens, but he holds his pal's fire until all the dynamite cases are stacked high and Randy is putting the last one on the pile.

Then the screen blows up, but since the picture still has a good 40 minutes to go and Randy is the star, you're impressed but hardly surprised in the next scene to see Randy prone in the hospital car, revealing; neath seaweedy Cinecolor, signs of life.

"By all the laws of nature," whispers Jane Wyatt as Dr. Edith Cabot, "you should be dead."

Yes, it's quite a moment, and if Betty's looking for a successor to her enormously popular "Perils of Pauline," she can just pick up Great Moments in the Roles of Randy Scott and another mint will accure. (That's all right, Betty; no percentage is expected. I advise people about all sorts of things.)

A Woodsy Gene Tierney

The rest of "Canadian Pacific" can't match this triumphant sequence, but you can't say the boys didn't have one hell of a time laying tracks across the Rockies. Victor Jory and a pack of bush-league fur-trappers were agin' it, which hexed Randy's romance with the daughter of one of them, Nancy Olson. Nancy looks rather like a woodsy Gene Tierney and she shows spunk by warning the C. P. outfit that the injuns are icumen.

This, it turns out, is all a frightful mistake, for after a battle that killed only a few score on both sides, Randy gets the idea across to the Indians that Jory's been all wrong about the blessings of a railroad and, apart from some hesitation at the end whether Randy will choose the lady sawbones he's been smooching with or the rustic maiden of his past, things wind up as they should.

The splendid Rockies are photographed in that process they call Cinecolor, the effect of which I've never been able to pin down exactly. Sometimes I think it makes everything look rusty. Then, again, I rather lean to the seaweed theory. Maybe this is the camera that works under water.

The Capitol's stage show gets happily started in what one of my astute colleagues has described as "the octave of St. Patrick," which makes it appropriate for cheerful Kay DeWitt to spend the week singing happy Erin ditties. The remarkable Harold Barnes dances on a tight wire, but ask me not how he does it; I do know he does whatever it is well. Sara Ann McCabe proves that sopranos can be up to date by singing "So in Love" from "Kiss Me, Kate." The four Fays and Billy Wells spurt comically, and ross and La Pierre are billed as "The One-Man Juke Box."

"CANADIAN PACIFIC." 20th Century Fox release produced by Nat Holt, directed by Edwin L. Marin, screenplay by Jack DeWitt and Kenneth Gamet from an original story by Jack DeWitt. At the Capitol.

IN BRIEF: Eric Johnston and the MPA entertained yesterday afternoon for Betty Hutton and the star-studded covey which will turn the tables tonight by entertaining at the White House Press Photographers' ball at the Statler . . . Betty flew from the Coast to New York in the usual air time, but it took nearly eight hours to get from the Hudson to the Potomac . . . The Suzari Marionettes play "Young Buffalo Bill" this morning at 10:45 and this afternoon at 2 in Alexandria's Virginia Theater, as the next to the last offering of the Children's Museum of Washington; the finale is "Little Women" April 2 . . . The Variety Club's having a St. Patrick's party tonight that it calls: "S. O. B.—Scotch or Bourbon." . . . Bambi Lynn has joined Ballet Theater, which plays its single local date tonight in Constitution Hall.

HOW TO WRITE AN AD: A week ago today I reviewed the J. Arthur Rank film at the Playhouse, "Saraband" . . . "For all its splendid settings," I wrote, "it served only to remind me of an undertaker's streetcar advertisement. Impressive, but, oh, my" . . . The headline read: "'Saraband' Only a Visual Delight." . . . (And get that period after "Delight.") . . . So yesterday's advertisement for "Saraband" read: "'Impressive . . . A Visual Delight!'—Coe, Post" . . . Hmmmmm.

The Gallup Poll

Lack of Common Interests Thought Major Divorce Cause

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 18—Lack of interests in common, marrying too hastily, and arguments over money, are the three major causes of divorce, in the opinion of people polled in a coast-to-coast cross-section survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Unfaithfulness, or "too much playing around," and too much dissipation and drinking rank next in order of importance.

The survey was intended simply to record what impressions people have about the cause of the divorces they have seen occur in their own or other communities. Marriage counselors or other experts might rank the causes in a different order. But here is the way the voters questioned in the poll expressed their views:

Lack of interests in common; incompatability	28%
Married too soon, didn't know each other well enough	14
Money matters, arguments over money	10
Unfaithfulness, running around, loose living	7
Intemperance, too much drinking and dissipation	7
Husband or wife inconsiderate, thoughtless	6
Partners too independent, no real home life	4
Marriage taken too lightly	4
Not in love	4
Divorce is too easy	2
Religious differences	1
Partners unstable, immature	1
Other	6
Don't know	9
	103%

Some people named more than one cause, hence the table adds to more than 100 per cent.

That many people find marriage to their present mates no great bed of roses is seen in the results of another survey recently conducted by the Institute.

Married men and women were asked whether they would marry the same person if they had it to do all over again.

Slightly fewer than half—49 per cent—said they were certain that they would marry the same person again. Another 28 per cent said they probably would, while 10 per cent said they would not, and 13 per cent said they didn't know.

National Bank Maps Extensive Improvements

By S. Oliver Goodman

An extensive improvements program for the National Bank of Washington, oldest in the city, will be undertaken soon, President J. Frank White reported yesterday in a letter to stockholders. The modernization plans will include the branch on Maine ave.

In addition, White said, "changes in organization, methods and operating procedures will be made, all of which will tend to a more efficient and economical operation . . ."

The letter was viewed in financial quarters as a bid by the bank's management to retain control of the 140-year-old institution. Recently, stockholders rejected an offer from another local bank to purchase assets and assume liabilities of the Bank of Washington. This offer would have meant the end of the historic bank as an entity.

Currently, Bank of Washington stockholders face another offer of $280 a share for their holdings and a promise to continue the bank under its own name. This offer was made by an unidentified source through the brokerage firm of Johnston, Lemon & Co.

Officials pointed out yesterday that the bank currently is "in an exceptionally sound condition." Capital accounts of $2,264,083 are at an all-time high, while assets and deposits have more than doubled in the past 10 years.

Loans, which stood at $4,522,595 at the end of 1948, have since increased by about $900,000. Deposits as of yesterday stood at $24,179,443, a gain of nearly two million since the start of this year, a spokesman said.

Also, it was pointed out, since the bank received its national charter in 1885, stockholders have received an average annual dividend of about $8.40.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Donald Henry has resigned as personnel director of The Washington Post to become associated with Griffenhagen & Associates, Chicago management consultants. Henry will leave for Caracas, Venezuela, next week to do industrial relations work for the Creole Petroleum Corp., a Griffenhagen client . . . John S. French has been appointed sales manager of the Ford Motor Co. fleet sales section, succeeding S. M. Copland . . . New officers of Great Lakes Regional Advisory Board include R. W. Wettstyne, president; C. J. Davitt, vice president, and N. J. Beez, chairman of the executive committee . . . William C. Brown was elected vice president and actuary of Colonial Life Insurance Co.

ENLARGES BOARD: American Security & Trust Co. has added five new members to its advisory board of branches, President Daniel W. Bell announced yesterday. The move heralds the opening in the near future of the company's new Woodley Park branch at Calvert st. and Connecticut ave. The new advisory board members are: Frank E. Weakley, president of Washington Properties, Inc.; L. Gardner Moore, vice president and manager of Shoreham Hotel; L. S. McCarthy, president of Anna May Nichols, Inc., women's specialty store; L. P. Rawley, treasurer of Rock Creek Ginger Ale Co., and Guy O. Dove, president of the E. B. Adams Co., Inc.

ODD LOTS: Rail operating revenues in February are estimated to have declined 6.8 per cent under the same 1948 month . . . Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. has announced an increase of $12 a gross ton on ferro-manganese due to increased cost of imported manganese ore . . . Trans-World Airline plans extension of cut-rate skycoach service . . . General Time Instruments Corp., will invest a million dollars in expanding production of clocks and watches in Britain, the Economic Cooperation Administration reported . . . Standard Oil Co. of Indiana is negotiating a long term loan of 50 million dollars.

SALES DROP: Still affected by a much later Easter this year than in 1948, Washington department store sales in the week ended March 12 sagged 7 per cent below the same period last year. However, local dollar volume for the four weeks ended March 12 remained 1 per cent higher than in the corresponding 1948 period. The figures were reported last night by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

EARNINGS: J. C. Penney Co. reported net income of $47,753,929 or $5.80 a common share for 1948, compared with $35,304,231 or $4.29 a share in 1947. Other earnings statements:

Hard Luck Ex-Marine Now Has Job

The fortunes of Clayton D. Whidden, which began to change only a few hours after he was arrested for trying to break into an Alexandria grocery store, took another turn for the better yesterday.

The young former Marine, who told Alexandria police he resorted to theft because his wife and three small children were hungry, took a job with a department store which held the position open for him when its officials learned of his family's plight. He is slated to start work today.

The job was one of several "good leads" furnished by well-wishers who went to the family's aid when the circumstances of Whidden's arrest became known. Numerous others have come forward with gifts of food and clothing to tide the family over until Whidden can get back on his feet.

Whidden originally was held for grand jury action on charge of attempted housebreaking, but Alexandria court authorities agreed to a new hearing when an unidentified Washingtonian employed an Alexandria attorney to represent him. Eviction proceedings to oust the family from the $100-a-month house they occupy at 411 E. Raymond ave., Alexandria, also have been continued to permit Whidden to reestablish himself.

The Alexandria Welfare Department, which is attempting to locate a new home for the Whiddens, reported yesterday it had received more than 100 telephone calls from persons interested in assisting the family, although none so far has offered a home.

Former Partner Wears Truman's Campaign Hat

Paris, March 18 (NYHT).—Edward ("Eddie") Jacobson, wearing "the good luck hat in which President Truman won the 1948 election," arrived in Paris en route to Israel today, but he described the hat and himself as "just a couple of ordinary tourists from the Middle West."

There was no truth to the report he was a special presidential envoy to Tel Aviv, said the smiling, little man who is an old friend of Mr. Truman. They soldiered together n the First World War and were partners in a Kansas City haberdashery from 1919 to 1922.

Jacobson said he gave the black-ribboned, gray felt hat to the President last October with the understanding it would be returned after Mr. Truman had renewed his White House lease.

O'Mahoney Offers Bill to Take Salt From Sea Water

A bill aimed at developing large-scale methods of taking the salt out of sea water was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo).

The bill calls for construction and operation of test plants to discover the most feasible means of converting sea water for public, industrial and irrigation uses.

O'Mahoney said in a statement that the arid West, where reclamation is essential to cultivation of agricultural land, is not the only area of the country needing new sources of water. He said water shortages exist in a large number of industrial and urban areas of the country.

Confused TaxpayerPays Entire 1948 Income

The gentleman sent in a check for his whole 1948 income—$3400.

Redmond I. Prindiville, assistant collector of internal revenue, said his office didn't try to cash it. "We just told him he'd better figure his tax again," Prindiville said.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Extra! Extra! Metcalfe Misses a Beat

Eagle-eyed John Powell of 4218 70th ave., Landover Hills, Md., noted that one line of a recent "Portraits" poem by our James J. Metcalfe didn't scan properly.

In a style reminiscent of Rhymster Metcalfe himself, John dashed off:

"At last that dreaded day has come . . . when Metcalfe missed a beat . . . Like stepping in a manhole when . . . You're marching down the street . . . I wonder whether James forgot . . . Or stuttered on his stint . . . Or whether he had thought a thought . . . Unspeakable in print . . . I even wonder which is worse . . . To think he dropped the ball . . . Or think that when he writes his stuff . . . He never thinks at all."

Metcalfe fans who wish to belabor District Liner Powell for criticizing their hero will please form an orderly line.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

Gordon W. McBride of 219 Raymond st., Chevy Chase, Md., stumped me the other day by asking whether I'd ever noticed the figure "4" on our new streetcar tokens.

When I admitted that I hadn't, Gordon proceeded to impress me with his knowledge of these matters.

The original tokens carried the figure "1." They were never intended for public use, and were issued around 1920 for the use of Government employes.

The series which bore the number "2" appeared shortly after the merger in which Capital Transit was born, in 1933. When more tokens were needed some years later, they bore number "3." The newest crop is "4."

The company says that the numbers have no significance except that they make it easier to keep tabs on the little disks.

INVENTION

I have just worked out a gadget which will be the biggest boon to mankind since the one-piece bathing suit.

Its purpose is to convince the laundryman that you really don't want any starch in your shirts.

When he opens your bundle, a sound track plays "No starch, please" in 46 languages and dialects. An electronic eye appraises the reaction of the laundryman.

If it appears that he's going to reach for the starch anyhow, a giant mallet swings out and hits him squarely over the head.

If this doesn't work, I'll have to attack the problem at its source, and start blowing up starch factories.

My heart is set on some day wearing a shirt that doesn't cut my neck; or, at the very least, a shirt in whose pocket I can place a package of cigarettes without first prying the pocket open with a table knife.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Cute little black and white fox terrier, 8 weeks old." (Warfield 8495.)

"Two female kittens, 8 weeks old; very friendly and playful." (Michigan 4378 after 5 p. m.)

"Sixteen white female mice, 8 males." (Lincoln 9117.)

"Twenty assorted filibusterers." (U. W. Henderson, 1434 A. st. se.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Stop maligning drivers of mail trucks. They have a special place in my heart.

My car got stuck in the ice on 13th st. this winter, and I waved to passing cars to try to get some help.

But nobody paid any attention to me (not even a police car) until a mail truck pulled up and gave me a push.

The driver then continued on his way so quickly that I couldn't thank him, or get his number. But ever since then I've been very grateful, and don't want you criticizing our mail drivers any more.

Isaac Joseph
7436 Georgia ave. nw.

P. S. To show my gratitude, I've bought all my stamps from the Post Office Department ever since that incident.

Dear Isaac:

Okay—but I suspect that the only reason that guy pushed you was that a mail truck won't turn aside for anything, not even a stalled car.

Bill

MISCELLANY

Residents of the Foxhall rd. area are up in arms about folks who permit their dogs to run loose in the morning, because of the "infernal noise" the dogs make—especially on Sunday mornings . . . An interesting sidelight to the fuss over Interior's local golf courses is that Secretary Krug is believed on his way out of the Cabinet; that makes his subordinates unusually sensitive to adverse publicity right now. Undersecretary Chapman is keeping hands off the golf squabble, which leaves Assistant Secretary Davidson, also an aspirant for the top job, on the hot spot to find an acceptable solution . . . F. L. D., who conducts our "What's the Verdict" feature on the radio page, has worked out a simple way to avoid getting parking tickets for lack of a nickel in change. He keeps a stock of nickels in the glove compartment of his car.

OVERHEARD

"Is he a sharp-shooter? That guy has more angles than a geometry book."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air. Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—The sales manager for a popular brand of whisky asked Sherman Billingsley why his product isn't displayed to more advantage in the Stork Club. "Take a look at the bar," Billingsley told him. "You get the fullest display there. Everybody can see it" . . . "That's not the fullest display," the salesman replied. "Put it in the showcase in the lobby—where it also would be seen by all the people who are turned away."

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek's friends report that she'll never return to China, particularly because her marriage to Chiang will be declared illegal . . . This week Ingrid Bergman saw four plays and five movies in two days . . . The Democratic National Committee is desperately seeking a national treasurer—one who can raise as much money as George Killion, Ed Pauley and Louis Johnson did . . . Henry Sell will be the new editor at Town & Country . . . John Steinbeck's new book will be called "Salinas Valley" . . . Lion Feuchtwanger's next novel, now half finished, will be based on the life of Goya. J. Arthur Rank wants Sir Laurence Olivier to do a film adaptation of this story.

Lilli Palmer saw Lex Barker, who plays "Tarzan" in the film series, and revealed that it was with him that she made her first screen test here. It was for a role in a Gary Cooper picture, and Barker was used as a substitute for Cooper in this test . . . The diminutive Miss Palmer was to embrace her man, in this test. And so anxious was she to succeed, and therefore so fervent was her embrace that the sound-track recorded Tarzan Barker's pained grunts.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke tells of an actor he knew, who decided that he would make a better living as a medium at seances. He developed a thriving business, because his routine baffled the skeptics. For he cultivated the habit of speaking, in normal conversation, as if he had a cleft palate—so that when the spirits, summoned by him at the seances, spoke in clear, articulate phrases, none could suspect him.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman's Big Defeats Hurt U. S.

By Drew Pearson

Four months ago triumphant Harry Truman came back to Washington reaffirmed President of the United States without help from his late friend FDR, and with surprisingly large majorities in both houses of Congress.

Pearson

This week, in contrast, he has suffered three major defeats at the hands of this same pro-Truman Congress, and, what is far more important, by a Congress which has discovered that it's fun to thumb its nose at its alleged boss in the White House.

Furthermore, the Republican members of that Congress are quietly determined to make Mr. Truman eat his own words and prove to the country that Truman's own Eighty-first Congress is worse than the GOP's much-publicized and much-maligned Eightieth Congress. And with support from the Dixiecrats they can do it.

Nothing could be worse for Mr. Truman's program, And while the politicians aren't worried about Mr. Truman, it is also a fact that from the viewpoint of national unity at a critical time in world affairs, and from the viewpoint of economic stability, nothing could be worse for the country.

For when a Nation's legislators thumb their noses at the Nation's President, it does not give other nations confidence in signing pacts and treaties. Nor does it give them confidence that a pact, once signed, will later be ratified, or its provisions carried out.

The mistakes of the past cannot be remedied. But to prevent mistakes in the future, it is important to look back and see why President Truman's supposed great political popularity melted away so rapidly. Here are some of the reasons:

Truman's Cockiness—As a humble, simple man, Mr. Truman is an appealing, popular figure. But humility does not necessarily mean ability. Also when the President's humility changed to cockiness after November, he lost some of his popularity. This was particularly noticeable to friends who called to help and advise, but went away rebuffed and lectured to. Mr. Truman was confident he did not need help.

No Long-Range Strategy — At the opening of Congress no plans were made as to what legislation should come first.

Instead of getting rent control, housing, aid to education and other vital parts of the Truman program out of the way first, the Trumanites gallantly bared their breasts and threw their weight against a bristling concrete wall of Southern filibusterers.

No Civil-Rights Compromise—Inside fact is that many Southern Senators were quite willing to compromise on civil rights at the opening of Congress when they thought Truman was all-powerful. Now they won't compromise because they know he's not.

No Teamwork—FDR also had tough legislative battles. Some of his measures squeaked through with great difficulty. But Roosevelt had a team operating on Capitol Hill, buttonholing doubtful Senators, turning thumbs down on postmasterships for Congressmen who deserted the party.

Truman also had a team operating skillfully in the background when he was elected last autumn. But that team was nowhere to be found when it came to the all-important job of winning votes on Capitol Hill.

Patronage—When Dixiecrats came back to Congress after their defeat last fall, they soon discovered Mr. Truman had no fixed policy toward them. He was petty when it came to such little things as snubbing Governors Strom Thurmond and Herman Talmadge in the Inaugural parade. But on things that really counted, such as patronage and postmasterships, they found they could get what they wanted. The Administration had no fixed policy. It floundered. So, fear in the hearts of the Dixiecrats evaporated. They knew they could continue to oppose Truman with impunity.

Senate Leadership — Acting as Senate majority leader is never easy—especially for a new man. Alben Barkley had grown gray at the game, had come to be a great leader. Now he is elevated to the rostrum, where leadership is more difficult. Replacing him has been sad-eyed, harassed Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, who looks as if the world rested heavily upon his shoulders. Of late it has. Whether through inexperience or because he had too much long-distance direction from Key West, Lucas was first too meek during the filibuster battle, then too tough, then almost too glad to surrender.

Florida Sunshine—Before Truman left on his Key West holiday close friends urged him not to take time off at such a critical moment. He wouldn't listen. They even urged that, instead, he take a trip through the country, not for the purpose of scolding Congress, but to sample the temper of the people and get back some of his humility. He ignored the advice, scolded Congress instead.
